

The Moon Rules the Sixth House

The Sixth House is all work and no play. In modern usage, it's the house of service, but that glosses over the deeper themes. It's more accurate to call the Sixth House the house of indentured service, because fundamentally, it's the house of slavery. The Sixth House represents hard work you are obligated to perform, and for which you receive no recognition, prestige, or advancement. In other words, the Sixth House is your job. It's also the house of illness and disease (in contrast to the First House, which relates to your health).

The Sixth House is your job.

The Sixth House is your job, but it's not exclusively your actual job and the work you do for a paycheck. The Sixth House is the work that you do because you have to do it, and you can't expect to receive any recognition or advancement for it. Your real job is to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Sixth House. Meeting those needs requires constant work and attention. You never get a break, much less a vacation, and waiting for other people to appreciate your efforts is a complete waste of time. The degree of effort required can fluctuate. Sometimes you are able to lighten the load so that the work itself is easy for you. Other times, it's a grind, and your only reward for your hard work is more work. But whatever your passing attitude is towards the work, deep down, you understand that the work matters to you, which is why you keep doing it. One of the secrets of the Sixth House is to view your work as selfless service. When you can view your job from this perspective and know that you are contributing to something meaningful and much bigger than yourself, the work becomes easier, and you no longer care that you won't be recognized or appreciated for it.

This can be challenging to accomplish in your actual workplace. It's rare to feel empowered around your external job. You have to show up for work and put up with the workplace dynamic because you need your paycheck, but there are any number of ways you would rather spend your time. But consider that even in your external job, your real job is still to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Sixth House. If you engage with your job from this perspective, it becomes easier for you to find a higher purpose to it, which can then make your work experience less stressful. At least it can give you something to think about to get you through to lunch.

The Sixth House is your sickness.

It's important to understand your sickness. Any physical or health-related problems you experience in your body are the effect of your sickness, but they're not your actual sickness. The physical problems are the result of imbalances in your life, and they can involve imbalance in any combination of your physical, emotional, mental, or spiritual dimensions. Your sickness is what causes the imbalances.

Everybody has a sickness. When you learn to manage and monitor it, you can limit the amount of actual physical sickness you experience. The planet that rules your Sixth House is your sickness. When you try to meet the needs of that planet, you have the most difficulty maintaining balance. You may put too much attention on those needs, which causes you to neglect or ignore other needs in your life. You may not pay enough attention to those needs. And it's also possible to swing from one extreme to the other. In any case, when you are out of alignment with the planet that rules your Sixth House, you create imbalance in your life, and if you don't address those imbalances, they will eventually show up in your physical body as acute or chronic health challenges. Treating the symptoms doesn't address the problem. Healing requires you to address your sickness.

The Moon Rules the Sixth House

Your subjective safety needs are your job; your job is your subjective safety needs.

Whatever you may do for a living, your real job is safety. Managing your subjective safety needs is something you have to work at, every day, whether you feel like it or not. No one else is going to meet your safety needs for you, which means you never get a break, much less a vacation. And you can't expect anyone to notice or appreciate your hard work, either. Sometimes, feeling safe hardly seems worth the effort. When you maintain the minimum required balance in your Safety Need Account, you don't mind doing your job. The work itself is easy for you, and you even have a sense that by doing your job and meeting your safety needs, you are performing a higher service. But when the balance in your Safety Need Account falls below the minimum level and you begin to experience your reality from First Kingdom/Victim Consciousness, meeting your safety needs is a struggle. The more you accomplish, the more you are expected to do. On a personal level, when you don't feel safe, your actual job—the work you perform for others in exchange for a paycheck—crushes your very soul. By the end of the day, you have no life left in you. And you have to wake up the next morning and do it all over again. You want to find a higher purpose to your hard work, because when your job has purpose, the work gets easier, and you believe that when that happens, you will no longer have to worry about protecting yourself to survive.

You are always objectively safe because your authentic Self is invulnerable, but until you remember this truth, you will look for protection from anything unfamiliar because it could be a threat to your survival. When something makes a deposit in your Safety Need Account, you create an attachment to it, expecting that you can always rely on it as a source of safety. The paradox of attachments is that they drain the balance in your Safety Need Account, but the less safe you feel, the stronger the attachment becomes. You must use the Present Moment Awareness Safety Meditation to reconnect with the truth that right here, right now, in this moment, you are completely safe. Then you can let go of the attachment by stating the truth that it is not your source and you can survive without it. You are the most vulnerable to creating attachments around your job. You don't just believe you can't survive without a job; you believe you can't survive without your current job. This is not true, and it creates a critical lack of safety.

You can become conscious of your attachments and learn how to monitor the balance in your Safety Need Account by engaging with your job. Begin by considering the work that you do: your actual job (if applicable), as well as any other tasks you are obligated to perform on a regular basis. Find the connection between that work and your experience of safety. Consider that the higher purpose of the work you do is to maintain the minimum balance in your Safety Need Account. Then remember that the best way to do this is to use the Present Moment Awareness Safety Meditation and connect to the truth that in this moment, all of your needs are met and you are completely safe. Notice how your attitude and experience of your job and your work shifts when you engage with it from this perspective and remember the truth that your job is not your source and you do not need it to survive. Once you have a reference for that connection, you can explore how changing your relationship to safety affects your experience of your work. Then you can apply those references to the rest of your life, becoming more skilled with maintaining the minimum balance in your Safety Need Account. The more you manage your subjective safety needs and know the truth of your safety, the easier your work and your job becomes.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

---

What part of the description of your subjective safety needs and your job resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your subjective safety needs and your job resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

What are some examples of how you work hard to experience safety?

How do you experience or pursue safety in your actual job and workplace environment?
How well do you meet your safety needs in your workplace?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

---

How do you work hard to meet your safety needs in your life? Does anyone ever recognize you or appreciate you for your efforts?

What happens if you don't work at meeting your safety needs?

What are some things about your job that matter the most to you? How do you feel when something disrupts your job?

What is it about your job that you believe can't live without? Do you actually need that to survive? Why or why not?

Your subjective safety needs are your sickness; your sickness is your subjective safety needs.

Safety is your sickness. You often go to extremes to feel safe. Putting so much emphasis on safety can create imbalances in your life because you ignore other important aspects. When you maintain the minimum required balance in your Safety Need Account, you have a balanced approach to safety. It receives the right amount of attention and energy, but it doesn't cause you to neglect other parts of your life. But when the balance in your Safety Need Account falls below the minimum level and you begin to experience your reality from First Kingdom/Victim Consciousness, your approach to safety is imbalanced. You become increasingly obsessed with it. You neglect other parts of your life, and ignore the warning signs that something is wrong and requires your attention. If you keep this up long enough, it will create imbalances in your physical body. At first, it will only be minor physical inconveniences, but if you ignore these warnings and do not change your behavior, you could create chronic illness or serious disability. What you really want is to be able to make the symptoms disappear without having to change your behavior in any way. You believe that when your physical body stops demanding that you pay attention and restore balance in your life, you will no longer have to worry about protecting yourself to survive.

You are always objectively safe because your authentic Self is invulnerable, but until you remember this truth, you will look for protection from anything unfamiliar because it could be a threat to your survival. When something makes a deposit in your Safety Need Account, you create an attachment to it, expecting that you can always rely on it as a source of safety. The paradox of attachments is that they drain the balance in your Safety Need Account, but the less safe you feel, the stronger the attachment becomes. You must use the Present Moment Awareness Safety Meditation to reconnect with the truth that right here, right now, in this moment, you are completely safe. Then you can let go of the attachment by stating the truth that it is not your source and you can survive without it. You are the most vulnerable to creating attachments around your sickness. Specifically, you create attachments to the behaviors that create the imbalances in your life because you believe those behaviors are required to help you to feel safe. You are willing to do anything to heal except change those behaviors.

You can become conscious of your attachments and learn how to monitor the balance in your Safety Need Account by engaging with your sickness. The first step on the path to healing is admitting that you have a problem. Take a long, objective look at your history of behavior involving how you try to meet your subjective safety needs. Identify exactly what you have sacrificed, overlooked, or put off in pursuit of safety. Then consider what the incidental costs of those behaviors have been, specifically with regards to your health and vitality. Even relatively minor disruptions like a lack of sleep (perhaps because you can't stop thinking about what needs to happen to secure deposits in your Safety Need Account), are examples of your sickness and can contribute to more serious problems. The most effective solution is the Present Moment Awareness Safety Meditation. This connects you to the truth that right here, right now, in this moment, you are completely safe. Over time, it helps you to maintain the minimum balance in your Safety Need Account, which will allow you to let go of your attachments and change your behavior patterns. The more you manage your subjective safety needs and know the truth of your safety, the more you avoid creating imbalances in your life.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

---

What part of the description of your subjective safety needs and your sickness resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your subjective safety needs and your sickness resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

What are some things that you have had to give up in pursuit of safety? Is it worth the sacrifice? Why or why not?

How does your pursuit of safety affect your overall health? How much time do you spend worrying about safety? Do you think this is a problem for you? Why or why not?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

---

How do you go to extremes in pursuit of safety? Where does safety take on too much importance in your life?

What would a healthy relationship with safety look like for you? What behaviors would you have to change to create this relationship? Are you willing to make those changes? Why or why not?

What are some of the consequences you experience when you are out of balance with your subjective safety needs?

What are some things about your sickness that matter the most to you? How do you feel when something disrupts your sickness?

What is it about your sickness that you believe can't live without? Do you actually need that to survive? Why or why not?

Your Emotional Guidance System is your job; your job is your Emotional Guidance System.

Whatever you may do for a living, your real job is your Emotional Guidance System. Feeling your feelings and emotions is something you have to work at, every day, whether you want to or not. No one else is going to feel your feelings for you, which means you never get a break, much less a vacation. And you can't expect anyone to notice or appreciate your hard work, either. Sometimes, feeling your feelings hardly seems worth the effort. When you allow yourself to experience the full range of emotions without interference or resistance, you don't mind doing your job. The work itself is easy for you, and you even have a sense that by doing your job and feeling your feelings, you are performing a higher service. But when you pursue only pleasurable feelings and avoid or suppress anything that feels uncomfortable, feeling your feelings is a struggle. The more you accomplish, the more you are expected to do. On a personal level, when you avoid feeling your feelings, your actual job—the work you perform for others in exchange for a paycheck—crushes your very soul. By the end of the day, you have no life left in you. And you have to wake up the next morning and do it all over again. You want to find a higher purpose to your hard work, because when your job has purpose, the work gets easier, and you believe that when that happens, you won't suffer through negative, uncomfortable, or unpleasant feelings.

Feelings are just feelings: they can't hurt you because your authentic Self is invulnerable. But until you remember this truth, you try to avoid anything unpleasant or painful because you view those experiences as threatening. You believe negative feelings are caused by conditions in the outside world, but in fact, the conditions are the effect of your feelings. Feelings are how your Emotional Guidance System helps you to identify your current level of consciousness. This is important, because everything you experience is a match to that vibration. An unpleasant feeling warns you that you are tuned to a low vibration of consciousness. You can choose a better-feeling thought and tune to a higher level of consciousness, which will then create a new set of conditions. You are the most sensitive to negativity—and the most likely to turn down the volume on your Emotional Guidance System rather than change the frequency—with your job. You may believe that the only way that you can make it through the workday is to numb yourself to the negativity and discomfort that surrounds you. But this approach keeps you trapped where you are and limits your ability to experience happiness.

You can learn how to navigate using your Emotional Guidance System by engaging with your job. Begin by considering the work that you do: your actual job (if applicable), as well as any other tasks you are obligated to perform on a regular basis. Find the connection between that work and your experience of your feelings and emotions. Consider that the higher purpose of the work you do is to experience the full range of emotions without interference or resistance and to use your Emotional Guidance System to navigate towards better-feeling thoughts. Notice how your attitude and experience of your job and your work shifts when you engage with it from this perspective. Once you have a reference for that connection, you can explore how changing your relationship to your feelings and emotions affects your experience of your work. Instead of ignoring the negativity, you can eliminate it. Then you can apply those references to the rest of your life, becoming more skilled with using your Emotional Guidance System to navigate your life. The more you are willing to feel your feelings and listen to your Emotional Guidance System, the easier your work and your job becomes.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

---

What part of the description of your Emotional Guidance System and your job resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your Emotional Guidance System and your job resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

What are some examples of how you work hard to experience feelings and emotions?

How do you experience or pursue feelings and emotions in your actual job and workplace environment? How well do you feel your feelings in your workplace?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

---

How do you work hard to feel your feelings in your life? Does anyone ever recognize you or appreciate you for your efforts?

What happens if you don't work at feeling your feelings?

What feelings do you usually experience with your job? When do you experience these feelings?

What feelings do you tend to avoid with your job? When do you experience these feelings?

On a scale of 1 to 10, with 10 being the most intense, how much do you feel your feelings with your job? What would happen if you turned up the volume on your feelings?

Your Emotional Guidance System is your sickness; your sickness is your Emotional Guidance System.

Your Emotional Guidance System is your sickness. You often go to extremes to feel your feelings, and sometimes you go to extremes to avoid feeling them. Putting so much emphasis on feelings can create imbalances in your life because you ignore other important aspects. When you allow yourself to experience the full range of emotions without interference or resistance, you have a balanced approach to your feelings and emotions. They receive the right amount of attention and energy, but they don't cause you to neglect other parts of your life. But when you pursue only pleasurable feelings and avoid or suppress anything that feels uncomfortable, your approach to your Emotional Guidance System is imbalanced. You become increasingly obsessed with it. You neglect other parts of your life, and ignore the warning signs that something is wrong and requires your attention. If you keep this up long enough, it will create imbalances in your physical body. At first, it will only be minor physical inconveniences, but if you ignore these warnings and do not change your behavior, you could create chronic illness or serious disability. What you really want is to be able to make the symptoms disappear without having to change your behavior in any way. You believe that when your physical body stops demanding that you pay attention and restore balance in your life, you won't suffer through negative, uncomfortable, or unpleasant feelings.

Feelings are just feelings: they can't hurt you because your authentic Self is invulnerable. But until you remember this truth, you try to avoid anything unpleasant or painful because you view those experiences as threatening. You believe negative feelings are caused by conditions in the outside world, but in fact, the conditions are the effect of your feelings. Feelings are how your Emotional Guidance System helps you to identify your current level of consciousness. This is important, because everything you experience is a match to that vibration. An unpleasant feeling warns you that you are tuned to a low vibration of consciousness. You can choose a better-feeling thought and tune to a higher level of consciousness, which will then create a new set of conditions. You are the most sensitive to negativity—and the most likely to turn down the volume on your Emotional Guidance System rather than change the frequency—with your sickness. Rather than pay attention to unpleasant feelings and recognize that they are a warning that something is wrong and you are out of balance, you ignore the feelings and make the situation worse.

You can learn how to navigate using your Emotional Guidance System by engaging with your sickness. The first step on the path to healing is admitting that you have a problem. Take a long, objective look at your history of behavior involving how you approach your feelings and emotions. Identify exactly what you have sacrificed, overlooked, or put off to avoid having to feel negative or unpleasant feelings. Then consider what the incidental costs of those behaviors have been, specifically with regards to your health and vitality. Even relatively minor disruptions like a lack of sleep (perhaps because you can't stop thinking about your feelings), are examples of your sickness and can contribute to more serious problems. The more you resist your feelings, the more they persist. When you allow yourself to feel your feelings, they move through you and disappear. The more you are willing to feel your feelings and listen to your Emotional Guidance System, the more you avoid creating imbalances in your life.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

---

What part of the description of your Emotional Guidance System and your sickness resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your Emotional Guidance System and your sickness resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

What are some things that you have had to give up to avoid negative feelings and pursue positive feelings? Is it worth the sacrifice? Why or why not?

How does your pursuit of positive feelings and desire to avoid negative feelings affect your overall health? How much time do you spend worrying about your feelings? Do you think this is a problem for you? Why or why not?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

---

How do you go to extremes in pursuit of feelings and emotions? Where does your Emotional Guidance System take on too much importance in your life?

What would a healthy relationship with feelings and emotions look like for you? What behaviors would you have to change to create this relationship? Are you willing to make those changes? Why or why not?

What are some of the consequences you experience when you are out of balance with your Emotional Guidance System?

What feelings do you usually experience with your sickness? When do you experience these feelings?

What feelings do you tend to avoid with your sickness? When do you experience these feelings?

On a scale of 1 to 10, with 10 being the most intense, how much do you feel your feelings with your sickness? What would happen if you turned up the volume on your feelings?

The Moon, the Ruler of your Sixth House in Houses

The house occupied by the Ruler of the Sixth House is where you expect to labor, work, and serve. The house may directly relate to your job, or it may merely contain the resources available to you in your job and service. You must be careful how you use the resources of this house: this is the house where you encounter your sickness. If you abuse the available resources, it will increase your susceptibility to illness.

JOURNAL QUESTIONS & INSTRUCTIONS

Begin by reviewing the chapter in the video lesson on the Moon that explores the house that the Moon, the Ruler of your Sixth House occupies. Then locate and read the description of the house occupied by the Moon, the Ruler of your Sixth House. Now, go back and revisit each of the journal questions about how you experience the Moon as the ruler of your Sixth House, and notice how the house the Moon occupies influences your understanding.

The Moon, the Ruler of the Sixth House in the First House

With The Moon, the Ruler of the Sixth House in your First House, you encounter your subjective safety needs, your Emotional Guidance System, your job, and your sickness in your personality and outer appearance. The resources of the First House include your health, your happiness, your appearance, and your very identity. You will use your personal interests and happiness to manage your subjective safety needs, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. You will use your personal interests and happiness to experience your feelings and emotions, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. You will use your personal interests and happiness to lighten your workload, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. And you will use your personal interests and happiness to ignore the signs of imbalance in your life, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your First House, affecting your avatar, your outer appearance, your happiness, and how much you enjoy your hobbies and interests. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your First House.

The Moon, the Ruler of the Sixth House in the in the Second House

With The Moon, the Ruler of the Sixth House in your Second House, you encounter your subjective safety needs, your Emotional Guidance System, your job, and your sickness in your money and resources. The resources of the Second House include your money, your personal possessions, and the skills and talents you have that can be used to earn money. You will spend money and use your talents to manage your subjective safety needs. You will spend money and use your talents to experience your feelings and emotions. You will spend money and use your talents to lighten your workload. And you will spend money and use your talents to ignore the signs of imbalance in your life. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Second House, specifically because they encourage you to spend your money, but they don't necessarily help you to earn more money or connect to the truth of your prosperity. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Second House.

The Moon, the Ruler of the Sixth House in the in the Third House

With The Moon, the Ruler of the Sixth House in your Third House, you encounter your subjective safety needs, your Emotional Guidance System, your job, and your sickness in your comfort zone. The resources of your Third House are all local, close, and familiar. You can communicate to your network to ask for support, but you will only call people you already know and have worked with before. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to manage your subjective safety needs, and you rarely consider new options. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to experience your feelings and emotions, and you rarely consider new options. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to lighten your workload, and you rarely consider new options. And rely on your familiar habits and local resources to ignore the signs of imbalance in your life, and you rarely consider new options. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Third House, creating changes to your comfort zone that make it less familiar and less comfortable, and forcing you to pay attention to your habits and routines. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Third House.

The Moon, the Ruler of the Sixth House in the in the Fourth House

With The Moon, the Ruler of the Sixth House in your Fourth House, you encounter your subjective safety needs, your Emotional Guidance System, your job, and your sickness in your private life. The resources of the Fourth House include your private and personal life, your home, real estate, tradition, and family connections. You do not want to be noticed when you manage your subjective safety needs, because it's personal and private. You do not want to be noticed when you experience your feelings and emotions, because it's personal and private. You do not want to be noticed when you lighten your workload, because it's personal and private. And you do not want to be noticed when you ignore the signs of imbalance in your life, because it's personal and private. Your pursuit of privacy may disrupt your Fourth House, shaking the very foundation of your life. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Fourth House.

The Moon, the Ruler of the Sixth House in the in the Fifth House

With The Moon, the Ruler of the Sixth House in your Fifth House, you encounter your subjective safety needs, your Emotional Guidance System, your job, and your sickness in your creativity and fun. The resources of the Fifth House include games, gambling, entertainment, art, creativity, and all forms of amusement and recreation. You are willing to take creative risks to manage your subjective safety needs, and you expect to have fun in the process. You are willing to take creative risks to experience your feelings and emotions, and you expect to have fun in the process. You are willing to take creative risks to lighten your workload, and you expect to have fun in the process. And you are willing to take creative risks to ignore the signs of imbalance in your life, and you expect to have fun in the process. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Fifth House, especially if you don't feel that you have been creative enough or if you're not having fun. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Fifth House.

The Moon, the Ruler of the Sixth House in the in the Sixth House

With The Moon, the Ruler of the Sixth House in your Sixth House, you encounter your subjective safety needs, your Emotional Guidance System, your job, and your sickness in your job, your workplace environment, and your relationships with co-workers and employees. The resources of the Sixth House include hard work and selfless service. You expect to work hard to manage your subjective safety needs, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. You expect to work hard to experience your feelings and emotions, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. You expect to work hard to lighten your workload, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. And you expect to work hard to ignore the signs of imbalance in your life, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Sixth House, especially because you are always looking for ways to lighten the workload, so you may try to hire someone to do the work for you, or failing that, you may create illness so you can call in sick. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Sixth House.

The Moon, the Ruler of the Sixth House in the in the Seventh House

With The Moon, the Ruler of the Sixth House in your Seventh House, you encounter your subjective safety needs, your Emotional Guidance System, your job, and your sickness in your one-to-one relationships. The resources of the Seventh House appear to be other individuals because you project everything associated with planets in your Seventh House on other people and you don't recognize that those qualities live in you. You expect other individuals to manage your subjective safety needs for you and may blame them if they don't. You expect other individuals to experience your feelings and emotions for you and may blame them if they don't. You expect other individuals to lighten your workload for you and may blame them if they don't. And you expect other individuals to ignore the signs of imbalance in your life for you and may blame them if they don't. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Seventh House by creating difficulties in your one-to-one relationships. And while the problems will appear to be about other people, they're really your own issues. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Seventh House.

The Moon, the Ruler of the Sixth House in the in the Eighth House

With The Moon, the Ruler of the Sixth House in your Eighth House, you encounter your subjective safety needs, your Emotional Guidance System, your job, and your sickness in your debts and shared resources. The resources of the Eighth house are other people's money, values, and opinions. This money is available to you in the form of loans, investments, or simply credit card debt. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to manage your subjective safety needs. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to experience your feelings and emotions. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to lighten your workload. And you will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to ignore the signs of imbalance in your life. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Eighth House because they will increase your awareness of your debt, both personal (what you owe other people) and financial (the money you owe to others). This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Eighth House.

The Moon, the Ruler of the Sixth House in the Ninth House

With The Moon, the Ruler of the Sixth House in your Ninth House, you encounter your subjective safety needs, your Emotional Guidance System, your job, and your sickness in your danger zone. The resources of the Ninth House are all foreign, distant, new, unfamiliar, and unknown to you. They include experts and authorities that can offer wisdom and knowledge, such as teachers, religious leaders, lawyers, and doctors. You always require new information to manage your subjective safety needs because what you already know is not sufficient. You always require new information to experience your feelings and emotions because what you already know is not sufficient. You always require new information to lighten your workload because what you already know is not sufficient. And you always require new information to ignore the signs of imbalance in your life because what you already know is not sufficient. These behaviors may cause disruption to your Ninth House because the new information you acquire may challenge and alter your beliefs. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Ninth House.

The Moon, the Ruler of the Sixth House in the Tenth House

With The Moon, the Ruler of the Sixth House in your Tenth House, you encounter your subjective safety needs, your Emotional Guidance System, your job, and your sickness in your public and professional image. The resources of the Tenth House include your reputation, your public image, and the passwords to all of your social media accounts. You want to be famous for your ability to manage your subjective safety needs, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. You want to be famous for your ability to experience your feelings and emotions, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. You want to be famous for your ability to lighten your workload, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. And you want to be famous for your ability to ignore the signs of imbalance in your life, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Tenth House and affect both your personal and your professional reputation. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Tenth House.

The Moon, the Ruler of the Sixth House in the Eleventh House

With The Moon, the Ruler of the Sixth House in your Eleventh House, you encounter your subjective safety needs, your Emotional Guidance System, your job, and your sickness in your ambitions and aspirations. The resources of the Eleventh House are your benefactors: friends, colleagues, and teammates who are in a position to support you and help you to acquire the things you believe will make you happy. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to manage your subjective safety needs so you can acquire happiness. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to experience your feelings and emotions so you can acquire happiness. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to lighten your workload so you can acquire happiness. And you depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to ignore the signs of imbalance in your life so you can acquire happiness. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Eleventh House and affect not only your ambitions and aspirations, but also the level of support you receive from your friends and benefactors. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Eleventh House.

The Moon, the Ruler of the Sixth House in the Twelfth House

With The Moon, the Ruler of the Sixth House in your Twelfth House you are unconscious of your subjective safety needs, your Emotional Guidance System, your job, and your sickness. The Twelfth House is above the horizon, so everything about planets in the Twelfth House is visible to others, but it's all in your blind spot, so you're the last to know about it. The resources of the Twelfth House include your hidden motivations, your unconscious programming, your shadow self, and your personal demons. You are not conscious of what motivates you to manage your subjective safety needs, and it will have unexpected consequences. You are not conscious of what motivates you to experience your feelings and emotions, and it will have unexpected consequences. You are not conscious of what motivates you to lighten your workload, and it will have unexpected consequences. And you are not conscious of what motivates you to ignore the signs of imbalance in your life, and it will have unexpected consequences. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Twelfth House, causing resentment and creating hidden enemies. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Twelfth House.