

Mars Rules the Fourth House

The Fourth House is your foundation. It is the rock upon which you build your life. It represents your home, both literally (land, buildings, and real estate) and metaphorically (your private life and personal sanctuary).

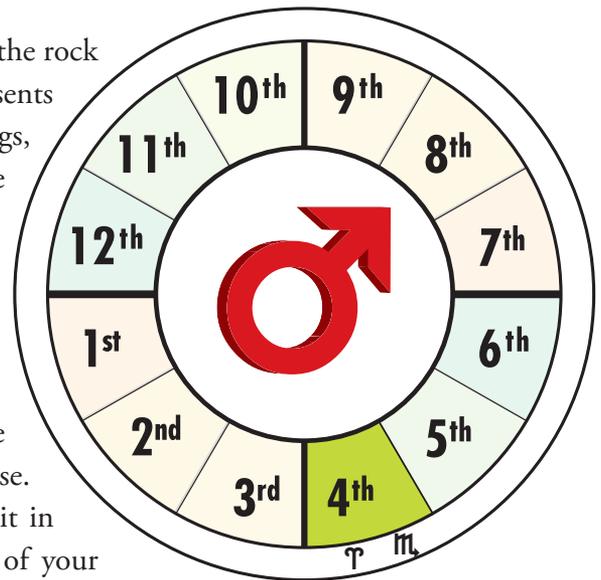

The Fourth House is your foundation.

Your foundation is the bedrock of your life. It's the part of your life that must be squared away before you can devote any time or energy to anything else. When something shakes your foundation, you feel it in every part of your life. It's an earthquake, and all of your structures will be disrupted by the shock waves. If your foundation is not solid, or the disruption peaks at the top of the Richter scale, the structures of your life can come tumbling down, leaving you surrounded by rubble. Nothing can protect you from "the big one" if it hits, but a solid, stable foundation can help you to withstand quakes of smaller magnitude. You may emerge bruised, and things may fall off your shelves, but if your foundation is stable, you can escape without significant structural damage to your life.

The planet that rules the Fourth House is the foundation of your life. All that you hope to be, do, express, or create builds on this foundation. The expression of the planet is what your foundation is really about, but it may not be what you recognize as your foundation. When you look at the story of your life and your "little r" reality, your life has an external foundation. It could be your health, your home, your job, your relationship, your children, your finances, or your creative expression (to name only a few examples). It may be obvious to you, or you may not have given it much thought. But whenever anything disrupts the foundation of your life, you know it. The alarm sounds, and you feel the aftershocks everywhere. Addressing that disruption becomes your top priority. Whatever the disruption appears to be about, it's really about an issue meeting the needs of the planet that rules your Fourth House.

The Fourth House is your sanctuary.

Traditionally, the Fourth House represents your home, but "home" doesn't capture the importance of the Fourth House. The Fourth House is more than a shelter or a place where you can store your stuff. The Fourth House is your sanctuary. It's the place where you can drop your defenses and be yourself without worrying about what anyone else thinks. Your sanctuary is where you go to rest, recover, and recharge your batteries. Your sanctuary is your sacred, private, personal space. You expect that what happens in your sanctuary will remain hidden from the world, known only to those who have earned the privilege of seeing you undefended, and who show you their undefended self in return. Your external sanctuary is your personal, private space. Unless you live alone, your sanctuary is likely to be a smaller part of your actual home, like your bedroom or office. The less privacy you have, the more critical it becomes that you protect and enjoy your internal sanctuary.

The planet that rules your Fourth House is your actual, internal sanctuary. When you meet the needs of that planet and maintain right relationship with it, you are able to meet your own needs and take care of yourself. You are able to find rest, protection, and nourishment, and recover from the demands of the world. Maintaining right relationship with this planet keeps you connected to your internal sanctuary. It's what allows you to recharge your batteries on the fly, even if you can't physically retreat from the world.

Mars Rules the Fourth House

Your ego is your foundation; your foundation is your ego.

Your "little s" self, the character you play in the story of your life, is the foundation of your life. All that you hope to be, do, express, or create builds on this foundation. When you are confident of your identity and don't need to prove yourself to others, your foundation is rock solid and unshakable. It creates stability in all parts of your life. But when you are unsure of yourself and have to defend your choices and prove that you are right, your foundation is weak and unstable. No matter how much progress you make in your life, even the smallest disruption brings everything crashing down like a house of cards. On a personal level, when you lack self-confidence, any challenge to your identity is a major crisis. It shakes your foundation, and you feel the aftershocks in every part of your life. You have to drop everything to address the crisis and stabilize your foundation, no matter how inconvenient that may be. You want to have a solid foundation for your life because you believe that will mean the structures in your life will survive a major earthquake. And when you don't have to worry that your life might come crashing down around you, other people won't challenge or attack you and you won't have to defend yourself.

Right Relationship with your ego gives you the experience of Power. You have unlimited self-confidence and you are secure in both the character you are playing in your life and in the quality of the performance that you're giving. But until you find this balance, you will over-identify with your character and believe that your identity is limited to your physical body. You fear the death of the ego/body, and this means you must always be right because the smallest mistake could result in your destruction. You must remember that the real you is the actor playing your character. No matter what happens to your character, the actor, your authentic Self, will survive. When you let go of the need to defend your character choices, you will discover it's okay to make mistakes, and that you don't always have to be right. This lesson is especially challenging for you with your foundation, because you identify personally with your foundation, and feel the need to protect and defend it.

You can learn about your "little s" self and the character you play by engaging with your foundation. Take a closer look at the story of your life and identify your external foundation. It could be your health, your home, your job, your relationships, your children, your finances, or your creative expression (to name only a few examples). You know something is a part of your foundation because when anything messes with that part of your life, the alarm bells go off and you feel the tremors everywhere. Now consider how your ego and your "little s" self relates to your external foundation. Begin to consider those parts of your life from the context of your ego, and explore how you can enhance your awareness of the character you play. Not only will this strengthen your actual foundation, but it will also protect the parts of your life that make up your external foundation. The more confident you are in your character and the less you have to prove, the more stable the foundation of your life will be.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your ego and your foundation resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your ego and your foundation resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

What are some examples of the things that make up your external foundation? What parts of your life (like your job, your home, your relationship, your money, your car, your cell phone, your computer, etc.) are of such fundamental importance to you that if anything disrupts them, the rest of your life doesn't function?

Choose an example of a part of your external foundation. How do you identify with (or as) that part of your life? What does it say about the character you play? Are you able to play your character without the crutch of your foundation? Why or why not?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

How do you experience your ego as the foundation of your life? What happens to your life when something disrupts your "little s" self?

How do you need to experience your “little s” self to feel like you have a stable foundation for your life?

When something disrupts your sense of self and shakes your foundation, how do you respond to the crisis? What do you do to stabilize your foundation?

What is it about your foundation that you feel the need to protect and defend the most?

How do you define or describe yourself in terms of your foundation?

Who would you be without your foundation? How would you know yourself?

Your ego is your sanctuary; your sanctuary is your ego.

Your “little s” self is your sanctuary. It’s your home, your private retreat where you go to rest, recover, and recharge your batteries. You want to embody your character because you expect it to give you relief and respite. As far as you’re concerned, your “little s” self is personal and private. When you are confident of your identity and don’t need to prove yourself to others, you always have access to your sanctuary and you can easily take care of your personal needs and your private life. You can balance your own personal needs with the demands of the world. But when you are unsure of yourself and have to defend your choices and prove that you are right, you never quite feel at home. You find it difficult to unplug from the world and take care of yourself. You do not have adequate protection from the stress and demands of your life. You feel ungrounded, unsettled, and unstable. On a personal level, when you lack self-confidence, it creates disruptions in your actual home and personal space that make it difficult for you to relax. These can range from the physical (clutter, disorder, damage) to the social (lack of privacy, conflict with the people you live with). You want to be able to retreat to your private sanctuary where you can hide from the world and focus on your personal needs because you believe when you are able to rest and recharge your batteries, other people won’t challenge or attack you and you won’t have to defend yourself.

Right Relationship with your ego gives you the experience of Power. You have unlimited self-confidence and you are secure in both the character you are playing in your life and in the quality of the performance that you’re giving. But until you find this balance, you will over-identify with your character and believe that your identity is limited to your physical body. You fear the death of the ego/body, and this means you must always be right because the smallest mistake could result in your destruction. You must remember that the real you is the actor playing your character. No matter what happens to your character, the actor, your authentic Self, will survive. When you let go of the need to defend your character choices, you will discover it’s okay to make mistakes, and that you don’t always have to be right. This lesson is especially challenging for you with your sanctuary, because you identify personally with your sanctuary, and feel the need to protect and defend it. You created your sanctuary as the embodiment of your ego and the character you play. When you spend time in your sanctuary, you rest and recharge because you reconnect with your ego and your character. Your sanctuary is where you can retreat from the audience and review your character’s motivations.

You can learn about your “little s” self and the character you play by engaging with your sanctuary. Begin by taking control of the physical aspects of your personal and private space. Clear out any clutter, and straighten things up. Decorate the space with things that you care about and that remind you that this is your space. It’s important that you look forward to spending time in your private space. Clarify the boundaries of your space and take charge of who you invite into your space and when. And while you’re doing this, become more conscious of how your ego and your “little s” self inhabits and expresses through your personal and private space. Everything about your sanctuary and your personal space is an expression of your character. Everything there has meaning to your character, and when you connect with your sanctuary, you can gain insight into your character and take your performance to the next level. The more confident you are in your character and the less you have to prove, the more you will be able to protect your privacy so you can rest and recharge your batteries.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your ego and your sanctuary resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your ego and your sanctuary resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn’t seem to apply to you and why?

Where do you look for your ego and your “little s” self in your personal and private space? How do you express the character you play through your belongings and decorations?

How is your experience of your “little s” self in your private life and your sanctuary different from how you experience it in the rest of your life?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

How does your ego help you to rest and recharge?

What are some examples of how a problem with your “little s” self and your ego makes it hard for you to rest or recharge?

Where do you need to experience your “little s” self in your private life and your sanctuary? Where is it lacking?

What is it about your sanctuary and your private life that you feel the need to protect and defend the most?

How do you define or describe yourself in terms of your sanctuary and your private life?

Who would you be without your sanctuary? How would you know yourself?

Your anger is your foundation; your foundation is your anger.

Anger is the foundation of your life. All that you hope to be, do, express, or create builds on this foundation. When you master the energy of anger and use that energy in conscious and constructive ways, your foundation is rock solid and unshakable. It creates stability in all parts of your life. But when you struggle with your anger by repressing it, projecting it, or lashing out with it, your foundation is weak and unstable. No matter how much progress you make in your life, even the smallest disruption brings everything crashing down like a house of cards. On a personal level, [when you fail to address your anger, any experience of the energy of anger is a major crisis. It shakes your foundation, and you feel the aftershocks in every part of your life. You have to drop everything to address the crisis and stabilize your foundation, no matter how inconvenient that may be. You want to have a solid foundation for your life because you believe that will mean the structures in your life will survive a major earthquake. And when you don't have to worry that your life might come crashing down around you, you will get what you want when you want it, and the world won't piss you off.

The energy of anger can connect you with an experience of Power, but first, you must separate the experience of anger from the story you have created about it. No matter what the appearance is in your reality, your anger is never about what it appears to be about. When you tap into the energy of anger, you must learn to drop the story and refrain from reacting (which would use force and only make the situation worse). Take a moment and drop every part of the story that is not a part of My Business, and then let go of your expectations. This is the most challenging for you with your foundation, because your foundation is an area where you have strong expectations and experience high levels of frustration. The more you try to control your foundation, the more anger you will experience, and directing the energy of your anger at your foundation only makes the situation worse.

You can begin to master your anger by engaging with your foundation. Take a closer look at the story of your life and identify your external foundation. It could be your health, your home, your job, your relationships, your children, your finances, or your creative expression (to name only a few examples). You know something is a part of your foundation because when anything messes with that part of your life, the alarm bells go off and you feel the tremors everywhere. Now consider how anger relates to your external foundation. You may not recognize the energy of anger because it won't always reach the level of intensity you associate with the emotion of anger. Anytime you feel impatient, frustrated, defensive, annoyed, or stressed, you are experiencing the energy of anger. Begin to consider those parts of your life from the context of anger, and explore how you can enhance your awareness of anger and how you choose to channel the energy of anger. Notice how you experience anger anytime something disrupts a part of your foundation, and begin to use that energy creatively. Not only will this strengthen your actual foundation, but it will also protect the parts of your life that make up your external foundation. The more you learn to master your anger, the more stable the foundation of your life will be.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your anger and your foundation resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your anger and your foundation resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

What are some examples of the things that make up your external foundation? What parts of your life (like your job, your home, your relationship, your money, your car, your cell phone, your computer, etc.) are of such fundamental importance to you that if anything disrupts them, the rest of your life doesn't function?

Consider an example of a part of your foundation. How does that part of your life connect to your anger? What is your immediate reaction when something messes with that part of your life? How do you feel when that part of your life doesn't operate as expected? Do you recognize those feelings as the energy of anger? Why or why not?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

How do you experience the energy of anger as the foundation of your life? What happens to your life when something triggers your anger?

How do you need to experience anger to feel like you have a stable foundation for your life?

When something makes you angry and shakes your foundation, how do you respond to the crisis? What do you do to stabilize your foundation?

What are some examples of how your foundation makes you angry, frustrated, or resentful?

How do you use your foundation to express your anger?

How do you express your anger at your foundation? How does that affect the situation?

Your anger is your sanctuary; your sanctuary is your anger

Anger is your sanctuary. It's your home, your private retreat where you go to rest, recover, and recharge your batteries. You want to experience the energy of anger because you expect it to give you relief and respite. As far as you're concerned, anger is personal and private. When you master the energy of anger and use that energy in conscious and constructive ways, you always have access to your sanctuary and you can easily take care of your personal needs and your private life. You can balance your own personal needs with the demands of the world. But when you struggle with your anger by repressing it, projecting it, or lashing out with it, you never quite feel at home. You find it difficult to unplug from the world and take care of yourself. You do not have adequate protection from the stress and demands of your life. You feel ungrounded, unsettled, and unstable. On a personal level, when you fail to address your anger, it creates disruptions in your actual home and personal space that make it difficult for you to relax. These can range from the physical (clutter, disorder, damage) to the social (lack of privacy, conflict with the people you live with). You want to be able to retreat to your private sanctuary where you can hide from the world and focus on your personal needs because you believe when you are able to rest and recharge your batteries, you will get what you want when you want it, and the world won't piss you off.

The energy of anger can connect you with an experience of Power, but first, you must separate the experience of anger from the story you have created about it. No matter what the appearance is in your reality, your anger is never about what it appears to be about. When you tap into the energy of anger, you must learn to drop the story and refrain from reacting (which would use force and only make the situation worse). Take a moment and drop every part of the story that is not a part of My Business, and then let go of your expectations. This is the most challenging for you with your sanctuary, because your sanctuary is an area where you have strong expectations and experience high levels of frustration. The more you try to control your sanctuary, the more anger you will experience, and directing the energy of your anger at your sanctuary only makes the situation worse.

You can begin to master your anger by engaging with your sanctuary. Begin by taking control of the physical aspects of your personal and private space. Clear out any clutter, and straighten things up. Decorate the space with things that you care about and that remind you that this is your space. It's important that you look forward to spending time in your private space. Clarify the boundaries of your space and take charge of who you invite into your space and when. And while you're doing this, become more conscious of how anger inhabits and expresses through your personal and private space. You may not recognize the energy of anger because it won't always reach the level of intensity you associate with the emotion of anger. Anytime you feel impatient, frustrated, defensive, annoyed, or stressed, you are experiencing the energy of anger. And you are more willing to let yourself experience this energy in your sanctuary than you are in any other part of your life. This is where you will begin to learn to channel the energy of your anger in constructive and creative ways. The more you learn to master your anger, the more you will be able to protect your privacy so you can rest and recharge your batteries.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your anger and your sanctuary resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your anger and your sanctuary resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

Where do you look for anger in your personal and private space? How do you express the energy of anger through your belongings and decorations?

How is your experience of anger in your private life and your sanctuary different from how you experience it in the rest of your life?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

How does anger help you to rest and recharge?

What are some examples of how a problem with how you handle the energy of anger makes it hard for you to rest or recharge?

Where do you need to experience the energy of anger in your private life and your sanctuary? Where is it lacking?

What are some examples of how your sanctuary and your private life makes you angry, frustrated, or resentful?

How do you use your sanctuary to express your anger?

How do you express your anger at your sanctuary and your private life? How does that affect the situation?

Mars, the Ruler of your Fourth House in Houses

The house occupied by the ruler of the Fourth House shows where you most rely on your foundation. The resources available in this house are essential to you, and they take priority. These resources keep your foundation strong and stable. This is also the house where you are the most conscious of the influence and expectations of your parents, and of your father in particular.

JOURNAL QUESTIONS & INSTRUCTIONS

Begin by reviewing the chapter in the video lesson on Mars that explores the house that Mars, the Ruler of your Fourth House occupies. Then locate and read the description of the house occupied by Mars, the Ruler of your Fourth House. Now, go back and revisit each of the journal questions about how you experience Mars as the ruler of your Fourth House, and notice how the house Mars occupies influences your understanding.

Mars, the Ruler of the Fourth House in the First House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Fourth House in your First House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your foundation, and your sanctuary in your personality and outer appearance. The resources of the First House include your health, your happiness, your appearance, and your very identity. You will use your personal interests and happiness to be confident of who you think you are, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. You will use your personal interests and happiness to channel the energy of anger constructively, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. You will use your personal interests and happiness to create a stable foundation for your life, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. And you will use your personal interests and happiness to protect your private sanctuary so you can rest and recharge your batteries, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your First House, affecting your avatar, your outer appearance, your happiness, and how much you enjoy your hobbies and interests. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your First House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Fourth House in the in the Second House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Fourth House in your Second House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your foundation, and your sanctuary in your money and resources. The resources of the Second House include your money, your personal possessions, and the skills and talents you have that can be used to earn money. You will spend money and use your talents to be confident of who you think you are. You will spend money and use your talents to channel the energy of anger constructively. You will spend money and use your talents to create a stable foundation for your life. And you will spend money and use your talents to protect your private sanctuary so you can rest and recharge your batteries. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Second House, specifically because they encourage you to spend your money, but they don't necessarily help you to earn more money or connect to the truth of your prosperity. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Second House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Fourth House in the in the Third House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Fourth House in your Third House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your foundation, and your sanctuary in your comfort zone. The resources of your Third House are all local, close, and familiar. You can communicate to your network to ask for support, but you will only call people you already know and have worked with before. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to be confident of who you think you are, and you rarely consider new options. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to channel the energy of anger constructively, and you rarely consider new options. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to create a stable foundation for your life, and you rarely consider new options. And rely on your familiar habits and local resources to protect your private sanctuary so you can rest and recharge your batteries, and you rarely consider new options. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Third House, creating changes to your comfort zone that make it less familiar and less comfortable, and forcing you to pay attention to your habits and routines. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Third House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Fourth House in the in the Fourth House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Fourth House in your Fourth House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your foundation, and your sanctuary in your private life. The resources of the Fourth House include your private and personal life, your sanctuary, real estate, tradition, and family connections. You do not want to be noticed when you be confident of who you think you are, because it's personal and private. You do not want to be noticed when you channel the energy of anger constructively, because it's personal and private. You do not want to be noticed when you create a stable foundation for your life, because it's personal and private. And you do not want to be noticed when you protect your private sanctuary so you can rest and recharge your batteries, because it's personal and private. Your pursuit of privacy may disrupt your Fourth House, shaking the very foundation of your life. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Fourth House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Fourth House in the in the Fifth House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Fourth House in your Fifth House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your foundation, and your sanctuary in your creativity and fun. The resources of the Fifth House include games, gambling, entertainment, art, creativity, and all forms of amusement and recreation. You are willing to take creative risks to be confident of who you think you are, and you expect to have fun in the process. You are willing to take creative risks to channel the energy of anger constructively, and you expect to have fun in the process. You are willing to take creative risks to create a stable foundation for your life, and you expect to have fun in the process. And you are willing to take creative risks to protect your private sanctuary so you can rest and recharge your batteries, and you expect to have fun in the process. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Fifth House, especially if you don't feel that you have been creative enough or if you're not having fun. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Fifth House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Fourth House in the in the Sixth House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Fourth House in your Sixth House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your foundation, and your sanctuary in your job, your workplace environment, and your relationships with co-workers and employees. The resources of the Sixth House include hard work and selfless service. You expect to work hard to be confident of who you think you are, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. You expect to work hard to channel the energy of anger constructively, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. You expect to work hard to create a stable foundation for your life, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. And you expect to work hard to protect your private sanctuary so you can rest and recharge your batteries, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Sixth House, especially because you are always looking for ways to lighten the workload, so you may try to hire someone to do the work for you, or failing that, you may create illness so you can call in sick. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Sixth House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Fourth House in the in the Seventh House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Fourth House in your Seventh House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your foundation, and your sanctuary in your one-to-one relationships. The resources of the Seventh House appear to be other individuals because you project everything associated with planets in your Seventh House on other people and you don't recognize that those qualities live in you. You expect other individuals to be confident of who you think you are for you and may blame them if they don't. You expect other individuals to channel the energy of anger constructively for you and may blame them if they don't. You expect other individuals to create a stable foundation for your life for you and may blame them if they don't. And you expect other individuals to protect your private sanctuary so you can rest and recharge your batteries for you and may blame them if they don't. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Seventh House by creating difficulties in your one-to-one relationships. And while the problems will appear to be about other people, they're really your own issues. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Seventh House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Fourth House in the in the Eighth House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Fourth House in your Eighth House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your foundation, and your sanctuary in your debts and shared resources. The resources of the Eighth house are other people's money, values, and opinions. This money is available to you in the form of loans, investments, or simply credit card debt. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to be confident of who you think you are. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to channel the energy of anger constructively. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to create a stable foundation for your life. And you will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to protect your private sanctuary so you can rest and recharge your batteries. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Eighth House because they will increase your awareness of your debt, both personal (what you owe other people) and financial (the money you owe to others). This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Eighth House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Fourth House in the in the Ninth House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Fourth House in your Ninth House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your foundation, and your sanctuary in your danger zone. The resources of the Ninth House are all foreign, distant, new, unfamiliar, and unknown to you. They include experts and authorities that can offer wisdom and knowledge, such as teachers, religious leaders, lawyers, and doctors. You always require new information to be confident of who you think you are because what you already know is not sufficient. You always require new information to channel the energy of anger constructively because what you already know is not sufficient. You always require new information to create a stable foundation for your life because what you already know is not sufficient. And you always require new information to protect your private sanctuary so you can rest and recharge your batteries because what you already know is not sufficient. These behaviors may cause disruption to your Ninth House because the new information you acquire may challenge and alter your beliefs. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Ninth House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Fourth House in the Tenth House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Fourth House in your Tenth House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your foundation, and your sanctuary in your public and professional image. The resources of the Tenth House include your reputation, your public image, and the passwords to all of your social media accounts. You want to be famous for your ability to be confident of who you think you are, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. You want to be famous for your ability to channel the energy of anger constructively, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. You want to be famous for your ability to create a stable foundation for your life, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. And you want to be famous for your ability to protect your private sanctuary so you can rest and recharge your batteries, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Tenth House and affect both your personal and your professional reputation. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Tenth House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Fourth House in the Eleventh House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Fourth House in your Eleventh House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your foundation, and your sanctuary in your ambitions and aspirations. The resources of the Eleventh House are your benefactors: friends, colleagues, and teammates who are in a position to support you and help you to acquire the things you believe will make you happy. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to be confident of who you think you are so you can acquire happiness. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to channel the energy of anger constructively so you can acquire happiness. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to create a stable foundation for your life so you can acquire happiness. And you depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to protect your private sanctuary so you can rest and recharge your batteries so you can acquire happiness. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Eleventh House and affect not only your ambitions and aspirations, but also the level of support you receive from your friends and benefactors. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Eleventh House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Fourth House in the Twelfth House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Fourth House in your Twelfth House you are unconscious of your ego, your anger, your foundation, and your sanctuary. The Twelfth House is above the horizon, so everything about planets in the Twelfth House is visible to others, but it's all in your blind spot, so you're the last to know about it. The resources of the Twelfth House include your hidden motivations, your unconscious programming, your shadow self, and your personal demons. You are not conscious of what motivates you to be confident of who you think you are, and it will have unexpected consequences. You are not conscious of what motivates you to channel the energy of anger constructively, and it will have unexpected consequences. You are not conscious of what motivates you to create a stable foundation for your life, and it will have unexpected consequences. And you are not conscious of what motivates you to protect your private sanctuary so you can rest and recharge your batteries, and it will have unexpected consequences. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Twelfth House, causing resentment and creating hidden enemies. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Twelfth House.