

Mars Rules the Tenth House

The Tenth House relates to your success, recognition, and professional advancement. It's your fame and your reputation, and your public image. And in the modern world, that often translates to your social media profile.

The Tenth House is your reputation.

The Tenth House is your reputation: it's how you are seen by society. It's your fame and your public image. It's also your presence on social media, both personal and professional. The planet that rules your Tenth House is what you are famous for. It's responsible for your greatest accomplishments and also for the gaffes you can never seem to live down or put behind you. Whether the world thinks favorably of you or not depends on how well you meet the needs and learn the lessons of the planet that rules your Tenth House. Because of the advent of social media and the Internet, much of your life is public. If you have any presence online, whether it's Facebook, LinkedIn, or OkCupid, you have a brand that you present to the world. You have a certain degree of fame because people whom you have never met personally know about you, and they also have an opinion of you. How much you take advantage of this is up to you, but even if you keep a low profile in your life, it's important to keep control of your message. The planet that rules your Tenth House is both the message itself and also the carrier wave that broadcasts your message.

The world expects you to live up to the promise of the planet that rules your Tenth House. This is your brand, and if you don't meet those needs and handle that Universal Puzzle Piece with care, everyone will know about it. But the more skillful you are about meeting those needs, the more control you have over the volume of your message. When you are in right relationship with the planet that rules your Tenth House, you can determine how public you want to be, and therefore have more influence over your privacy. But if you choose to, you can use the platform of your reputation to promote other interests. When you meet the needs of the planet that rules your Tenth House, the world will listen to what you have to say. When you don't meet the needs of that planet, you lose control over your message and the world (and the Internet) gets to decide on your brand, usually in the comments section.

The Tenth House is your advancement.

The Tenth House is also how you advance in the world, both socially and professionally. This is closely related to your reputation, because a good reputation is often essential for advancement, but it's not entirely the same thing. This expression of the Tenth House (and of the planet that rules your Tenth House) has to do with awards, honors, and promotion. It encompasses many of the things that you may associate with success. Your reputation relates to your relative level of fame, but advancement relates to the tangible, material rewards that come from that fame.

The cusp of the Tenth House is the most public and visible point in the chart, and the planet that rules your Tenth House is the vehicle that helps you attain the highest peaks in your life. Often, the accomplishments related to the Tenth House are professional and related to your career, but it's important not to view your life only in terms of your job or the things that you do to make money. When you look back on your life, you are the most proud of the accomplishments of your Tenth House. Often you are noticed, recognized, and honored by other people for these achievements, but not always. These achievements always involve meeting the needs of the planet that rules your Tenth House and understanding how that Universal Puzzle Piece fits in your life. And even if you don't experience social or professional advancement, you definitely advanced as a person.

Mars Rules the Tenth House

Your ego is your reputation; your reputation is your ego.

Your ego is your reputation and your public image. Your personal brand is your "little s" self, the character you play in the story of your life, and that's the message that you project to the world through social media. Whether the public has a favorable impression of you or not depends on how well you embody the character of your "little s" self. When you are confident of your identity and don't need to prove yourself to others, the world sees your best qualities and has a good impression of you. You have strong brand recognition and good word of mouth, and you easily deliver on the promises you make. But when you are unsure of yourself and have to defend your choices and prove that you are right, you lose control of your message. If you're lucky, you fail to make an impression on the world and no one notices you. If you're not lucky, you get noticed, but for all of the wrong reasons. On a personal level, when you lack self-confidence, you may try to "live your best life" on social media, but you don't fool anyone. The irony is that if you invested the time and energy in your actual life that you invest in curating the public appearance of your life, you would have something worth sharing with the world. You care about your public image and reputation because you believe that when the world thinks well of you, then other people won't challenge or attack you and you won't have to defend yourself.

Right Relationship with your ego gives you the experience of Power. You have unlimited self-confidence and you are secure in both the character you are playing in your life and in the quality of the performance that you're giving. But until you find this balance, you will over-identify with your character and believe that your identity is limited to your physical body. You fear the death of the ego/body, and this means you must always be right because the smallest mistake could result in your destruction. You must remember that the real you is the actor playing your character. No matter what happens to your character, the actor, your authentic Self, will survive. When you let go of the need to defend your character choices, you will discover it's okay to make mistakes, and that you don't always have to be right. This lesson is especially challenging for you with your reputation, because you identify personally with your reputation, and feel the need to protect and defend it. Your identity and the character of your "little s" self are directly tied to your brand. Your self-confidence lives and dies with public perception. This can cause you to focus more on spinning the story than on addressing the underlying problem and admitting that you made a mistake.

You can learn about your "little s" self and the character you play by engaging with your reputation. Take a close look at your presence on social media. Consider what it is that you share with the world, whether on a personal or professional platform. Include how you comment or respond to other people's posts, and whose brands you follow and admire. Now step back and review some of your recent social media activity to see what messages you are broadcasting about the character of your "little s" self. Pay attention to what it is that you want, and the ways you show the world how you go after it. If someone else had shared your posts, what would you think? What is it that they want, and what do their desires tell you about the character they play? Once you have a clear, objective reference for your brand and how the world may view it, you can begin to refine your message. It's okay to share your best self and set high expectations for how you embody your "little s" self, so long as you can deliver on those promises. You can do that by paying attention to how you express your "little s" self in every area of your life. The more confident you are in your character and the less you have to prove, the more the world will notice your best qualities.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your ego and your reputation resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your ego and your reputation resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

How would you like the world to see the character of your "little s" self? What could you share on social media that would draw attention to your "little s" self?

Take an objective look at what you have been sharing on social media, both in your posts and in your comments. Does the message of your “little s” self show up the way that you would like it to? Why or why not?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

Where do you notice and admire your ego in other people? How does it show up in their public image? How does that influence your own choices of what to share in public?

How well do you embody your ego in your public image? What kind of feedback about it do you get on social media?

What is it about your reputation that you feel the need to protect and defend the most?

How do you define or describe yourself in terms of your reputation?

Who would you be without your reputation? How would you know yourself?

Your ego is your advancement; your advancement is your ego.

Your ego is your advancement: it's the key to your success, both socially and professionally. Your “little s” self is what you bring to everything you do that sets it apart and adds unique value to it. It may not be obvious, but it makes all the difference. And the more confident you are in your performance as the character of your “little s” self, the more you will stand out from the crowd. When you are confident of your identity and don't need to prove yourself to others, success comes easily to you. You are recognized, honored, and promoted for your work. While you enjoy the approbation, it's never your main objective. For you, success is about the satisfaction you experience from the work itself. But when you are unsure of yourself and have to defend your choices and prove that you are right, you struggle to advance in your professional and social life. Time and again, you are passed over for promotion. The next rung on the ladder is always just out of your reach. On a personal level, when you lack self-confidence, you care far too much about your social and professional status. You focus on getting awards and recognition rather than on the quality of the work you do. The quality of your work suffers, and you never feel like you get the recognition that you deserve. You care about recognition and advancement because you believe that when you are successful enough, then other people won't challenge or attack you and you won't have to defend yourself.

Right Relationship with your ego gives you the experience of Power. You have unlimited self-confidence and you are secure in both the character you are playing in your life and in the quality of the performance that you're giving. But until you find this balance, you will over-identify with your character and believe that your identity is limited to your physical body. You fear the death of the ego/body, and this means you must always be right because the smallest mistake could result in your destruction. You must remember that the real you is the actor playing your character. No matter what happens to your character, the actor, your authentic Self, will survive. When you let go of the need to defend your character choices, you will discover it's okay to make mistakes, and that you don't always have to be right. This lesson is especially challenging for you with your advancement, because you identify personally with your advancement, and feel the need to protect and defend it. Your self-confidence is tied to your personal, social, and professional status. You believe that the more you achieve and the more other people recognize your success, the more secure you will be in your own identity.

You can learn about your "little s" self and the character you play by engaging with your advancement. Look back on your life and identify an example of a time when you were recognized, promoted, awarded, or honored. Review your story of what it was that you did to deserve that recognition, and what it took for you to succeed. Now consider that story from the perspective of your ego, and identify where and how your "little s" self showed up for you. The actual source of your success and the reason you were recognized and honored was how you embodied and expressed the character of your "little s" self. Figure out what you did differently with your ego in the situations where you were promoted and awarded and how you accessed that degree of self-confidence, because that's the secret of your success. Once you have identified it, you can access it whenever you choose, in any part of your life. The more confident you are in your character and the less you have to prove, the more success you will enjoy.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your ego and your advancement resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your ego and your advancement resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

How have you been recognized, honored, or promoted because of your ego and your "little s" self?

What accomplishments in your life are you the most proud of? What role did your ego play in those achievements?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

How does your ego contribute to your professional success? Where do you embody it in your professional life?

What is it about your advancement that you feel the need to protect and defend the most?

How do you define or describe yourself in terms of your advancement?

Who would you be without your advancement? How would you know yourself?

Your anger is your reputation; your reputation is your anger.

Anger is your reputation and your public image. Your personal brand is anger, and that's the message that you project to the world through social media. Whether the public has a favorable impression of you or not depends on how well you channel the energy of anger. When you master the energy of anger and use that energy in conscious and constructive ways, the world sees your best qualities and has a good impression of you. You have strong brand recognition and good word of mouth, and you easily deliver on the promises you make. But when you struggle with your anger by repressing it, projecting it, or lashing out with it, you lose control of your message. If you're lucky, you fail to make an impression on the world and no one notices you. If you're not lucky, you get noticed, but for all of the wrong reasons. On a personal level, when you fail to address your anger, you may try to "live your best life" on social media, but you don't fool anyone. The irony is that if you invested the time and energy in your actual life that you invest in curating the public appearance of your life, you would have something worth sharing with the world. You care about your public image and reputation because you believe that when the world thinks well of you, then you will get what you want when you want it, and the world won't piss you off.

The energy of anger can connect you with an experience of Power, but first, you must separate the experience of anger from the story you have created about it. No matter what the appearance is in your reality, your anger is never about what it appears to be about. When you tap into the energy of anger, you must learn to drop the story and refrain from reacting (which would use force and only make the situation worse). Take a moment and drop every part of the story that is not a part of My Business, and then let go of your expectations. This is the most challenging for you with your reputation, because your reputation is an area where you have strong expectations and experience high levels of frustration. The more you try to control your reputation, the more anger you will experience, and directing the energy of your anger at your reputation only makes the situation worse. And of course your reputation is largely about your relationship to your anger and how skillfully you channel that energy.

You can begin to master your anger by engaging with your reputation. Take a close look at your presence on social media. Consider what it is that you share with the world, whether on a personal or professional platform. Include how you comment or respond to other people's posts, and whose brands you follow and admire. Now step back and review some of your recent social media activity to see what messages you are broadcasting about your anger. If someone else had shared your posts, what would you think about how they handle their anger? You may not recognize the energy of anger because it won't always reach the level of intensity you associate with the emotion of anger. Anytime you feel impatient, frustrated, defensive, annoyed, or stressed, you are experiencing the energy of anger. Once you have a clear, objective reference for your brand and how the world may view it, you can begin to refine your message. It's okay to share your best self and set high expectations for how you engage with the energy of anger so long as you can deliver on those promises. You can do that by paying attention to how you experience and express the energy of anger in every area of your life. The more you learn to master your anger, the more the world will notice your best qualities.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your anger and your reputation resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your anger and your reputation resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

How would you like the world to see your relationship to your anger? What could you share on social media that would draw attention to your anger and how you handle it?

Take an objective look at what you have been sharing on social media, both in your posts and in your comments. Does the message of your anger show up the way that you would like it to? Why or why not?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

Where do you notice and admire anger in other people? How does it show up in their public image? How does that influence your own choices of what to share in public?

How well do you embody anger in your public image? What kind of feedback about it do you get on social media?

What are some examples of how your reputation makes you angry, frustrated, or resentful?

How do you use your reputation to express your anger?

How do you express your anger at your reputation? How does that affect the situation?

Your anger is your advancement; your advancement is your anger.

Anger is your advancement: it's the key to your success, both socially and professionally. The energy of your anger is what you bring to everything you do that sets it apart and adds unique value to it. It may not be obvious, but it makes all the difference. The more you channel the energy of anger, the more you will stand out from the crowd. When you master the energy of anger and use that energy in conscious and constructive ways, success comes easily to you. You are recognized, honored, and promoted for your work. While you enjoy the approbation, it's never your main objective. For you, success is about the satisfaction you experience from the work itself. But when you struggle with your anger by repressing it, projecting it, or lashing out with it, you struggle to advance in your professional and social life. Time and again, you are passed over for promotion. The next rung on the ladder is always just out of your reach. On a personal level, when you fail to address your anger, you care far too much about your social and professional status. You focus on getting awards and recognition rather than on the quality of the work you do. The quality of your work suffers, and you never feel like you get the recognition that you deserve. You care about recognition and advancement because you believe that when you are successful enough, then you will get what you want when you want it, and the world won't piss you off.

The energy of anger can connect you with an experience of Power, but first, you must separate the experience of anger from the story you have created about it. No matter what the appearance is in your reality, your anger is never about what it appears to be about. When you tap into the energy of anger, you must learn to drop the story and refrain from reacting (which would use force and only make the situation worse). Take a moment and drop every part of the story that is not a part of My Business, and then let go of your expectations. This is the most challenging for you with your advancement, because your advancement is an area where you have strong expectations and experience high levels of frustration. The more you try to control your advancement, the more anger you will experience, and directing the energy of your anger at your advancement only makes the situation worse. The energy of your anger is the fuel that allows you to accomplish your goals and gain recognition. Anger helps you overcome all obstacles and get what you want. The problem is that getting the advancement, promotion, and recognition that you want rarely makes you happy.

You can begin to master your anger by engaging with your advancement. Look back on your life and identify an example of a time when you were recognized, promoted, awarded, or honored. Review your story of what it was that you did to deserve that recognition, and what it took for you to succeed. Now consider that story from the perspective of your anger, and identify where and how anger showed up for you. You may not recognize the energy of anger because it won't always reach the level of intensity you associate with the emotion of anger. Anytime you feel impatient, frustrated, defensive, annoyed, or stressed, you are experiencing the energy of anger. The actual source of your success and the reason you were recognized and honored was how you embodied and expressed the energy of your anger. Figure out what you did differently with the energy of your anger in the situations where you were promoted and awarded, because that's the secret of your success—or at least the secret of getting what you want. When you learn to master your anger you will be able to channel it anywhere you like. This will allow you to find success that also makes you happy.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your anger and your advancement resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your anger and your advancement resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

How have you been recognized, honored, or promoted because of your anger?

What accomplishments in your life are you the most proud of? What role did anger play in those achievements?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

How does anger contribute to your professional success? Where do you embody it in your professional life?

What are some examples of how your advancement makes you angry, frustrated, or resentful?

How do you use your advancement to express your anger?

How do you express your anger at your advancement? How does that affect the situation?

Mars, the Ruler of your Tenth House in Houses

The house occupied by the Ruler of the Tenth House shows where you seek advancement, recognition, and professional success. You make use of the resources available in this house to advance your career and fulfill your potential. Your fame and reputation are based on your activities in this house. Your actual career may or may not be described by or directly related to this house, but skillful use of the resources of this house will get you recognized.

JOURNAL QUESTIONS & INSTRUCTIONS

Begin by reviewing the chapter in the video lesson on Mars that explores the house that Mars, the Ruler of your Tenth House occupies. Then locate and read the description of the house occupied by Mars, the Ruler of your Tenth House. Now, go back and revisit each of the journal questions about how you experience Mars as the ruler of your Tenth House, and notice how the house Mars occupies influences your understanding.

Mars, the Ruler of the Tenth House in the First House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Tenth House in your First House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your reputation, and your advancement in your personality and outer appearance. The resources of the First House include your health, your happiness, your appearance, and your very identity. You will use your personal interests and happiness to be confident of who you think you are, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. You will use your personal interests and happiness to channel the energy of anger constructively, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. You will use your personal interests and happiness to raise your public profile and enhance your reputation, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. And you will use your personal interests and happiness to advance in your social or professional life, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your First House, affecting your avatar, your outer appearance, your happiness, and how much you enjoy your hobbies and interests. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your First House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Tenth House in the in the Second House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Tenth House in your Second House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your reputation, and your advancement in your money and resources. The resources of the Second House include your money, your personal possessions, and the skills and talents you have that can be used to earn money. You will spend money and use your talents to be confident of who you think you are. You will spend money and use your talents to channel the energy of anger constructively. You will spend money and use your talents to raise your public profile and enhance your reputation. And you will spend money and use your talents to advance in your social or professional life. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Second House, specifically because they encourage you to spend your money, but they don't necessarily help you to earn more money or connect to the truth of your prosperity. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Second House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Tenth House in the in the Third House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Tenth House in your Third House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your reputation, and your advancement in your comfort zone. The resources of your Third House are all local, close, and familiar. You can communicate to your network to ask for support, but you will only call people you already know and have worked with before. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to be confident of who you think you are, and you rarely consider new options. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to channel the energy of anger constructively, and you rarely consider new options. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to raise your public profile and enhance your reputation, and you rarely consider new options. And rely on your familiar habits and local resources to advance in your social or professional life, and you rarely consider new options. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Third House, creating changes to your comfort zone that make it less familiar and less comfortable, and forcing you to pay attention to your habits and routines. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Third House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Tenth House in the in the Fourth House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Tenth House in your Fourth House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your reputation, and your advancement in your private life. The resources of the Fourth House include your private and personal life, your home, real estate, tradition, and family connections. You do not want to be noticed when you be confident of who you think you are, because it's personal and private. You do not want to be noticed when you channel the energy of anger constructively, because it's personal and private. You do not want to be noticed when you raise your public profile and enhance your reputation, because it's personal and private. And you do not want to be noticed when you advance in your social or professional life, because it's personal and private. Your pursuit of privacy may disrupt your Fourth House, shaking the very foundation of your life. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Fourth House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Tenth House in the in the Fifth House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Tenth House in your Fifth House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your reputation, and your advancement in your creativity and fun. The resources of the Fifth House include games, gambling, entertainment, art, creativity, and all forms of amusement and recreation. You are willing to take creative risks to be confident of who you think you are, and you expect to have fun in the process. You are willing to take creative risks to channel the energy of anger constructively, and you expect to have fun in the process. You are willing to take creative risks to raise your public profile and enhance your reputation, and you expect to have fun in the process. And you are willing to take creative risks to advance in your social or professional life, and you expect to have fun in the process. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Fifth House, especially if you don't feel that you have been creative enough or if you're not having fun. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Fifth House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Tenth House in the in the Sixth House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Tenth House in your Sixth House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your reputation, and your advancement in your job, your workplace environment, and your relationships with co-workers and employees. The resources of the Sixth House include hard work and selfless service. You expect to work hard to be confident of who you think you are, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. You expect to work hard to channel the energy of anger constructively, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. You expect to work hard to raise your public profile and enhance your reputation, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. And you expect to work hard to advance in your social or professional life, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Sixth House, especially because you are always looking for ways to lighten the workload, so you may try to hire someone to do the work for you, or failing that, you may create illness so you can call in sick. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Sixth House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Tenth House in the in the Seventh House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Tenth House in your Seventh House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your reputation, and your advancement in your one-to-one relationships. The resources of the Seventh House appear to be other individuals because you project everything associated with planets in your Seventh House on other people and you don't recognize that those qualities live in you. You expect other individuals to be confident of who you think you are for you and may blame them if they don't. You expect other individuals to channel the energy of anger constructively for you and may blame them if they don't. You expect other individuals to raise your public profile and enhance your reputation for you and may blame them if they don't. And you expect other individuals to advance in your social or professional life for you and may blame them if they don't. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Seventh House by creating difficulties in your one-to-one relationships. And while the problems will appear to be about other people, they're really your own issues. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Seventh House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Tenth House in the in the Eighth House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Tenth House in your Eighth House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your reputation, and your advancement in your debts and shared resources. The resources of the Eighth house are other people's money, values, and opinions. This money is available to you in the form of loans, investments, or simply credit card debt. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to be confident of who you think you are. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to channel the energy of anger constructively. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to raise your public profile and enhance your reputation. And you will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to advance in your social or professional life. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Eighth House because they will increase your awareness of your debt, both personal (what you owe other people) and financial (the money you owe to others). This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Eighth House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Tenth House in the in the Ninth House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Tenth House in your Ninth House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your reputation, and your advancement in your danger zone. The resources of the Ninth House are all foreign, distant, new, unfamiliar, and unknown to you. They include experts and authorities that can offer wisdom and knowledge, such as teachers, religious leaders, lawyers, and doctors. You always require new information to be confident of who you think you are because what you already know is not sufficient. You always require new information to channel the energy of anger constructively because what you already know is not sufficient. You always require new information to raise your public profile and enhance your reputation because what you already know is not sufficient. And you always require new information to advance in your social or professional life because what you already know is not sufficient. These behaviors may cause disruption to your Ninth House because the new information you acquire may challenge and alter your beliefs. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Ninth House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Tenth House in the Tenth House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Tenth House in your Tenth House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your reputation, and your advancement in your public and professional image. The resources of the Tenth House include your reputation, your public image, and the passwords to all of your social media accounts. You want to be famous for your ability to be confident of who you think you are, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. You want to be famous for your ability to channel the energy of anger constructively, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. You want to be famous for your ability to raise your public profile and enhance your reputation, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. And you want to be famous for your ability to advance in your social or professional life, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Tenth House and affect both your personal and your professional reputation. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Tenth House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Tenth House in the Eleventh House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Tenth House in your Eleventh House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your reputation, and your advancement in your ambitions and aspirations. The resources of the Eleventh House are your benefactors: friends, colleagues, and teammates who are in a position to support you and help you to acquire the things you believe will make you happy. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to be confident of who you think you are so you can acquire happiness. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to channel the energy of anger constructively so you can acquire happiness. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to raise your public profile and enhance your reputation so you can acquire happiness. And you depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to advance in your social or professional life so you can acquire happiness. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Eleventh House and affect not only your ambitions and aspirations, but also the level of support you receive from your friends and benefactors. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Eleventh House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Tenth House in the Twelfth House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Tenth House in your Twelfth House you are unconscious of your ego, your anger, your reputation, and your advancement. The Twelfth House is above the horizon, so everything about planets in the Twelfth House is visible to others, but it's all in your blind spot, so you're the last to know about it. The resources of the Twelfth House include your hidden motivations, your unconscious programming, your shadow self, and your personal demons. You are not conscious of what motivates you to be confident of who you think you are, and it will have unexpected consequences. You are not conscious of what motivates you to channel the energy of anger constructively, and it will have unexpected consequences. You are not conscious of what motivates you to raise your public profile and enhance your reputation, and it will have unexpected consequences. And you are not conscious of what motivates you to advance in your social or professional life, and it will have unexpected consequences. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Twelfth House, causing resentment and creating hidden enemies. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Twelfth House.