

Venus Rules the Second House

Both directly and indirectly the Second House is about money. It represents your financial resources, your salary, your earning potential, and your actual money. It also represents your skills and talents, which show how you can earn money. The planet that rules the Second House shows your attitudes towards money, and the skills that you have available to you to earn money.

The Second House is your money.

The Second House is your money and resources. It's every tangible asset that you can call "mine." The planet that rules your Second House is your money. It determines your attitudes towards money, how you earn money, how you manage money, and how you spend money. Because money is such a major concern in your life, it's important to understand the truth about money. You confuse money with prosperity, which is what you really care about, and while they're related, they're not the same thing.

Prosperity is the experience of absolute sufficiency. When you are prosperous, all of your material needs are met. More importantly, prosperity means that you are able to enjoy the experience of sufficiency because all of your emotional, psychological, and spiritual needs are met as well. Money seems to be an essential part of prosperity because money seems to make it possible (or at least easier) to meet your material needs, and prosperous people always have plenty of money flowing through their lives. But the truth is that money is the effect of prosperity, not the cause of it. When you meet the needs and learn the lessons of the planet that rules your Second House, you create prosperity.

You don't care about money. You care about the things that money represents. Money is energy, and energy is infinite. Money often shows up as a conduit that facilitates the experiences that you care about, just as electricity is a conduit that powers your appliances and charges your phone. You don't worry about how electricity works and you don't obsess about moving it from the power plant to the outlet to your television. Worrying about money is no different. Money is none of your business. Focus on the truth that you live in an infinite Universe, direct your attention towards the experiences you would like to create, and connect with your prosperity. The energy of money will flow freely through your life, and just like electricity, you'll be able to take it for granted, knowing when you need it, it will be there for you.

The Second House is your skills and talents.

The Second House represents your skills and talents. Specifically, it represents skills and talents that you can use to experience prosperity and earn money. The skills that help you to experience prosperity are intangible skills that connect you with the truth and help you reject the appearance of lack, limitation, and competition in your reality. These skills involve mastering the expressions of the planet that rules your Second House. The skills that help you to earn money are tangible; they're the talents you brag about on your résumé. Just as money is the effect of prosperity, your tangible skills are the effect of your intangible skills.

No one is born talented. You develop skills by rewiring the brain and upgrading specific neural pathways. The Talent Code, by Daniel Coyle (a book I can't recommend highly enough), explores how we develop skills and become talented through a process called deep practice. Deep practice is slow and focused, and it also requires struggle. The struggle causes the brain to upgrade the neural pathway by wrapping it in myelin. Consistent struggle is a requirement to develop skills, and upgrading your neural network takes time. You won't notice any improvement in your tangible skills until you've finished upgrading the circuits, so you need something to motivate you to stay the course. The needs of the planet that rules your Second House motivate you. They push you to stick with the deep practice and to endure the struggle and frustration until you see results.

Venus Rules the Second House

Your validation needs are your money; your money is your validation needs.

For you, validation is hard currency. Your love and appreciation has value and can be exchanged for goods and services, and even for cash. When you maintain the minimum required balance in your Validation Need Account, you create prosperity in your life. Other people see your value and want to compensate you for it. You experience absolute sufficiency because all of your material needs are met, and you enjoy that sufficiency because your emotional, psychological, and spiritual needs are met as well. But when you fail to meet your own validation needs and instead expect other people to meet them for you, you experience lack in every dimension of your life. You notice this on a personal level because you never seem to have enough money. When you don't feel loved or appreciated, you worry about money. No matter what you do, there always seems to be more money going out than there is coming in. When you appreciate your sufficiency in this moment, and recognize the truth that right now, in this moment, you have all you need, your sufficiency will grow. The real reason you care about money is that you believe that when you have enough money, you won't experience rejection or abandonment because you're unworthy of love.

You long to experience Unity and the truth that you are neither separate nor isolated from the Universe. You look for this through connections to other individuals where you can experience love and appreciation. Even though other people have access to your Validation Need Account and can make deposits and withdrawals, you are responsible for maintaining the minimum balance on your own. The more you look outside of yourself for validation, the harder it will be to manage your own validation needs. But when you learn to love and appreciate yourself and develop healthy self-esteem, the dynamic in all of your relationships transforms. You especially need to experience love and appreciation related to your money. Unconsciously, you link the balance in your checking account to the balance in your Validation Need Account. Money is the language you speak for love and appreciation. This can be challenging in your relationships. You expect that the more money you spend, the more love and appreciation other people will experience, and the level of validation you experience from others depends on how much money they spend on you. It's important that you learn to separate love and money.

You can learn to monitor your Validation Need Account and maintain the minimum required balance on your own by engaging with your money and finances. Consider that in your life, money is really about love and appreciation. Money flows in your life when you feel loved and appreciated. When you lose your connection to your validation needs and care only about the money, you create the experience of lack. Take some time to consider your relationship to your money and finances. Consider how your need for validation shows up in how you earn your money. Notice how you use money to show your appreciation. Discover how your self-esteem and sense of self-worth is linked to how you save or invest your money. But most of all, become conscious that money is how you connect to your experience of love and appreciation. Developing your gratitude muscles will transform both your relationship to money and your relationship to other people. When you spend time each day acknowledging everything that you love and appreciate, you will effortlessly manage the balance in your Validation Need Account and experience self-love and self-esteem. The more you meet your own validation needs and love and appreciate yourself, the more prosperity you will enjoy.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your validation needs and your money resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your validation needs and your money resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

How do you use money to express love and appreciation?

How do you experience love and appreciation through money? For example: how does it feel when someone gives you an inexpensive gift? How does it feel when someone gives you an expensive gift? How big of a part does the cost or value of the gift play in how loved or appreciated you feel?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

How does the balance in your checking account affect how you feel about yourself and your self-worth?

What does the balance in your checking account tell you about your relationship to love and appreciation?

What do you love and appreciate the most about your money? What do you want other people to notice and appreciate about your money and resources?

How do you love and appreciate other people for their money and prosperity?

Your validation needs are your skills and talents; your skills and talents are your validation needs.

Because meeting your validation needs is a skill, it doesn't come naturally to you. It's something you have to learn, practice, and train for, and the more time you invest in mastering it, the more talented you become at it. This matters because love and appreciation motivate you to develop every other skill and talent in your life. When you maintain the minimum required balance in your Validation Need Account, you easily acquire new skills and improve your current skills. Your talents have value and make substantial contributions to your prosperity. But when you fail to meet your own validation needs and instead expect other people to meet them for you, you don't excel at anything. At best, you are competent at the things you care about, but none of your skills are advanced enough to command attention or compensation. You lack the inspiration and motivation to improve. Developing talent involves consistent struggle, and without something to push you, it's difficult to stay the course. You want to excel and be the best at what you do because you believe that when you are the best, you won't experience rejection or abandonment because you're unworthy of love.

You long to experience Unity and the truth that you are neither separate nor isolated from the Universe. You look for this through connections to other individuals where you can experience love and appreciation. Even though other people have access to your Validation Need Account and can make deposits and withdrawals, you are responsible for maintaining the minimum balance on your own. The more you look outside of yourself for validation, the harder it will be to manage your own validation needs. But when you learn to love and appreciate yourself and develop healthy self-esteem, the dynamic in all of your relationships transforms. You especially need to experience love and appreciation related to your skills and talents. You care about being talented because when you demonstrate your skills, you experience validation and approval.

It's nice when other people recognize your accomplishments and shower you with praise, but the only way to maintain your skills is to appreciate yourself.

You can learn to monitor your Validation Need Account and maintain the minimum required balance on your own by engaging with your skills and talents. Pick any skill that you would like to learn or improve, and follow a structured program of consistent, daily practice to develop it. Remember that the goal is less about mastering the new skill and more about validating yourself. You will use love and appreciation to motivate you to stick with the program, overcome your resistance, and practice consistently. Take the time to validate yourself for your efforts. Give yourself credit for showing up, even if you are struggling. Developing your self-esteem will keep you motivated to develop the skill. The more you meet your own validation needs and love and appreciate yourself, the more you will excel and be prospered by your talents.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your validation needs and your skills and talents resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your validation needs and your skills and talents resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

Choose an example of something you are good at. How do you feel about yourself when you engage with that skill? Do you expect other people to recognize and appreciate you for your talent? How important is that recognition to you?

Think of something you're not good at. If other people encourage you and support your efforts, how does that make you feel? Does it motivate you to stick with it and develop the skill? Are you generally willing to stick with it and develop the skill if no one is there to encourage you? Why or why not?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

How do you practice and train to develop your love and appreciation skills?

How have other people functioned as your coach to help you get better at love and appreciation? Who gives you feedback and helps you correct your mistakes?

How does love and appreciation show up in your life as a marketable skill? How does your skill with validation help you to earn money?

What do you love and appreciate the most about your skills and talents? What do you want other people to notice and appreciate about your skills and talents?

How do you express love and appreciation through your skills and talents?

How do you love and appreciate other people for their skills and talents?

Your Core Values are your money; your money is your Core Values.

For you, your Core Values are hard currency. Your connection to your Core Values has value and can be exchanged for goods and services, and even for cash. When you experience the presence of your Core Values and tune to the vibration of those qualities, you create prosperity in your life. Other people see your value and want to compensate you for it. You experience absolute sufficiency because all of your material needs are met, and you enjoy that sufficiency because your emotional, psychological, and spiritual needs are met as well. But when you are not connected to your Core Values and believe the illusion that your Core Values are absent from your reality, you experience lack in every dimension of your life. You notice this on a personal level because you never seem to have enough money. When you fail to notice your Core Values, you worry about money. No matter what you do, there always seems to be more money going out than there is coming in. When you appreciate your sufficiency in this moment, and recognize the truth that right now, in this moment, you have all you need, your sufficiency will grow. The real reason you care about money is that you believe that when you have enough money, you won't feel so isolated and separate from the Divine.

The experience of your Core Values is really about experiencing Unity. When you tune to the vibration of Divine Love, Joy, Power, Peace, Wisdom, Balance, Beauty, or Order, you remember the truth that you are the embodiment of those qualities. Because these qualities exist in all things at all times, they also exist in you, and you can never be separated from them. Recognizing this truth can be challenging. Not only do you have a narrow and limited set of expectations of what these qualities look like (which is what makes it so easy for you to overlook them), but you also expect to see evidence of your Core Values in the outside world. You especially expect to recognize your Core Values in your money, and you are frequently disappointed. Consider which of the Core Values is the most absent from your experience of your money and prosperity. That's the Core Value that is the most important to you right now. You need to discover what it really feels like so you can begin to recognize it in your life.

The easiest way for you to discover and experience the feeling of your Core Values is to engage with your money and finances. Consider that in your life, money is really about your Core Values. Money flows in your life when you connect with your Core Values. When you lose your connection to your Core Values and care only about the money, you create the experience of lack. Take some time to consider your relationship to your money and finances. Select any one of the Core Values, and find where that Core Value shows up in how you earn your money. Find it in how you spend your money. Find it in how you save your money. Find it in how you invest your money. Then repeat the process with another Core Value. Build the awareness that your money is how you connect to your Core Values, and you will become more conscious of how your Core Values show up in your life. The more you recognize the presence of your Core Values in your life, the more prosperity you will enjoy.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your Core Values and your money resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your Core Values and your money resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

Which of the Core Values show up for you when you think about money? (Choose from Love, Joy, Power, Peace, Wisdom, Balance, Beauty, or Order.) Which of the Core Values do you associate the least with money?

If you don't see the presence of a Core Value in your life, could that problem be fixed if you had enough money? Why or why not?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

When considering your Core Values, choose from Divine Love, Joy, Power, Peace, Wisdom, Balance, Beauty, or Order.

How do you use money to express your Core Values?

How does the balance in your checking account affect how you feel about your Core Values?

Which of the Core Values are the easiest to notice in your money and finances? How do you recognize them? What do they look like to you?

Which of the Core Values appear to be absent from your money and prosperity? How do you expect them to show up and why do you think they're missing?

Your Core Values are your skills and talents; your skills and talents are your Core Values.

Because noticing the presence of your Core Values is a skill, it doesn't come naturally to you. It's something you have to learn, practice, and train for, and the more time you invest in mastering it, the more talented you become at it. This matters because your Core Values motivate you to develop every other skill and talent in your life. When you experience the presence of your Core Values and tune to the vibration of those qualities, you easily acquire new skills and improve your current skills. Your talents have value and make substantial contributions to your prosperity. But when you are not connected to your Core Values and believe the illusion that your Core Values are absent from your reality, you don't excel at anything. At best, you are competent at the things you care about, but none of your skills are advanced enough to command attention or compensation. You lack the inspiration and motivation to improve. Developing talent involves consistent struggle, and without something to push you, it's difficult to stay the course. You want to excel and be the best at what you do because you believe that when you are the best, you won't feel so isolated and separate from the Divine.

The experience of your Core Values is really about experiencing Unity. When you tune to the vibration of Divine Love, Joy, Power, Peace, Wisdom, Balance, Beauty, or Order, you remember the truth that you are the embodiment of those qualities. Because these qualities exist in all things at all times, they also exist in you, and you can never be separated from them. Recognizing this truth can be challenging. Not only do you have a narrow and limited set of expectations of what these qualities look like (which is what makes it so easy for you to overlook them), but you also expect to see evidence of your Core Values in the outside world. You especially expect to recognize your Core Values in your skills and talents, and you are frequently disappointed. Consider which of the Core Values is the most absent from your experience of your skills and talents. That's the Core Value that is the most important to you right now. You need to discover what it really feels like so you can begin to recognize it in your life.

The easiest way for you to discover and experience the feeling of your Core Values is to engage with your skills and talents. Pick any skill that you would like to learn or improve, and follow a structured program of consistent, daily practice to develop it. Remember that the goal is less about mastering the new skill and more about experiencing your Core Values. Choose one of the Core Values: Love, Joy, Power, Peace, Wisdom, Balance, Beauty, or Order. You will use that Core Value to motivate you to stick with the program, overcome your resistance, and practice consistently. Make sure that you track your progress with your experience of that Core Value as much as you track your progress with the skill itself. You will see improvements with the Core Value and find it easier to tune to that vibration, and that's what will keep you motivated to develop the skill. The more you recognize the presence of your Core Values in your life, the more you will excel and be prospered by your talents.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your Core Values and your skills and talents resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your Core Values and your skills and talents resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

Choose an example of something you are good at. Which of the Core Values show up for you when you think about that skill? (Choose from Love, Joy, Power, Peace, Wisdom, Balance, Beauty, or Order.) Which of the Core Values do you associate the least with that skill?

If you don't see the presence of a Core Value in your life, could that problem be fixed if you had more skill or were more talented in some way? Why or why not?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

When considering your Core Values, choose from Divine Love, Joy, Power, Peace, Wisdom, Balance, Beauty, or Order.

How do you practice and train to develop your awareness of your Core Values?

How have other people functioned as your coach to help you recognize the presence of your Core Values? Who gives you feedback and helps you correct your mistakes?

How do your Core Values show up in your life as a marketable skill? How does your skill with recognizing your Core Values help you to earn money?

Which of the Core Values are the easiest to notice in your skills and talents? How do you recognize them? What do they look like to you?

Which of the Core Values appear to be absent from your skills and talents? How do you expect them to show up and why do you think they're missing?

Venus, the Ruler of your Second House in Houses

The house occupied by the Ruler of the Second House shows where, and occasionally how, you earn your money. You express your skills and talents using the resources available in this house. Engaging in the affairs of this house will usually increase your wealth. The house that Venus occupies also tells you where and from whom you expect to receive validation.

JOURNAL QUESTIONS & INSTRUCTIONS

Begin by reviewing the chapter in the video lesson on Venus that explores the house that Venus, the Ruler of your Second House occupies. Then locate and read the description of the house occupied by Venus, the Ruler of your Second House. Now, go back and revisit each of the journal questions about how you experience Venus as the ruler of your Second House, and notice how the house Venus occupies influences your understanding.

Venus, the Ruler of the Second House in the First House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Second House in your First House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your money, and your skills and talents in your personality and outer appearance. The resources of the First House include your health, your happiness, your appearance, and your very identity. You will use your personal interests and happiness to experience love and appreciation, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. You will use your personal interests and happiness to recognize the presence of your Core Values, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. You will use your personal interests and happiness to earn money, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. And you will use your personal interests and happiness to develop your skills and talents, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your First House, affecting your avatar, your outer appearance, your happiness, and how much you enjoy your hobbies and interests. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your First House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Second House in the in the Second House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Second House in your Second House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your money, and your skills and talents in your money and resources. The resources of the Second House include your money, your personal possessions, and the skills and talents you have that can be used to earn money. You will spend money and use your talents to experience love and appreciation. You will spend money and use your talents to recognize the presence of your Core Values. You will spend money and use your talents to earn money. And you will spend money and use your talents to develop your skills and talents. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Second House, specifically because they encourage you to spend your money, but they don't necessarily help you to earn more money or connect to the truth of your prosperity. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Second House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Second House in the in the Third House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Second House in your Third House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your money, and your skills and talents in your comfort zone. The resources of your Third House are all local, close, and familiar. You can communicate to your network to ask for support, but you will only call people you already know and have worked with before. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to experience love and appreciation, and you rarely consider new options. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to recognize the presence of your Core Values, and you rarely consider new options. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to earn money, and you rarely consider new options. And rely on your familiar habits and local resources to develop your skills and talents, and you rarely consider new options. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Third House, creating changes to your comfort zone that make it less familiar and less comfortable, and forcing you to pay attention to your habits and routines. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Third House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Second House in the in the Fourth House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Second House in your Fourth House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your money, and your skills and talents in your private life. The resources of the Fourth House include your private and personal life, your home, real estate, tradition, and family connections. You do not want to be noticed when you experience love and appreciation, because it's personal and private. You do not want to be noticed when you recognize the presence of your Core Values, because it's personal and private. You do not want to be noticed when you earn money, because it's personal and private. And you do not want to be noticed when you develop your skills and talents, because it's personal and private. Your pursuit of privacy may disrupt your Fourth House, shaking the very foundation of your life. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Fourth House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Second House in the in the Fifth House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Second House in your Fifth House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your money, and your skills and talents in your creativity and fun. The resources of the Fifth House include games, gambling, entertainment, art, creativity, and all forms of amusement and recreation. You are willing to take creative risks to experience love and appreciation, and you expect to have fun in the process. You are willing to take creative risks to recognize the presence of your Core Values, and you expect to have fun in the process. You are willing to take creative risks to earn money, and you expect to have fun in the process. And you are willing to take creative risks to develop your skills and talents, and you expect to have fun in the process. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Fifth House, especially if you don't feel that you have been creative enough or if you're not having fun. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Fifth House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Second House in the in the Sixth House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Second House in your Sixth House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your money, and your skills and talents in your job, your workplace environment, and your relationships with co-workers and employees. The resources of the Sixth House include hard work and selfless service. You expect to work hard to experience love and appreciation, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. You expect to work hard to recognize the presence of your Core Values, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. You expect to work hard to earn money, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. And you expect to work hard to develop your skills and talents, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Sixth House, especially because you are always looking for ways to lighten the workload, so you may try to hire someone to do the work for you, or failing that, you may create illness so you can call in sick. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Sixth House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Second House in the in the Seventh House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Second House in your Seventh House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your money, and your skills and talents in your one-to-one relationships. The resources of the Seventh House appear to be other individuals because you project everything associated with planets in your Seventh House on other people and you don't recognize that those qualities live in you. You expect other individuals to experience love and appreciation for you and may blame them if they don't. You expect other individuals to recognize the presence of your Core Values for you and may blame them if they don't. You expect other individuals to earn money for you and may blame them if they don't. And you expect other individuals to develop your skills and talents for you and may blame them if they don't. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Seventh House by creating difficulties in your one-to-one relationships. And while the problems will appear to be about other people, they're really your own issues. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Seventh House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Second House in the in the Eighth House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Second House in your Eighth House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your money, and your skills and talents in your debts and shared resources. The resources of the Eighth house are other people's money, values, and opinions. This money is available to you in the form of loans, investments, or simply credit card debt. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to experience love and appreciation. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to recognize the presence of your Core Values. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to earn money. And you will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to develop your skills and talents. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Eighth House because they will increase your awareness of your debt, both personal (what you owe other people) and financial (the money you owe to others). This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Eighth House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Second House in the in the Ninth House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Second House in your Ninth House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your money, and your skills and talents in your danger zone. The resources of the Ninth House are all foreign, distant, new, unfamiliar, and unknown to you. They include experts and authorities that can offer wisdom and knowledge, such as teachers, religious leaders, lawyers, and doctors. You always require new information to experience love and appreciation because what you already know is not sufficient. You always require new information to recognize the presence of your Core Values because what you already know is not sufficient. You always require new information to earn money because what you already know is not sufficient. And you always require new information to develop your skills and talents because what you already know is not sufficient. These behaviors may cause disruption to your Ninth House because the new information you acquire may challenge and alter your beliefs. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Ninth House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Second House in the Tenth House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Second House in your Tenth House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your money, and your skills and talents in your public and professional image. The resources of the Tenth House include your reputation, your public image, and the passwords to all of your social media accounts. You want to be famous for your ability to experience love and appreciation, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. You want to be famous for your ability to recognize the presence of your Core Values, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. You want to be famous for your ability to earn money, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. And you want to be famous for your ability to develop your skills and talents, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Tenth House and affect both your personal and your professional reputation. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Tenth House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Second House in the Eleventh House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Second House in your Eleventh House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your money, and your skills and talents in your ambitions and aspirations. The resources of the Eleventh House are your benefactors: friends, colleagues, and teammates who are in a position to support you and help you to acquire the things you believe will make you happy. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to experience love and appreciation so you can acquire happiness. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to recognize the presence of your Core Values so you can acquire happiness. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to earn money so you can acquire happiness. And you depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to develop your skills and talents so you can acquire happiness. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Eleventh House and affect not only your ambitions and aspirations, but also the level of support you receive from your friends and benefactors. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Eleventh House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Second House in the Twelfth House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Second House in your Twelfth House you are unconscious of your validation needs, your Core Values, your money, and your skills and talents. The Twelfth House is above the horizon, so everything about planets in the Twelfth House is visible to others, but it's all in your blind spot, so you're the last to know about it. The resources of the Twelfth House include your hidden motivations, your unconscious programming, your shadow self, and your personal demons. You are not conscious of what motivates you to experience love and appreciation, and it will have unexpected consequences. You are not conscious of what motivates you to recognize the presence of your Core Values, and it will have unexpected consequences. You are not conscious of what motivates you to earn money, and it will have unexpected consequences. And you are not conscious of what motivates you to develop your skills and talents, and it will have unexpected consequences. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Twelfth House, causing resentment and creating hidden enemies. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Twelfth House.