

The Moon Rules the Twelfth House

The Twelfth House is sorrow, adversity, self-sabotage, unconscious behavior, and hidden enemies. In almost every sense, the Twelfth House is your shadow. You can't see your own Twelfth House, but because it's above the horizon, it's visible to everyone else. Maintaining right relationship with the planet that rules the Twelfth House limits the challenges associated with this house.

The Twelfth House is the vehicle of your adversity.

The planet that rules your Twelfth House is the vehicle of your adversity. It means well, but whenever there's trouble in your life, it can usually be traced back to something you did that involved the needs, lessons, or expression of that planet. When you are out of alignment with this planet, it's how you sabotage yourself and create optional suffering in your life. Generally, the problems that result from this planet are unexpected and unintentional. You don't realize how much of a mess you make when you pursue the needs of this planet or try to understand how its Universal Puzzle Piece fits in your life. You can't help making the mess, but when you're in right relationship with the planet, you make the effort to clean up after yourself. This makes the unintended consequences less frequent and limits the impact when they do occur. But if you're out of alignment with this planet, you neglect the mess, and make every part of your life more difficult than it has to be.

The real challenge with the Twelfth House is that the planet that rules your Twelfth House is the vehicle of all of the adversity you experience in your life, and this is often difficult to accept. Many of the obstacles and challenges you experience seem to come from outside of you and appear to be beyond your personal control or influence. You experience sorrow and defeat and difficulties and accept that they're just a part of life. But the truth is that you create everything in your "little r" reality through the Law of Attraction. Everything you experience is a match to the vibration of your consciousness, and that includes both the problems that you realize you created and the problems you can't believe that you could have created. When you work to maintain right relationship with the planet that rules your Twelfth House, you protect yourself from both types of problems. You don't notice the suffering you don't experience, and that's rather the point.

The Twelfth House is your blind spot.

The Twelfth House, and the planet that rules your Twelfth House, is your blind spot. It lurks in your unconscious, just outside your field of vision, so you don't notice it until it's too late. Your behaviors and actions involving the planet that rules your Twelfth House create resentment in other people, and that resentment can turn friends into hidden enemies. They're not actively looking to harm you, but as their resentment builds, they unconsciously begin to look for any opportunity where they can trip you up or let you down when you most need them. If you don't address that resentment and clean up your mess, it will come back to bite you. You'll never see it coming, either. You'll be completely blindsided, and since their behavior was unconscious, the friendship will probably survive—and your hidden enemy will still be at large.

It requires extra effort to maintain right relationship with the planet that rules your Twelfth House. Blind spots are so dangerous not because you can't see them clearly, but because you forget they're there at all, so you don't check them regularly. When you express or try to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Twelfth House, you're going to cross boundaries and step on toes. That planet is just messy for you. That's why it's so important to check your blind spot. Identify when you've made a mistake, accept responsibility for it, and apologize. A simple "I'm sorry" can clean up a whole lot of resentment, and go a long way towards keeping your friends your friends.

The Moon Rules the Twelfth House

Your subjective safety needs are the vehicle of your adversity; the vehicle of your adversity is your subjective safety needs.

Safety is the vehicle of your adversity. Time and again, when you try to meet your subjective safety needs, it has unexpected, unintended, and unwelcome consequences. When you maintain the minimum required balance in your Safety Need Account, you manage to avoid most of the optional suffering in your life. You periodically check to see how other people perceive your behavior, especially your behaviors involving safety, and you clean up whatever messes you have made before they become bigger problems. But when the balance in your Safety Need Account falls below the minimum level and you begin to experience your reality from First Kingdom/Victim Consciousness, your behaviors are disruptive and create unnecessary problems and challenges. You approach safety from First Kingdom/Victim Consciousness and use force when you try to meet your subjective safety needs. This creates a counter-force that shows up as obstacles and adversity. You don't always see the connection between the cause and effect because there's often a delay and the adversity may not be directly related to your choices, but the adversity you experience is the Law of Attraction in action. You want to avoid suffering, sorrow, and adversity because you believe that without these problems, you will no longer have to worry about protecting yourself to survive.

You are always objectively safe because your authentic Self is invulnerable, but until you remember this truth, you will look for protection from anything unfamiliar because it could be a threat to your survival. When something makes a deposit in your Safety Need Account, you create an attachment to it, expecting that you can always rely on it as a source of safety. The paradox of attachments is that they drain the balance in your Safety Need Account, but the less safe you feel, the stronger the attachment becomes. You must use the Present Moment Awareness Safety Meditation to reconnect with the truth that right here, right now, in this moment, you are completely safe. Then you can let go of the attachment by stating the truth that it is not your source and you can survive without it. You are the most vulnerable to creating attachments around the vehicle of your adversity. In fact, your attachments are what create the vehicle of your adversity in the first place. As long as you look for safety outside of yourself you will create suffering and adversity in your life.

You can become conscious of your attachments and learn how to monitor the balance in your Safety Need Account by engaging with the vehicle of your adversity. Think of a few examples of situations where you have sabotaged yourself, created obstacles, or just unintentionally crossed a line or put your foot in your mouth. Focus on the smaller stories, because it will be easier for you to consider those objectively. Review the story of what happened, and your story of why you think it happened. Then go back and review it again, but this time, notice that the real source of the problem is how you handled your subjective safety needs. If you look carefully, you will discover that your relationship to safety is the common thread that connects almost every experience of sorrow and adversity in your life. By paying attention to the balance in your Safety Need Account and becoming more skilled with knowing the truth that right here, right now, in this moment, you are completely safe, you can limit how much you sabotage yourself. The more you manage your subjective safety needs and know the truth of your safety, the more you avoid optional suffering and adversity.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your subjective safety needs and the vehicle of your adversity resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your subjective safety needs and the vehicle of your adversity resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

Choose an example of a time when your behavior or choices created problems for you. How did your pursuit of safety contribute to the difficulties?

What are some other examples where your pursuit of safety created challenges for you?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

Do you approach safety from lack consciousness? Do you see it as a limited resource that you have to compete for? Is that true? Why or why not?

What are some things about the vehicle of your adversity that matter the most to you? How do you feel when something disrupts the vehicle of your adversity?

What is it about the vehicle of your adversity that you believe can't live without? Do you actually need that to survive? Why or why not?

Your subjective safety needs are your blind spot; your blind spot is your subjective safety needs.

Safety is your blind spot. It lurks in your unconscious, just outside of your field of vision, so you don't notice it until it's too late. Your behaviors and actions involving safety create resentment in other people, and that resentment can turn friends into hidden enemies. When you maintain the minimum required balance in your Safety Need Account, you check your blind spot regularly. You always proceed with caution when you manage your subjective safety needs, because it's better to be safe than sorry. You still make mistakes, but because you own your mistakes and apologize for them, you limit the amount of resentment others feel towards you. But when the balance in your Safety Need Account falls below the minimum level and you begin to experience your reality from First Kingdom/Victim Consciousness, you ignore your blind spot and move full speed ahead. This works until it doesn't, and you're blindsided by a problem. A little more attention or a timely apology could have nipped it in the bud. On a personal level, when you don't feel safe, you are surrounded by hidden enemies. When you least expect it, they will trip you up, often using your subjective safety needs as a weapon against you. You would like to think that you are fully conscious of everything in your world because you believe that when you don't have a blind spot, you will no longer have to worry about protecting yourself to survive.

You are always objectively safe because your authentic Self is invulnerable, but until you remember this truth, you will look for protection from anything unfamiliar because it could be a threat to your survival. When something makes a deposit in your Safety Need Account, you create an attachment to it, expecting that you can always rely on it as a source of safety. The paradox of attachments is that they drain the balance in your Safety Need Account, but the less safe you feel, the stronger the attachment becomes. You must use the Present Moment Awareness Safety Meditation to reconnect with the truth that right here, right now, in this moment, you are completely safe. Then you can let go of the attachment by stating the truth that it is not your source and you can survive without it. The challenge is that most of your attachments live in your blind spot. You don't notice your attachments because rather than having a few major attachments, you have hundreds of minor attachments that are spread out around the edges of your life. When they are triggered, they blindside you with a sudden and unexpected loss of safety. You don't notice the crisis until you're in the middle of it.

You can become conscious of your attachments and learn how to monitor the balance in your Safety Need Account by engaging with your blind spot. Because you don't normally see your blind spot, you have to make an extra effort to check it. You need to develop a habit of looking for any attachments in your life, much like you have a habit of looking both ways before you cross the street—and for precisely the same reason. It's not that you don't notice your need for safety in your life. Rather it's that you don't see all of it. You miss the edges and the fringes, and that's where your attachments cause problems for you, creating resentment in others and turning friends into hidden enemies. You don't realize how important things are to you until they're threatened, and you overreact to protect them. But with practice and attention, you can avoid being blindsided. The more you manage your subjective safety needs and know the truth of your safety, the more conscious you are of your blind spot.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your subjective safety needs and your blind spot resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your subjective safety needs and your blind spot resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

What is an example of a time when you were blindsided by a problem with safety?

Could you have avoided this experience if you had been paying attention to your blind spot with safety? Why or why not?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

Where has your pursuit of safety caused other people to resent you?

How have other people used safety against you?

What are some things about your blind spot that matter the most to you? How do you feel when something disrupts your blind spot?

What is it about your blind spot that you believe can't live without? Do you actually need that to survive? Why or why not?

Your Emotional Guidance System is the vehicle of your adversity; the vehicle of your adversity is your Emotional Guidance System.

Your Emotional Guidance System is the vehicle of your adversity. Time and again, when you try to navigate using your feelings and emotions, it has unexpected, unintended, and unwelcome consequences. When you allow yourself to experience the full range of emotions without interference or resistance, you manage to avoid most of the optional suffering in your life. You periodically check to see how other people perceive your behavior, especially your behaviors involving your feelings and emotions, and you clean up whatever messes you have made before they become bigger problems. When you pursue only pleasurable feelings and avoid or suppress anything that feels uncomfortable, your behaviors are disruptive and create unnecessary problems and challenges. You approach feelings and emotions from First Kingdom/Victim Consciousness and use force when you try to feel your feelings and express your emotions. This creates a counterforce that shows up as obstacles and adversity. You don't always see the connection between the cause and effect because there's often a delay and the adversity may not be directly related to your choices, but the adversity you experience is the Law of Attraction in action. You want to avoid suffering, sorrow, and adversity because you believe that without these problems, you won't suffer through negative, uncomfortable, or unpleasant feelings.

Feelings are just feelings: they can't hurt you because your authentic Self is invulnerable. But until you remember this truth, you try to avoid anything unpleasant or painful because you view those experiences as threatening. You believe negative feelings are caused by conditions in the outside world, but in fact, the conditions are the effect of your feelings. Feelings are how your Emotional Guidance System helps you to identify your current level of consciousness. This is important, because everything you experience is a match to that vibration. An unpleasant feeling warns you that you are tuned to a low vibration of consciousness. You can choose a better-feeling thought and tune to a higher level of consciousness, which will then create a new set of conditions. The challenge is that when you encounter a negative feeling, you may turn down the volume on your Emotional Guidance System rather than change the frequency, and this is the vehicle of your adversity. If you don't allow yourself to feel the negative feelings, you can't change direction. Rather than avoiding adversity, you head towards it at full speed.

You can learn how to navigate using your Emotional Guidance System by engaging with the vehicle of your adversity. Think of a few examples of situations where you have sabotaged yourself, created obstacles, or just unintentionally crossed a line or put your foot in your mouth. Focus on the smaller stories, because it will be easier for you to consider those objectively. Review the story of what happened, and your story of why you think it happened. Then go back and review it again, but this time, notice that the real source of the problem is how you handled your feelings and emotions. If you look carefully, you will discover that your relationship to your feelings and emotions is the common thread that connects almost every experience of sorrow and adversity in your life. You either didn't notice the negative feelings when you started down a particular road, or you ignored those feelings and didn't listen to their warning. By paying attention to your feelings and emotions and becoming more skilled with navigating using your Emotional Guidance System, you can limit how much you sabotage yourself. The more you are willing to feel your feelings and listen to your Emotional Guidance System, the more you avoid optional suffering and adversity.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your Emotional Guidance System and the vehicle of your adversity resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your Emotional Guidance System and the vehicle of your adversity resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

Choose an example of a time when your behavior or choices created problems for you. How did your pursuit of positive feelings and avoidance of negative feelings contribute to the difficulties?

What are some other examples where your pursuit of positive feelings and avoidance of negative feelings created challenges for you?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

Do you approach your Emotional Guidance System from lack consciousness? Do you see it as a limited resource that you have to compete for? Is that true? Why or why not?

What feelings do you usually experience with the vehicle of your adversity? When do you experience these feelings?

What feelings do you tend to avoid with the vehicle of your adversity? When do you experience these feelings?

On a scale of 1 to 10, with 10 being the most intense, how much do you feel your feelings with the vehicle of your adversity? What would happen if you turned up the volume?

Your Emotional Guidance System is your blind spot; your blind spot is your Emotional Guidance System.

Your Emotional Guidance System is your blind spot. It lurks in your unconscious, just outside of your field of vision, so you don't notice it until it's too late. Your behaviors and actions involving feelings and emotions create resentment in other people, and that resentment can turn friends into hidden enemies. When you allow yourself to experience the full range of emotions without interference or resistance, you check your blind spot regularly. You always proceed with caution when you feel your feelings, because it's better to be safe than sorry. You still make mistakes, but because you own your mistakes and apologize for them, you limit the amount of resentment others feel towards you. When you pursue only pleasurable feelings and avoid or suppress anything that feels uncomfortable, you ignore your blind spot and move full speed ahead. This works until it doesn't, and you're blindsided by a problem. A little more attention or a timely apology could have nipped it in the bud. On a personal level, when you avoid feeling your feelings, you are surrounded by hidden enemies. When you least expect it, they will trip you up, often using your feelings and emotions as a weapon against you. You would like to think that you are fully conscious of everything in your world because you believe that when you don't have a blind spot, you won't suffer through negative, uncomfortable, or unpleasant feelings.

Feelings are just feelings: they can't hurt you because your authentic Self is invulnerable. But until you remember this truth, you try to avoid anything unpleasant or painful because you view those experiences as threatening. You believe negative feelings are caused by conditions in the outside world, but in fact, the conditions are the effect of your feelings. Feelings are how your Emotional Guidance System helps you to identify your current level of consciousness. This is important, because everything you experience is a match to that vibration. An unpleasant feeling warns you that you are tuned to a low vibration of consciousness. You can choose a better-feeling thought and tune to a higher level of consciousness, which will then create a new set of conditions. The challenge is that your Emotional Guidance System is your blind spot. You keep the volume turned down on your feelings and emotions so you don't notice negative or uncomfortable feelings. But if you don't heed the warning of the negative feelings, you will be blindsided with problems you could have easily avoided.

You can learn how to navigate using your Emotional Guidance System by engaging with your blind spot. Because you don't normally see your blind spot, you have to make an extra effort to check it. You need to develop a habit of looking for feelings and emotions in your life, much like you have a habit of looking both ways before you cross the street—and for precisely the same reason. It's not that you don't notice your feelings. Rather it's that you don't see all of your feelings. You miss the edges and the fringes, and that's where your feelings and emotions cause problems for you. The negative feelings that you ignore are warning you that your behavior may be creating resentment in others and turning friends into hidden enemies. But with practice and attention, you can avoid being blindsided. The more you are willing to feel your feelings and listen to your Emotional Guidance System, the more conscious you are of your blind spot.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your Emotional Guidance System and your blind spot resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your Emotional Guidance System and your blind spot resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

What is an example of a time when you were blindsided by a problem with your feelings and emotions?

Could you have avoided this experience if you had been paying attention to your blind spot with your feelings and emotions? Why or why not?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

Where has your pursuit of feelings and emotions caused other people to resent you?

How have other people used your feelings and emotions against you?

What feelings do you usually experience with your blind spot? When do you experience these feelings?

What feelings do you tend to avoid with your blind spot? When do you experience these feelings?

On a scale of 1 to 10, with 10 being the most intense, how much do you feel your feelings with your blind spot? What would happen if you turned up the volume on your feelings?

The Moon, the Ruler of your Twelfth House in Houses

The house occupied by the Ruler of the Twelfth House shows where you sabotage yourself and where your unconscious behavior creates resentments and hidden enemies. Pay close attention to how you use the resources of this house, because in the hands of the Sun, the Ruler of your Twelfth House, those resources may create problems for you.

JOURNAL QUESTIONS & INSTRUCTIONS

Begin by reviewing the chapter in the video lesson on the Moon that explores the house that the Moon, the Ruler of your Twelfth House occupies. Then locate and read the description of the house occupied by the Moon, the Ruler of your Twelfth House. Now, go back and revisit each of the journal questions about how you experience the Moon as the ruler of your Twelfth House, and notice how the house the Moon occupies influences your understanding.

The Moon, the Ruler of the Twelfth House in the First House

With The Moon, the Ruler of the Twelfth House in your First House, you encounter your subjective safety needs, your Emotional Guidance System, the vehicle of your adversity, and your blind spot in your personality and outer appearance. The resources of the First House include your health, your happiness, your appearance, and your very identity. You will use your personal interests and happiness to manage your subjective safety needs, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. You will use your personal interests and happiness to experience your feelings and emotions, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. You will use your personal interests and happiness to sabotage yourself, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. And you will use your personal interests and happiness to check your blind spot, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your First House, affecting your avatar, your outer appearance, your happiness, and how much you enjoy your hobbies and interests. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your First House.

The Moon, the Ruler of the Twelfth House in the in the Second House

With The Moon, the Ruler of the Twelfth House in your Second House, you encounter your subjective safety needs, your Emotional Guidance System, the vehicle of your adversity, and your blind spot in your money and resources. The resources of the Second House include your money, your personal possessions, and the skills and talents you have that can be used to earn money. You will spend money and use your talents to manage your subjective safety needs. You will spend money and use your talents to experience your feelings and emotions. You will spend money and use your talents to sabotage yourself. And you will spend money and use your talents to check your blind spot. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Second House, specifically because they encourage you to spend your money, but they don't necessarily help you to earn more money or connect to the truth of your prosperity. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Second House.

The Moon, the Ruler of the Twelfth House in the in the Third House

With The Moon, the Ruler of the Twelfth House in your Third House, you encounter your subjective safety needs, your Emotional Guidance System, the vehicle of your adversity, and your blind spot in your comfort zone. The resources of your Third House are all local, close, and familiar. You can communicate to your network to ask for support, but you will only call people you already know and have worked with before. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to manage your subjective safety needs, and you rarely consider new options. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to experience your feelings and emotions, and you rarely consider new options. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to sabotage yourself, and you rarely consider new options. And rely on your familiar habits and local resources to check your blind spot, and you rarely consider new options. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Third House, creating changes to your comfort zone that make it less familiar and less comfortable, and forcing you to pay attention to your habits and routines. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Third House.

The Moon, the Ruler of the Twelfth House in the in the Fourth House

With The Moon, the Ruler of the Twelfth House in your Fourth House, you encounter your subjective safety needs, your Emotional Guidance System, the vehicle of your adversity, and your blind spot in your private life. The resources of the Fourth House include your private and personal life, your home, real estate, tradition, and family connections. You do not want to be noticed when you manage your subjective safety needs, because it's personal and private. You do not want to be noticed when you experience your feelings and emotions, because it's personal and private. You do not want to be noticed when you sabotage yourself, because it's personal and private. And you do not want to be noticed when you check your blind spot, because it's personal and private. Your pursuit of privacy may disrupt your Fourth House, shaking the very foundation of your life. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Fourth House.

The Moon, the Ruler of the Twelfth House in the in the Fifth House

With The Moon, the Ruler of the Twelfth House in your Fifth House, you encounter your subjective safety needs, your Emotional Guidance System, the vehicle of your adversity, and your blind spot in your creativity and fun. The resources of the Fifth House include games, gambling, entertainment, art, creativity, and all forms of amusement and recreation. You are willing to take creative risks to manage your subjective safety needs, and you expect to have fun in the process. You are willing to take creative risks to experience your feelings and emotions, and you expect to have fun in the process. You are willing to take creative risks to sabotage yourself, and you expect to have fun in the process. And you are willing to take creative risks to check your blind spot, and you expect to have fun in the process. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Fifth House, especially if you don't feel that you have been creative enough or if you're not having fun. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Fifth House.

The Moon, the Ruler of the Twelfth House in the in the Sixth House

With The Moon, the Ruler of the Twelfth House in your Sixth House, you encounter your subjective safety needs, your Emotional Guidance System, the vehicle of your adversity, and your blind spot in your job, your workplace environment, and your relationships with co-workers and employees. The resources of the Sixth House include hard work and selfless service. You expect to work hard to manage your subjective safety needs, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. You expect to work hard to experience your feelings and emotions, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. You expect to work hard to sabotage yourself, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. And you expect to work hard to check your blind spot, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Sixth House, especially because you are always looking for ways to lighten the workload, so you may try to hire someone to do the work for you, or failing that, you may create illness so you can call in sick. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Sixth House.

The Moon, the Ruler of the Twelfth House in the in the Seventh House

With The Moon, the Ruler of the Twelfth House in your Seventh House, you encounter your subjective safety needs, your Emotional Guidance System, the vehicle of your adversity, and your blind spot in your one-to-one relationships. The resources of the Seventh House appear to be other individuals because you project everything associated with planets in your Seventh House on other people and you don't recognize that those qualities live in you. You expect other individuals to manage your subjective safety needs for you and may blame them if they don't. You expect other individuals to experience your feelings and emotions for you and may blame them if they don't. You expect other individuals to sabotage yourself for you and may blame them if they don't. And you expect other individuals to check your blind spot for you and may blame them if they don't. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Seventh House by creating difficulties in your one-to-one relationships. And while the problems will appear to be about other people, they're really your own issues. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Seventh House.

The Moon, the Ruler of the Twelfth House in the in the Eighth House

With The Moon, the Ruler of the Twelfth House in your Eighth House, you encounter your subjective safety needs, your Emotional Guidance System, the vehicle of your adversity, and your blind spot in your debts and shared resources. The resources of the Eighth house are other people's money, values, and opinions. This money is available to you in the form of loans, investments, or simply credit card debt. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to manage your subjective safety needs. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to experience your feelings and emotions. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to sabotage yourself. And you will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to check your blind spot. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Eighth House because they will increase your awareness of your debt, both personal (what you owe other people) and financial (the money you owe to others). This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Eighth House.

The Moon, the Ruler of the Twelfth House in the in the Ninth House

With The Moon, the Ruler of the Twelfth House in your Ninth House, you encounter your subjective safety needs, your Emotional Guidance System, the vehicle of your adversity, and your blind spot in your danger zone. The resources of the Ninth House are all foreign, distant, new, unfamiliar, and unknown to you. They include experts and authorities that can offer wisdom and knowledge, such as teachers, religious leaders, lawyers, and doctors. You always require new information to manage your subjective safety needs because what you already know is not sufficient. You always require new information to experience your feelings and emotions because what you already know is not sufficient. You always require new information to sabotage yourself because what you already know is not sufficient. And you always require new information to check your blind spot because what you already know is not sufficient. These behaviors may cause disruption to your Ninth House because the new information you acquire may challenge and alter your beliefs. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Ninth House.

The Moon, the Ruler of the Twelfth House in the Tenth House

With The Moon, the Ruler of the Twelfth House in your Tenth House, you encounter your subjective safety needs, your Emotional Guidance System, the vehicle of your adversity, and your blind spot in your public and professional image. The resources of the Tenth House include your reputation, your public image, and the passwords to all of your social media accounts. You want to be famous for your ability to manage your subjective safety needs, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. You want to be famous for your ability to experience your feelings and emotions, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. You want to be famous for your ability to sabotage yourself, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. And you want to be famous for your ability to check your blind spot, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Tenth House and affect both your personal and your professional reputation. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Tenth House.

The Moon, the Ruler of the Twelfth House in the Eleventh House

With The Moon, the Ruler of the Twelfth House in your Eleventh House, you encounter your subjective safety needs, your Emotional Guidance System, the vehicle of your adversity, and your blind spot in your ambitions and aspirations. The resources of the Eleventh House are your benefactors: friends, colleagues, and teammates who are in a position to support you and help you to acquire the things you believe will make you happy. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to manage your subjective safety needs so you can acquire happiness. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to experience your feelings and emotions so you can acquire happiness. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to sabotage yourself so you can acquire happiness. And you depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to check your blind spot so you can acquire happiness. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Eleventh House and affect not only your ambitions and aspirations, but also the level of support you receive from your friends and benefactors. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Eleventh House.

The Moon, the Ruler of the Twelfth House in the Twelfth House

With The Moon, the Ruler of the Twelfth House in your Twelfth House you are unconscious of your subjective safety needs, your Emotional Guidance System, the vehicle of your adversity, and your blind spot. The Twelfth House is above the horizon, so everything about planets in the Twelfth House is visible to others, but it's all in your blind spot, so you're the last to know about it. The resources of the Twelfth House include your hidden motivations, your unconscious programming, your shadow self, and your personal demons. You are not conscious of what motivates you to manage your subjective safety needs, and it will have unexpected consequences. You are not conscious of what motivates you to experience your feelings and emotions, and it will have unexpected consequences. You are not conscious of what motivates you to sabotage yourself, and it will have unexpected consequences. And you are not conscious of what motivates you to check your blind spot, and it will have unexpected consequences. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Twelfth House, causing resentment and creating hidden enemies. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Twelfth House.