

Mars Rules the Eleventh House

The Eleventh House is the house of acquisition. It contains all of the things you believe you need to obtain or acquire to be happy. It's the pursuit of happiness, but not the experience of happiness (which belongs to the First House). Friends are associated with the Eleventh House, but the original context of that term has shifted. Eleventh House friends are benefactors. These are the people who help you to reach your goals, attain your aspirations, and acquire what you think you need to be happy.

The Eleventh House is your ambitions and acquisitions.

The planet that rules your Eleventh House is what you believe you need to acquire to be happy. Your personal ambitions, aspirations, and dreams are really about embodying that planet, meeting its needs, and fully understanding how that Universal Puzzle Piece fits in your life. The first challenge is that you don't entirely believe that these qualities live inside you. You see them clearly in the outside world, and you believe that you need to go out and obtain them. Specifically, you believe that when you finally obtain those qualities, and realize your ambitions and your dreams, then you'll finally be happy. The Eleventh House is your pursuit of happiness; actual happiness belongs to the First House. But when you move into right relationship with the planet that rules your Eleventh House, you will realize that happiness is the journey, not the destination.

Everyone needs dreams. Dreams are what inspire you to take action. They can give your life meaning and purpose. Even impossible or unattainable dreams have value once you remember that they're not all-or-nothing scenarios. Your dream of winning American Idol probably won't come true, but what that dream is really about is the inspiration to sing and to make music. If you follow that call and begin to sing because singing makes you happy, the path could lead you anywhere. As you follow the path, you will set new goals and discover new dreams, and those dreams will become progressively more attainable. But remember that what your dreams are really about is expressing and meeting the needs of the planet that rules your Eleventh House. When you follow that star, your dreams can come true.

The Eleventh House is your benefactor.

The planet that rules your Eleventh House is your benefactor. A benefactor is more than just a friend; it's a friend with money. Benefactors are friends who are willing to invest in your happiness and your success. They provide material support to help you achieve your personal ambitions and aspirations. You experience your benefactors as other individuals, and often, the support they provide appears to come out of nowhere and to have nothing at all to do with you. But this is just the external appearance. Your real benefactor is the planet that rules your Eleventh House, and the amount of support and encouragement you experience depends on how well you meet the needs and learn the lessons of that planet.

You may not notice your benefactor because it doesn't always show up as a person, and the support you receive isn't always financial. Sometimes all you need to make progress towards your dreams and aspirations is to meet the needs of the planet that rules the Eleventh House. When you embody and express that energy and master those lessons, you advance towards your goals and your dreams get a little bit closer. Other times, because you have tuned into that energy, other people will show up in your life and provide you with encouragement and support. When you are in right relationship with the planet that rules your Eleventh House, your friends genuinely want to see you succeed. That may not translate into dollars and cents, but that's because that kind of support is priceless.

Mars Rules the Eleventh House

Your ego is your aspirations and acquisitions; your aspirations and acquisitions are your ego.

Your ego is your aspiration: you hope to achieve it. But you don't believe that your "little s" self and the confidence to express it live within you. It exists somewhere in the world, and you hope to acquire it. You believe that when you achieve your aspirations and acquire your ego and your "little s" self, then you'll be happy. When you are confident of your identity and don't need to prove yourself to others, you live your dreams and pursue your aspirations. Even if your goals are lofty and hard to attain, you still pursue them. The journey itself makes you so happy that the destination becomes less important. But when you are unsure of yourself and have to defend your choices and prove that you are right, your dreams are unattainable because you don't pursue them. You know you won't win American Idol, so you don't bother to sing at all. You set goals that are so high that you can't imagine reaching them, and then wonder why your life lacks any purpose. On a personal level, when you lack self-confidence, you are unhappy with your life, but you lack the inspiration to do anything about it. You think the only way to be happy is to realize your dreams, and you mistakenly believe that happiness only exists at the destination. Having ambitions and aspirations is important because pursuing your dreams gives meaning and purpose to your life. You believe that when you have inspiration and motivation to pursue your dreams, other people won't challenge or attack you and you won't have to defend yourself.

Right Relationship with your ego gives you the experience of Power. You have unlimited self-confidence and you are secure in both the character you are playing in your life and in the quality of the performance that you're giving. But until you find this balance, you will over-identify with your character and believe that your identity is limited to your physical body. You fear the death of the ego/body, and this means you must always be right because the smallest mistake could result in your destruction. You must remember that the real you is the actor playing your character. No matter what happens to your character, the actor, your authentic Self, will survive. When you let go of the need to defend your character choices, you will discover it's okay to make mistakes, and that you don't always have to be right. This lesson is especially challenging for you with your aspirations and acquisitions, because you identify personally with your aspirations and acquisitions, and feel the need to protect and defend them. You define your identity and the character of your "little s" self by who you hope to become and what you hope to achieve. What you must learn is that the journey matters more than the destination.

You can learn about your "little s" self and the character you play by engaging with your aspirations and acquisitions. Consider your dreams and aspirations. Make sure you include youthful dreams that you may have abandoned long ago because you felt they were unreasonable. Look at your ambitions, past and present, with fresh eyes, and notice how they all involve acquiring insight into the character of your "little s" self. When you pursue your "little s" self, you are energized and motivated, and on the way to happiness. Choose a dream. Dust off one of your discarded dreams or create a new one, but be conscious that the dream is really about experiencing your "little s" self. The dream is what inspires you to act and to begin the journey in pursuit of what you want. And while you go after the things that you want, you discover more about the character of your "little s" self and how to embody it. The more confident you are in your character and the less you have to prove, the more your dreams and aspirations will inspire and motivate you.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your ego and your aspirations and acquisitions resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your ego and your aspirations and acquisitions resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

Choose an example of a current dream or aspiration: something that you hope to accomplish or achieve. What role does your "little s" self play in that dream?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

How do you attempt to acquire your ego? Where do you think you lack it in your life, and what do you need to do in the world to acquire it?

What is it about your aspirations and acquisitions that you feel the need to protect and defend the most?

How do you define or describe yourself in terms of your aspirations and acquisitions?

Who would you be without your aspirations and acquisitions? How would you know yourself?

Your ego is your benefactor; your benefactor is your ego.

Your ego is your benefactor. When you embody the character of your “little s” self, you receive tangible support that helps you pursue your ambitions and personal aspirations. Sometimes that support shows up out of the blue as unexpected money or opportunity, and other times that support shows up in the form of a friend who believes in you and is willing to lend a helping hand. When you are confident of your identity and don’t need to prove yourself to others, you are surrounded by support and encouragement. Other people are excited by your ambitions and your goals, and they are eager to help you to achieve them. Money shows up when you need it, and so does advice, guidance, and introductions to people who can help you even more. But when you are unsure of yourself and have to defend your choices and prove that you are right, you have to pursue your ambitions on your own. No one in your life offers you encouragement, let alone financial backing. Opportunities do not tend to work out, and no matter how hard you knock, doors remain closed to you. On a personal level, when you lack self-confidence, even your friends don’t believe in you. They will probably listen to you talk about your dreams, but that’s the extent of their support. They may not root for you to fail, but they don’t expect you to succeed. You care about the support of your benefactors because they make it easier for you to achieve your dreams and ambitions. And you believe that when you achieve your goals, other people won’t challenge or attack you and you won’t have to defend yourself.

Right Relationship with your ego gives you the experience of Power. You have unlimited self-confidence and you are secure in both the character you are playing in your life and in the quality of the performance that you’re giving. But until you find this balance, you will over-identify with your character and believe that your identity is limited to your physical body. You fear the death of the ego/body, and this means you must always be right because the smallest mistake could result in your destruction. You must remember that the real you is the actor playing your character. No matter what happens to your character, the actor, your authentic Self, will survive. When you let go of the need to defend your character choices, you will discover it’s okay to make mistakes, and that you don’t always have to be right. This lesson is especially challenging for you with your benefactor, because you identify personally with your benefactor, and feel the need to protect and defend it. You believe that you can't embody the character of your "little s" self without the help and support of your benefactor. But the truth is that your benefactor helps you by making you recognize that you are the only expert on the character of your "little s" self, and any choice you make will be true to that character.

You can learn about your "little s" self and the character you play by engaging with your benefactor. Think back on your life and identify the people who have supported you by helping you to achieve your ambitions and aspirations. For the moment, focus on individuals who gave you some kind of tangible assistance, financial or otherwise. Consider that whatever form of help they provided, that help was really about knowing your "little s" self. They either helped you because of your understanding of the character of your "little s" self, or they helped you by contributing to your understanding of your "little s" self. Now consider how you engage with your "little s" self in other parts of your life. You will discover a direct connection between how well you embody the character of your "little s" self and pursue that character's agenda and how much other people want to support you in your dreams and aspirations. The more confident you are in your character and the less you have to prove, the more material support you will receive to pursue your ambitions.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your ego and your benefactor resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your ego and your benefactor resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

How has your ego functioned as your benefactor? How has it provided you with material support to pursue your personal ambitions and goals?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

How do you experience your ego in the people who act as your benefactors? How do they embody it? How do they use it to support and encourage you?

What is it about your benefactor that you feel the need to protect and defend the most?

How do you define or describe yourself in terms of your benefactor?

Who would you be without your benefactor? How would you know yourself?

Your anger is your aspirations and acquisitions; your aspirations and acquisitions are your anger.

Anger is your aspiration: you hope to achieve it. But you don't believe that anger is within you. It exists somewhere in the world, and you hope to acquire it. You believe that when you achieve your aspirations and acquire anger, then you'll be happy. When you master the energy of anger and use that energy in conscious and constructive ways, you live your dreams and pursue your aspirations. Even if your goals are lofty and hard to attain, you still pursue them. The journey itself makes you so happy that the destination becomes less important. But when you struggle with your anger by repressing it, projecting it, or lashing out with it, your dreams are unattainable because you don't pursue them. You know you won't win American Idol, so you don't bother to sing at all. You set goals that are so high that you can't imagine reaching them, and then wonder why your life lacks any purpose. On a personal level, when you fail to address your anger, you are unhappy with your life, but you lack the inspiration to do anything about it. You think the only way to be happy is to realize your dreams, and you mistakenly believe that happiness only exists at the destination. Having ambitions and aspirations is important because pursuing your dreams gives meaning and purpose to your life. You believe that when you have inspiration and motivation to pursue your dreams, you will get what you want when you want it, and the world won't piss you off.

The energy of anger can connect you with an experience of Power, but first, you must separate the experience of anger from the story you have created about it. No matter what the appearance is in your reality, your anger is never about what it appears to be about. When you tap into the energy of anger, you must learn to drop the story and refrain from reacting (which would use force and only make the situation worse). Take a moment and drop every part of the story that is not a part of My Business, and then let go of your expectations. This is the most challenging for you with your aspirations and acquisitions, because your aspirations and acquisitions is an area where you have strong expectations and experience high levels of frustration. The more you try to control your aspirations and acquisitions, the more anger you will experience, and directing the energy of your anger at your aspirations and acquisitions only makes the situation worse. You aspire to anger and you hope to acquire the energy of anger along with the skills to use that energy creatively. And the energy of anger is the fuel that helps you realize your dreams.

You can begin to master your anger by engaging with your aspirations and acquisitions. Consider your dreams and aspirations. Make sure you include youthful dreams that you may have abandoned long ago because you felt they were unreasonable. Look at your ambitions, past and present, with fresh eyes, and notice how they all involve acquiring anger so that you can experience Power. You may not recognize the energy of anger because it won't always reach the level of intensity you associate with the emotion of anger. Anytime you feel impatient, frustrated, defensive, annoyed, or stressed, you are experiencing the energy of anger. When you pursue the energy of anger, you are energized and motivated, and on the way to happiness. Choose a dream. Dust off one of your discarded dreams or create a new one, but be conscious that the dream is really about experiencing and mastering the energy of anger. The more you learn to master your anger, the more your dreams and aspirations will inspire and motivate you.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your anger and your aspirations and acquisitions resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your anger and your aspirations and acquisitions resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

Choose an example of a current dream or aspiration: something that you hope to accomplish or achieve. What role does anger play in that dream?

How would acquiring more anger help you become happy?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

How do you attempt to acquire anger? Where do you think you lack it in your life, and what do you need to do in the world to acquire it?

What are some examples of how your aspirations and acquisitions make you angry, frustrated, or resentful?

How do you use your aspirations and acquisitions to express your anger?

How do you express your anger at your aspirations and acquisitions? How does that affect the situation?

Your anger is your benefactor; your benefactor is your anger.

Anger is your benefactor. When you channel the energy of anger, you receive tangible support that helps you pursue your ambitions and personal aspirations. Sometimes that support shows up out of the blue as unexpected money or opportunity, and other times that support shows up in the form of a friend who believes in you and is willing to lend a helping hand. When you master the energy of anger and use that energy in conscious and constructive ways, you are surrounded by support and encouragement. Other people are excited by your ambitions and your goals, and they are eager to help you to achieve them. Money shows up when you need it, and so does advice, guidance, and introductions to people who can help you even more. But when you struggle with your anger by repressing it, projecting it, or lashing out with it, you have to pursue your ambitions on your own. No one in your life offers you encouragement, let alone financial backing. Opportunities do not tend to work out, and no matter how hard you knock, doors remain closed to you. On a personal level, when you fail to address your anger, even your friends don't believe in you. They will probably listen to you talk about your dreams, but that's the extent of their support. They may not root for you to fail, but they don't expect you to succeed. You care about the support of your benefactors because they make it easier for you to achieve your dreams and ambitions. And you believe that when you achieve your goals, you will get what you want when you want it, and the world won't piss you off.

The energy of anger can connect you with an experience of Power, but first, you must separate the experience of anger from the story you have created about it. No matter what the appearance is in your reality, your anger is never about what it appears to be about. When you tap into the energy of anger, you must learn to drop the story and refrain from reacting (which would use force and only make the situation worse). Take a moment and drop every part of the story that is not a part of My Business, and then let go of your expectations. This is the most challenging for you with your benefactor, because you have strong expectations and experience high levels of frustration with your benefactor. The more you try to control your benefactor, the more anger you will experience, and directing the energy of your anger at your benefactor only makes the situation worse. Your benefactor helps you by channeling the energy of your anger for you, and making you aware of the possibilities that exist once you master your anger.

You can begin to master your anger by engaging with your benefactor. Think back on your life and identify the people who have supported you by helping you to achieve your ambitions and aspirations. For the moment, focus on individuals who gave you some kind of tangible assistance, financial or otherwise. Consider that whatever form of help they provided, that help was really about anger. They may have helped you because of your anger, helped you by contributing to your anger, or helped you by showing you alternative ways you can express the energy of your anger. You may not recognize the energy of anger because it won't always reach the level of intensity you associate with the emotion of anger. Anytime you feel impatient, frustrated, defensive, annoyed, or stressed, you are experiencing the energy of anger. Now consider how you engage with anger in other parts of your life. You will discover a direct connection between how well you channel the energy of your anger in conscious and constructive ways and how much other people want to support you in your dreams and aspirations. The more you learn to master your anger, the more material support you will receive to pursue your ambitions.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your anger and your benefactor resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your anger and your benefactor resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

How has anger functioned as your benefactor? How has it provided you with material support to pursue your personal ambitions and goals?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

How do you experience anger in the people who act as your benefactors? How do they embody it? How do they use it to support and encourage you?

What are some examples of how your benefactor makes you angry, frustrated, or resentful?

How do you use your benefactor to express your anger?

How do you express your anger at your benefactor? How does that affect the situation?

Mars, the Ruler of your Eleventh House in Houses

The house occupied by the Ruler of the Eleventh House shows where you look for happiness. This is where you pursue your ambitions and your aspirations. You make use of the resources available in this house to acquire the things that you believe will make you happy and to realize your personal goals and dreams.

JOURNAL QUESTIONS & INSTRUCTIONS

Begin by reviewing the chapter in the video lesson on Mars that explores the house that Mars, the Ruler of your Eleventh House occupies. Then locate and read the description of the house occupied by Mars, the Ruler of your Eleventh House. Now, go back and revisit each of the journal questions about how you experience Mars as the ruler of your Eleventh House, and notice how the house Mars occupies influences your understanding.

Mars, the Ruler of the Eleventh House in the First House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Eleventh House in your First House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your aspirations and acquisitions, and your benefactor in your personality and outer appearance. The resources of the First House include your health, your happiness, your appearance, and your very identity. You will use your personal interests and happiness to be confident of who you think you are, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. You will use your personal interests and happiness to channel the energy of anger constructively, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. You will use your personal interests and happiness to pursue your dreams, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. And you will use your personal interests and happiness to attract the support of benefactors, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your First House, affecting your avatar, your outer appearance, your happiness, and how much you enjoy your hobbies and interests. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your First House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Eleventh House in the in the Second House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Eleventh House in your Second House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your aspirations and acquisitions, and your benefactor in your money and resources. The resources of the Second House include your money, your personal possessions, and the skills and talents you have that can be used to earn money. You will spend money and use your talents to be confident of who you think you are. You will spend money and use your talents to channel the energy of anger constructively. You will spend money and use your talents to pursue your dreams. And you will spend money and use your talents to attract the support of benefactors. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Second House, specifically because they encourage you to spend your money, but they don't necessarily help you to earn more money or connect to the truth of your prosperity. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Second House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Eleventh House in the in the Third House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Eleventh House in your Third House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your aspirations and acquisitions, and your benefactor in your comfort zone. The resources of your Third House are all local, close, and familiar. You can communicate to your network to ask for support, but you will only call people you already know and have worked with before. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to be confident of who you think you are, and you rarely consider new options. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to channel the energy of anger constructively, and you rarely consider new options. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to pursue your dreams, and you rarely consider new options. And rely on your familiar habits and local resources to attract the support of benefactors, and you rarely consider new options. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Third House, creating changes to your comfort zone that make it less familiar and less comfortable, and forcing you to pay attention to your habits and routines. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Third House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Eleventh House in the in the Fourth House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Eleventh House in your Fourth House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your aspirations and acquisitions, and your benefactor in your private life. The resources of the Fourth House include your private and personal life, your home, real estate, tradition, and family connections. You do not want to be noticed when you be confident of who you think you are, because it's personal and private. You do not want to be noticed when you channel the energy of anger constructively, because it's personal and private. You do not want to be noticed when you pursue your dreams, because it's personal and private. And you do not want to be noticed when you attract the support of benefactors, because it's personal and private. Your pursuit of privacy may disrupt your Fourth House, shaking the very foundation of your life. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Fourth House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Eleventh House in the in the Fifth House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Eleventh House in your Fifth House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your aspirations and acquisitions, and your benefactor in your creativity and fun. The resources of the Fifth House include games, gambling, entertainment, art, creativity, and all forms of amusement and recreation. You are willing to take creative risks to be confident of who you think you are, and you expect to have fun in the process. You are willing to take creative risks to channel the energy of anger constructively, and you expect to have fun in the process. You are willing to take creative risks to pursue your dreams, and you expect to have fun in the process. And you are willing to take creative risks to attract the support of benefactors, and you expect to have fun in the process. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Fifth House, especially if you don't feel that you have been creative enough or if you're not having fun. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Fifth House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Eleventh House in the in the Sixth House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Eleventh House in your Sixth House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your aspirations and acquisitions, and your benefactor in your job, your workplace environment, and your relationships with co-workers and employees. The resources of the Sixth House include hard work and selfless service. You expect to work hard to be confident of who you think you are, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. You expect to work hard to channel the energy of anger constructively, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. You expect to work hard to pursue your dreams, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. And you expect to work hard to attract the support of benefactors, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Sixth House, especially because you are always looking for ways to lighten the workload, so you may try to hire someone to do the work for you, or failing that, you may create illness so you can call in sick. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Sixth House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Eleventh House in the in the Seventh House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Eleventh House in your Seventh House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your aspirations and acquisitions, and your benefactor in your one-to-one relationships. The resources of the Seventh House appear to be other individuals because you project everything associated with planets in your Seventh House on other people and you don't recognize that those qualities live in you. You expect other individuals to be confident of who you think you are for you and may blame them if they don't. You expect other individuals to channel the energy of anger constructively for you and may blame them if they don't. You expect other individuals to pursue your dreams for you and may blame them if they don't. And you expect other individuals to attract the support of benefactors for you and may blame them if they don't. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Seventh House by creating difficulties in your one-to-one relationships. And while the problems will appear to be about other people, they're really your own issues. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Seventh House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Eleventh House in the in the Eighth House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Eleventh House in your Eighth House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your aspirations and acquisitions, and your benefactor in your debts and shared resources. The resources of the Eighth house are other people's money, values, and opinions. This money is available to you in the form of loans, investments, or simply credit card debt. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to be confident of who you think you are. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to channel the energy of anger constructively. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to pursue your dreams. And you will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to attract the support of benefactors. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Eighth House because they will increase your awareness of your debt, both personal (what you owe other people) and financial (the money you owe to others). This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Eighth House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Eleventh House in the in the Ninth House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Eleventh House in your Ninth House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your aspirations and acquisitions, and your benefactor in your danger zone. The resources of the Ninth House are all foreign, distant, new, unfamiliar, and unknown to you. They include experts and authorities that can offer wisdom and knowledge, such as teachers, religious leaders, lawyers, and doctors. You always require new information to be confident of who you think you are because what you already know is not sufficient. You always require new information to channel the energy of anger constructively because what you already know is not sufficient. You always require new information to pursue your dreams because what you already know is not sufficient. And you always require new information to attract the support of benefactors because what you already know is not sufficient. These behaviors may cause disruption to your Ninth House because the new information you acquire may challenge and alter your beliefs. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Ninth House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Eleventh House in the Tenth House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Eleventh House in your Tenth House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your aspirations and acquisitions, and your benefactor in your public and professional image. The resources of the Tenth House include your reputation, your public image, and the passwords to all of your social media accounts. You want to be famous for your ability to be confident of who you think you are, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. You want to be famous for your ability to channel the energy of anger constructively, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. You want to be famous for your ability to pursue your dreams, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. And you want to be famous for your ability to attract the support of benefactors, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Tenth House and affect both your personal and your professional reputation. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Tenth House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Eleventh House in the Eleventh House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Eleventh House in your Eleventh House, you encounter your ego, your anger, your aspirations and acquisitions, and your benefactor in your ambitions and aspirations. The resources of the Eleventh House are your benefactors: friends, colleagues, and teammates who are in a position to support you and help you to acquire the things you believe will make you happy. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to be confident of who you think you are so you can acquire happiness. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to channel the energy of anger constructively so you can acquire happiness. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to pursue your dreams so you can acquire happiness. And you depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to attract the support of benefactors so you can acquire happiness. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Eleventh House and affect not only your ambitions and aspirations, but also the level of support you receive from your friends and benefactors. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Eleventh House.

Mars, the Ruler of the Eleventh House in the Twelfth House

With Mars, the Ruler of the Eleventh House in your Twelfth House you are unconscious of your ego, your anger, your aspirations and acquisitions, and your benefactor. The Twelfth House is above the horizon, so everything about planets in the Twelfth House is visible to others, but it's all in your blind spot, so you're the last to know about it. The resources of the Twelfth House include your hidden motivations, your unconscious programming, your shadow self, and your personal demons. You are not conscious of what motivates you to be confident of who you think you are, and it will have unexpected consequences. You are not conscious of what motivates you to channel the energy of anger constructively, and it will have unexpected consequences. You are not conscious of what motivates you to pursue your dreams, and it will have unexpected consequences. And you are not conscious of what motivates you to attract the support of benefactors, and it will have unexpected consequences. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Twelfth House, causing resentment and creating hidden enemies. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Twelfth House.