

The Moon in Virgo

The sign that your Moon occupies shows the language you speak to meet your subjective safety needs and operate your Emotional Guidance System. The element of the sign is the dominant language and gives specific guidance about how and why you express your Moon. The sign itself is a dialect of that language and provides additional information, specifically about your subjective safety needs.

Moon in Earth Signs

With the Moon in an Earth sign, you have an Earth Safety Checklist. You need structure, boundaries, and a connection with the material world to feel safe. In every situation, you need to have an objective understanding of the internal essence. You need to know, on an internal, feeling level, what something is as it currently exists in reality. Once you have this fundamental understanding, you can orient yourself and address what needs to be addressed. Your approach to safety is sequential and methodical; you will feel threatened in situations that require intuitive leaps or creative, associative, personal connections.

You are generally comfortable experiencing your feelings and emotions, provided you can do so in a structured, orderly fashion.

You need to be able to identify each feeling as you experience it, and put it in its place, so you can maintain an objective relationship to it. As long as you can maintain your anchor, you can handle virtually any feeling or emotion. But if the flood of feelings sweeps you off your foundation and you are unable to contain their intensity, it will make you feel very unsafe.

The Moon in Virgo feels safe when she is able to serve, to improve, and to perfect the physical world. The more perfection present in the world, the safer everyone will be. The Moon in Virgo doesn't need to attain perfection; so long as she is able to refine and improve things, she will feel safe. When she can't be of use or if she is unable to improve a situation, the Moon in Virgo will feel threatened. When she feels unsafe, the Moon in Virgo will act out, calling attention to the flaws in the hope that someone else will address them. She will also narrow her focus, becoming obsessed with smaller details, looking for something she can change or improve in order to feel safe. The Moon in Virgo experiences the full range of feelings and emotions, with exacting precision. She is sensitive to even the slightest difference in vibration. The challenge for the Moon in Virgo is to align with what is true, rather than what is real. The Moon in Virgo can create attachments to an ideal of perfection, and become trapped at the level of fear because that ideal is unattainable.

When you are in Right Relationship with the Moon in Virgo, you appreciate that perfection, like creation, is an ongoing process. You also understand that once something has manifested in form, it is whole, complete and perfect in and of itself. It is the perfect manifestation of the original creative inspiration. When you notice qualities that others may judge as flaws, you are inspired—not to fix or change what already exists, but to create something new. You know that the Law of Attraction will manifest the perfect expression of your intentions. The physical world is only the medium of your creative expression. You analyze the details of your “little r” reality so that you can further refine your thoughts and inspirations, and manifest greater levels of truth. The highest service you can offer humanity is to expand your consciousness and reveal more truth in the world of form. You use your analytical skills to differentiate between what is real and what is true, and where you find truth, you find perfection.

When you are out of alignment with the Moon in Virgo, you forget that everything in your “little r” reality is effect; the cause is the vibration of your thoughts. You lose touch with the Present Moment, and confuse what is true with what is real. You direct all of your energy and attention to manipulating and correcting things that are already created and complete. You are like an artist trying to alter a portrait after the paint has dried. You become so obsessed with the most insignificant details that you don't realize you would be happier (and feel safer) if you started with a blank canvas and created something new. You create powerful attachments to an unattainable ideal of perfection. Because you act from force and not from power, you are unable to change or improve the conditions in your “little r” reality. This drains your Safety Need Account, and the less safe you feel, the more driven you are to analyze, criticize and fix. You lose all sense of perspective and get lost in your stories. You search for God in the details, and can't recognize that God is everywhere.
