

Mars Rules the Ninth House

The Ninth House relates to everything that is foreign, distant, and unfamiliar. It's the house of religion, and by extension, it's become the house of wisdom and higher knowledge. As such, it relates to teachers, clergy, lawyers, and other experts, the guardians of wisdom, and the representatives of higher authority. Specifically, the Ninth House relates to your attitudes and expectations of these people and what they represent to you.

The Ninth House is your danger zone.

The Ninth House is your danger zone. Meeting the needs of the planet that rules your Ninth House always involves venturing into the unknown. Your Ninth House exists beyond the limits of your comfort zone, and because it's unknown and unfamiliar, it's always a little bit unsafe. Your danger zone has a geographical element: it includes distant travel to unfamiliar places, and cross-cultural experiences. But mostly, the Ninth House is full of surprises. You have no reference for it, and you don't know what to expect. It's a blank page. Everything about the Ninth House is new, and everything about it expands your awareness and your worldview. This can be enticing and exciting, but it's still potentially dangerous, which is why engaging with your Ninth House always makes withdrawals from your Safety Need Account.

Balance, as always, is the key. When you encounter your Ninth House, you have no frame of reference, and the only way you can understand it is to create a reference for it. The more time you spend in the Ninth House, the more familiar it becomes, and once it becomes familiar, it's no longer new (or dangerous). A part of your Ninth House danger zone has moved to your Third House comfort zone.

The planet that rules your Ninth House is your danger zone. Every time you express this planet or try to meet the needs of it, you have to go beyond what you already know and discover something new. You don't have to reinvent the wheel every time. You can develop mastery with the ruler of your Ninth House. But you are always conscious that however much you know about that Universal Puzzle Piece, there is always more to learn. And each time you access or express the needs of the ruler of your Ninth House you need at least the spark of something new to ignite the fire.

The Ninth House is your beliefs.

The Ninth House is your beliefs. Not only do you believe in the expression and the needs of the planet that rules your Ninth House, but those needs—that Universal Puzzle Piece—influence what you choose to believe and how you create those beliefs. Beliefs shape your “little r” reality, so they’re quite important. Beliefs influence your choices, and beliefs influence your expectations. And beliefs, like reality, have nothing to do with truth. You can believe in something and make it real, but if that belief lacks truth and can’t be supported, it won’t make you happy.

Critical thinking is one of the most important tools of the Ninth House. Critical thinking helps you to question and understand why you believe the things that you believe. It can’t determine the level of truth behind a belief, but it can at least provide objective, rational, logical justification for the belief. Most of your beliefs originate with experts and authorities. Your parents program you with the basic operating system of your beliefs, and as you move through life, you accept the ideas of your teachers, religious leaders, and other experts such as doctors and scientists. You adopt beliefs because you trust the expert, and at least at the time, you lack the tools to question and validate the belief for yourself. But you must be willing to question your beliefs, no matter how long you’ve held them. Your understanding of reality changes as you acquire new information and experiences. It’s important that your beliefs support you rather than hinder you. And remember: You get to choose what you believe.

Mars Rules the Ninth House

Your ego is your danger zone; your danger zone is your ego.

Your ego is your danger zone. Performing as the character of your “little s” self always involves venturing into the unknown. No matter how much prior experience you have with your “little s” self, each time you encounter it, you expect something new and different. This lack of familiarity is the danger in your danger zone: because it’s new, it’s always a little bit unsafe. When you are confident of your identity and don’t need to prove yourself to others, you are eager to explore the unknown and expand your horizons. You approach each new experience with an open mind, knowing that each new idea or concept introduces new possibilities into your life. You welcome any opportunity to try something new, to pursue adventure, and to break out of your familiar routine and your comfort zone. But when you are unsure of yourself and have to defend your choices and prove that you are right, you fear the unknown, and are reluctant to explore too far beyond the familiar. You want adventure and excitement so long as there’s no actual risk. On a personal level, when you lack self-confidence, you don’t even notice that you rarely leave your comfort zone and instead live your life within a bubble. Everything you experience is filtered, sanitized, pre-digested, and guaranteed not to challenge or upset you in any meaningful way. You choose the Las Vegas experience of Paris over the real thing, and what's worse, you may not care about the difference. You want the courage to explore the unknown because when you expand your worldview, you have a better understanding of your place in the Universe. And you believe that when you know where you belong in the Universe, other people won't challenge or attack you and you won't have to defend yourself.

Right Relationship with your ego gives you the experience of Power. You have unlimited self-confidence and you are secure in both the character you are playing in your life and in the quality of the performance that you're giving. But until you find this balance, you will over-identify with your character and believe that your identity is limited to your physical body. You fear the death of the ego/body, and this means you must always be right because the smallest mistake could result in your destruction. You must remember that the real you is the actor playing your character. No matter what happens to your character, the actor, your authentic Self, will survive. When you let go of the need to defend your character choices, you will discover it's okay to make mistakes, and that you don't always have to be right. This lesson is especially challenging for you with your danger zone, because you identify personally with your danger zone, and feel the need to protect and defend it. You must make it clear to the world that you can't be expected to know how to behave or to be responsible for knowing about anything in your danger zone. Your character does not belong there, and it's out of bounds. But if you never venture into the unknown, you can never learn about your character.

You can learn about your "little s" self and the character you play by engaging with your danger zone. Begin by considering your attitudes towards your danger zone. Notice how you approach the unknown and how you feel when you encounter something new or unfamiliar. It probably falls somewhere on the spectrum that runs between fear and excitement. Now consider your encounters with the unknown from the perspective of your "little s" self. The next time you step into your danger zone, take your "little s" self with you as your guide, and notice how your experience of the unknown changes. View it as an opportunity for your character to improvise and to grow. What you learn in your danger zone contributes to your self-confidence. This is how you can shift the needle away from fear and towards excitement. And you can do this every time you encounter something new in any part of your life. The more confident you are in your character and the less you have to prove, the more you welcome new and unfamiliar experiences.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

---

What part of the description of your ego and your danger zone resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your ego and your danger zone resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

Take a few moments and consider your most recent experiences of your “little s” self. What did you learn about it that you didn’t know before? How far did you have to venture into your danger zone to learn that, and how much time did you spend in the unknown?

Are you willing to explore your danger zone to learn more about the character of your “little s” self? Why or why not?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

---

Where does your danger zone begin with your ego? What are the limits of what you know, and what is it that you don’t yet know or understand?

How do you approach your danger zone with your ego? Do you jump into the middle of it or do you test the waters cautiously and then retreat?

What is it about your danger zone that you feel the need to protect and defend?

How do you define or describe yourself in terms of danger zone?

Who would you be without danger zone? How would you know yourself?

Your ego is your beliefs; your beliefs are your ego.

Your ego is your beliefs. Not only do you believe in your “little s” self, but the character you portray also influences what you choose to believe and how you create those beliefs. Experts and authorities play an important role in how you create your beliefs. You are inclined to look to experts and authorities to show you how to embody your character with confidence. When you are confident of your identity and don’t need to prove yourself to others, you are always willing to question and test your beliefs. You embrace critical thinking and you appreciate that each fact you accept is only true within a given context. New information can cause you to change your position and adjust your beliefs. But when you are unsure of yourself and have to defend your choices and prove that you are right, you cling to your beliefs and are unwilling to question them. You listen to experts and authorities because they validate your current positions and support your arguments, not because they offer objective truth or raise important questions. On a personal level, when you lack self-confidence, you become susceptible to all forms of propaganda and misinformation. You value emotion and bias over logic and reason. You seal yourself inside an air-tight bubble so that no objective truth can ever cause you to question your reality. Since you have no way of knowing if your beliefs are true, you call on experts and authorities to support your arguments and convince others that your beliefs are sound. You believe that when nothing challenges your beliefs, other people won’t challenge or attack you and you won’t have to defend yourself.

Right Relationship with your ego gives you the experience of Power. You have unlimited self-confidence and you are secure in both the character you are playing in your life and in the quality of the performance that you're giving. But until you find this balance, you will over-identify with your character and believe that your identity is limited to your physical body. You fear the death of the ego/body, and this means you must always be right because the smallest mistake could result in your destruction. You must remember that the real you is the actor playing your character. No matter what happens to your character, the actor, your authentic Self, will survive. When you let go of the need to defend your character choices, you will discover it's okay to make mistakes, and that you don't always have to be right. This lesson is especially challenging for you with your beliefs, because you identify personally with your beliefs, and feel the need to protect and defend them. You define your personal sense of identity through your beliefs, and you take it personally if anyone challenges or questions your beliefs. If your beliefs lack truth, you won't be able to support them, and you also won't be able to be confident in the character of your "little s" self.

You can learn about your "little s" self and the character you play by engaging with your beliefs. Choose a specific belief and begin by uncovering the origin of that belief. Identify when you first encountered the idea, and who the expert or authority was that presented it to you. Take a few moments to question the belief and determine if it still serves you. If adhering to that belief does not contribute to your overall happiness, consider abandoning it. Finally, explore how the belief relates to the character of your "little s" self. If the belief doesn't help you to know the truth of your ego and to become more skilled at playing the role of your "little s" self with confidence, drop it and choose a new belief. Remember that beliefs are real, but they're not automatically true. If your beliefs lack truth, they won't make you happy, and you can't support them. The more confident you are in your character and the less you have to prove, the more you can support your beliefs.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your ego and your beliefs resonated the most with you?

Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your ego and your beliefs resonated the least with you?

What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

What are some of your beliefs about your ego and your "little s" self? Where did those beliefs come from? How long have you carried them?

Choose one example of a belief you have about your ego and your "little s" self. Does that belief support you or contribute to your happiness? If not, are you willing to drop it and replace it with one that does? Why or why not?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

---

Where do you turn for advice about your ego? Who are the experts and authorities that have the answers you need?

How do you use your ego to choose your beliefs? How do you use your ego to question your beliefs?

What is it about your beliefs that you feel the need to protect and defend the most?

How do you define or describe yourself in terms of your beliefs?

Who would you be without your beliefs? How would you know yourself?

Your anger is your danger zone; your danger zone is your anger.

Anger is your danger zone. Channeling the energy of anger always involves venturing into the unknown. No matter how much prior experience you have with anger, each time you encounter it, you expect something new and different. This lack of familiarity is the danger in your danger zone: because it's new, it's always a little bit unsafe. When you master the energy of anger and use that energy in conscious and constructive ways, you are eager to explore the unknown and expand your horizons. You approach each new experience with an open mind, knowing that each new idea or concept introduces new possibilities into your life. You welcome any opportunity to try something new, to pursue adventure, and to break out of your familiar routine and your comfort zone. But when you struggle with your anger by repressing it, projecting it, or lashing out with it, you fear the unknown, and are reluctant to explore too far beyond the familiar. You want adventure and excitement so long as there's no actual risk. On a personal level, when you fail to address your anger, you don't even notice that you rarely leave your comfort zone and instead live your life within a bubble. Everything you experience is filtered, sanitized, pre-digested, and guaranteed not to challenge or upset you in any meaningful way. You choose the Las Vegas experience of Paris over the real thing, and what's worse, you may not care about the difference. You want the courage to explore the unknown because when you expand your worldview, you have a better understanding of your place in the Universe. And you believe that when you know where you belong in the Universe, you will get what you want when you want it, and the world won't piss you off.

The energy of anger can connect you with an experience of Power, but first, you must separate the experience of anger from the story you have created about it. No matter what the appearance is in your reality, your anger is never about what it appears to be about. When you tap into the energy of anger, you must learn to drop the story and refrain from reacting (which would use force and only make the situation worse). Take a moment and drop every part of the story that is not a part of My Business, and then let go of your expectations. This is the most challenging for you with your danger zone, because your danger zone is an area where you have strong expectations and experience high levels of frustration. The more you try to control your danger zone, the more anger you will experience, and directing the energy of your anger at your danger zone only makes the situation worse. You are uncomfortable with the vast potential of the energy of your anger. It's appropriate and healthy to approach anger with caution because, like fire, it can be unpredictable and destructive. But there is no need to fear or avoid your anger once you learn to master it.

You can begin to master your anger by engaging with your danger zone. Begin by considering your attitudes towards your danger zone. Notice how you approach the unknown and how you feel when you encounter something new or unfamiliar. It probably falls somewhere on the spectrum that runs between fear and excitement. Now consider your encounters with the unknown from the perspective of anger. You may not recognize the energy of anger because it won't always reach the level of intensity you associate with the emotion of anger. Anytime you feel impatient, frustrated, defensive, annoyed, or stressed, you are experiencing the energy of anger. The next time you step into your danger zone, take the energy of anger with you as your guide, and notice how your experience of the unknown changes. Remember that this energy is neutral, and it's not about what it appears to be about. You can tap into the energy of your anger in your danger zone and then return to your comfort zone where you can use it consciously and creatively. This is how you can shift the needle away from fear and towards excitement. And you can do this every time you encounter something new in any part of your life. The more you learn to master your anger, the more you welcome new and unfamiliar experiences.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

---

What part of the description of your anger and your danger zone resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your anger and your danger zone resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

Take a few moments and consider your most recent experiences of anger. What did you learn about it that you didn't know before? How far did you have to venture into your danger zone to learn that, and how much time did you spend in the unknown?

Are you willing to explore your danger zone to learn more about anger? Why or why not?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

---

Where does your danger zone begin with anger? What are the limits of what you know, and what is it that you don't yet know or understand?

How do you approach your danger zone with anger? Do you jump into the middle of it or do you test the waters cautiously and then retreat?

What are some examples of how your danger zone makes you angry, frustrated, or resentful?

How do you use your danger zone to express your anger?

How do you express your anger at your danger zone? How does that affect the situation?

Your anger is your beliefs; your beliefs are your anger.

Anger is your beliefs. Not only do you believe in anger, but anger also influences what you choose to believe and how you create those beliefs. Experts and authorities play an important role in how you create your beliefs. You are inclined to look to experts and authorities to show you how to channel the energy of anger in constructive ways. When you master the energy of anger and use that energy in conscious and constructive ways, you are always willing to question and test your beliefs. You embrace critical thinking and you appreciate that each fact you accept is only true within a given context. New information can cause you to change your position and adjust your beliefs. But when you struggle with your anger by repressing it, projecting it, or lashing out with it, you cling to your beliefs and are unwilling to question them. You listen to experts and authorities because they validate your current positions and support your arguments, not because they offer objective truth or raise important questions. On a personal level, when you fail to address your anger, you become susceptible to all forms of propaganda and misinformation. You value emotion and bias over logic and reason. You seal yourself inside an air-tight bubble so that no objective truth can ever cause you to question your reality. Since you have no way of knowing if your beliefs are true, you call on experts and authorities to support your arguments and convince others that your beliefs are sound. You believe that when nothing challenges your beliefs, you will get what you want when you want it, and the world won't piss you off.

The energy of anger can connect you with an experience of Power, but first, you must separate the experience of anger from the story you have created about it. No matter what the appearance is in your reality, your anger is never about what it appears to be about. When you tap into the energy of anger, you must learn to drop the story and refrain from reacting (which would use force and only make the situation worse). Take a moment and drop every part of the story that is not a part of My Business, and then let go of your expectations. This is the most challenging for you with your beliefs, because your beliefs are where you have strong expectations and experience high levels of frustration. The more you try to control your beliefs, the more anger you will experience, and directing the energy of your anger at your beliefs only makes the situation worse. Your beliefs about anger limit your ability to access and use the energy of your anger. And the rest of your beliefs are the primary source of your anger.

You can begin to master your anger by engaging with your beliefs. Choose a specific belief and begin by uncovering the origin of that belief. Identify when you first encountered the idea, and who the expert or authority was that presented it to you. Take a few moments to question the belief and determine if it still serves you. If adhering to that belief does not contribute to your overall happiness, consider abandoning it. Finally, explore how the belief relates to anger for you. You may not recognize the energy of anger because it won't always reach the level of intensity you associate with the emotion of anger. Anytime you feel impatient, frustrated, defensive, annoyed, or stressed, you are experiencing the energy of anger. Notice how much that belief connects you to the energy of your anger, and then consider if you need to experience that level of anger in your life right now. If you are not able to effectively channel the energy of that anger in constructive ways, drop the belief and choose a new belief that doesn't create as much anger for you. The more your beliefs align with the truth, the less anger they generate. And the more you learn to master your anger, the more you can support your beliefs.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

---

What part of the description of your anger and your beliefs resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your anger and your beliefs resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

What are some of your beliefs about anger? Where did those beliefs come from? How long have you carried them?

Choose one example of a belief you have about anger. Does that belief support you or contribute to your happiness? If not, are you willing to drop it and replace it with one that does? Why or why not?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

---

Where do you turn for advice about anger? Who are the experts and authorities that have the answers you need?

How do you use anger to choose your beliefs? How do you use anger to question your beliefs?

What are some examples of how beliefs makes you angry, frustrated, or resentful?

How do you use beliefs to express your anger?

How do you express your anger at beliefs? How does that affect the situation?

Mars, the Ruler of your Ninth House in Houses

The house occupied by the Ruler of the Ninth House is your unfamiliar environment. This is where you rely on expert advice and guidance, and where you pursue higher knowledge and understanding. No matter how familiar the affairs and resources of this house are, you can always find something new and surprising about them.

JOURNAL QUESTIONS & INSTRUCTIONS

Begin by reviewing the chapter in the video lesson on Mars that explores the house that Mars, the Ruler of your Ninth House occupies. Then locate and read the description of the house occupied by Mars, the Ruler of your Ninth House. Now, go back and revisit each of the journal questions about how you experience Mars as the ruler of your Ninth House, and notice how the house Mars occupies influences your understanding.

Mars, the Ruler of the Ninth House in the First House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Ninth House in your First House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your danger zone, and your beliefs in your personality and outer appearance. The resources of the First House include your health, your happiness, your appearance, and your very identity. You will use your personal interests and happiness to be confident of who you think you are, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. You will use your personal interests and happiness to channel the energy of anger constructively, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. You will use your personal interests and happiness to venture into the unknown to acquire new information, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. And you will use your personal interests and happiness to support and defend your beliefs, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your First House, affecting your avatar, your outer appearance, your happiness, and how much you enjoy your hobbies and interests. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your First House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Ninth House in the in the Second House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Ninth House in your Second House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your danger zone, and your beliefs in your money and resources. The resources of the Second House include your money, your personal possessions, and the skills and talents you have that can be used to earn money. You will spend money and use your talents to be confident of who you think you are. You will spend money and use your talents to channel the energy of anger constructively. You will spend money and use your talents to venture into the unknown to acquire new information. And you will spend money and use your talents to support and defend your beliefs. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Second House, specifically because they encourage you to spend your money, but they don't necessarily help you to earn more money or connect to the truth of your prosperity. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Second House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Ninth House in the in the Third House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Ninth House in your Third House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your danger zone, and your beliefs in your comfort zone. The resources of your Third House are all local, close, and familiar. You can communicate to your network to ask for support, but you will only call people you already know and have worked with before. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to be confident of who you think you are, and you rarely consider new options. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to channel the energy of anger constructively, and you rarely consider new options. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to venture into the unknown to acquire new information, and you rarely consider new options. And rely on your familiar habits and local resources to support and defend your beliefs, and you rarely consider new options. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Third House, creating changes to your comfort zone that make it less familiar and less comfortable, and forcing you to pay attention to your habits and routines. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Third House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Ninth House in the in the Fourth House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Ninth House in your Fourth House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your danger zone, and your beliefs in your private life. The resources of the Fourth House include your private and personal life, your home, real estate, tradition, and family connections. You do not want to be noticed when you be confident of who you think you are, because it's personal and private. You do not want to be noticed when you channel the energy of anger constructively, because it's personal and private. You do not want to be noticed when you venture into the unknown to acquire new information, because it's personal and private. And you do not want to be noticed when you support and defend your beliefs, because it's personal and private. Your pursuit of privacy may disrupt your Fourth House, shaking the very foundation of your life. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Fourth House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Ninth House in the in the Fifth House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Ninth House in your Fifth House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your danger zone, and your beliefs in your creativity and fun. The resources of the Fifth House include games, gambling, entertainment, art, creativity, and all forms of amusement and recreation. You are willing to take creative risks to be confident of who you think you are, and you expect to have fun in the process. You are willing to take creative risks to channel the energy of anger constructively, and you expect to have fun in the process. You are willing to take creative risks to venture into the unknown to acquire new information, and you expect to have fun in the process. And you are willing to take creative risks to support and defend your beliefs, and you expect to have fun in the process. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Fifth House, especially if you don't feel that you have been creative enough or if you're not having fun. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Fifth House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Ninth House in the in the Sixth House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Ninth House in your Sixth House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your danger zone, and your beliefs in your job, your workplace environment, and your relationships with co-workers and employees. The resources of the Sixth House include hard work and selfless service. You expect to work hard to be confident of who you think you are, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. You expect to work hard to channel the energy of anger constructively, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. You expect to work hard to venture into the unknown to acquire new information, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. And you expect to work hard to support and defend your beliefs, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Sixth House, especially because you are always looking for ways to lighten the workload, so you may try to hire someone to do the work for you, or failing that, you may create illness so you can call in sick. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Sixth House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Ninth House in the in the Seventh House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Ninth House in your Seventh House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your danger zone, and your beliefs in your one-to-one relationships. The resources of the Seventh House appear to be other individuals because you project everything associated with planets in your Seventh House on other people and you don't recognize that those qualities live in you. You expect other individuals to be confident of who you think you are for you and may blame them if they don't. You expect other individuals to channel the energy of anger constructively for you and may blame them if they don't. You expect other individuals to venture into the unknown to acquire new information for you and may blame them if they don't. And you expect other individuals to support and defend your beliefs for you and may blame them if they don't. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Seventh House by creating difficulties in your one-to-one relationships. And while the problems will appear to be about other people, they're really your own issues. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Seventh House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Ninth House in the in the Eighth House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Ninth House in your Eighth House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your danger zone, and your beliefs in your debts and shared resources. The resources of the Eighth house are other people's money, values, and opinions. This money is available to you in the form of loans, investments, or simply credit card debt. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to be confident of who you think you are. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to channel the energy of anger constructively. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to venture into the unknown to acquire new information. And you will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to support and defend your beliefs. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Eighth House because they will increase your awareness of your debt, both personal (what you owe other people) and financial (the money you owe to others). This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Eighth House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Ninth House in the in the Ninth House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Ninth House in your Ninth House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your danger zone, and your beliefs in your danger zone. The resources of the Ninth House are all foreign, distant, new, unfamiliar, and unknown to you. They include experts and authorities that can offer wisdom and knowledge, such as teachers, religious leaders, lawyers, and doctors. You always require new information to be confident of who you think you are because what you already know is not sufficient. You always require new information to channel the energy of anger constructively because what you already know is not sufficient. You always require new information to venture into the unknown to acquire new information because what you already know is not sufficient. And you always require new information to support and defend your beliefs because what you already know is not sufficient. These behaviors may cause disruption to your Ninth House because the new information you acquire may challenge and alter your beliefs. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Ninth House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Ninth House in the Tenth House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Ninth House in your Tenth House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your danger zone, and your beliefs in your public and professional image. The resources of the Tenth House include your reputation, your public image, and the passwords to all of your social media accounts. You want to be famous for your ability to be confident of who you think you are, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. You want to be famous for your ability to channel the energy of anger constructively, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. You want to be famous for your ability to venture into the unknown to acquire new information, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. And you want to be famous for your ability to support and defend your beliefs, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Tenth House and affect both your personal and your professional reputation. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Tenth House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Ninth House in the Eleventh House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Ninth House in your Eleventh House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your danger zone, and your beliefs in your ambitions and aspirations. The resources of the Eleventh House are your benefactors: friends, colleagues, and teammates who are in a position to support you and help you to acquire the things you believe will make you happy. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to be confident of who you think you are so you can acquire happiness. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to channel the energy of anger constructively so you can acquire happiness. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to venture into the unknown to acquire new information so you can acquire happiness. And you depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to support and defend your beliefs so you can acquire happiness. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Eleventh House and affect not only your ambitions and aspirations, but also the level of support you receive from your friends and benefactors. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Eleventh House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Ninth House in the Twelfth House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Ninth House in your Twelfth House you are unconscious of your ego, your anger, your danger zone, and your beliefs. The Twelfth House is above the horizon, so everything about planets in the Twelfth House is visible to others, but it's all in your blind spot, so you're the last to know about it. The resources of the Twelfth House include your hidden motivations, your unconscious programming, your shadow self, and your personal demons. You are not conscious of what motivates you to be confident of who you think you are, and it will have unexpected consequences. You are not conscious of what motivates you to channel the energy of anger constructively, and it will have unexpected consequences. You are not conscious of what motivates you to venture into the unknown to acquire new information, and it will have unexpected consequences. And you are not conscious of what motivates you to support and defend your beliefs, and it will have unexpected consequences. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Twelfth House, causing resentment and creating hidden enemies. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Twelfth House.