

Venus Rules the Sixth House

The Sixth House is all work and no play. In modern usage, it's the house of service, but that glosses over the deeper themes. It's more accurate to call the Sixth House the house of indentured service, because fundamentally, it's the house of slavery. The Sixth House represents hard work you are obligated to perform, and for which you receive no recognition, prestige, or advancement. In other words, the Sixth House is your job. It's also the house of illness and disease (in contrast to the First House, which relates to your health).

The Sixth House is your job.

The Sixth House is your job, but it's not exclusively your actual job and the work you do for a paycheck. The Sixth House is the work that you do because you have to do it, and you can't expect to receive any recognition or advancement for it. Your real job is to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Sixth House. Meeting those needs requires constant work and attention. You never get a break, much less a vacation, and waiting for other people to appreciate your efforts is a complete waste of time. The degree of effort required can fluctuate. Sometimes you are able to lighten the load so that the work itself is easy for you. Other times, it's a grind, and your only reward for your hard work is more work. But whatever your passing attitude is towards the work, deep down, you understand that the work matters to you, which is why you keep doing it. One of the secrets of the Sixth House is to view your work as selfless service. When you can view your job from this perspective and know that you are contributing to something meaningful and much bigger than yourself, the work becomes easier, and you no longer care that you won't be recognized or appreciated for it.

This can be challenging to accomplish in your actual workplace. It's rare to feel empowered around your external job. You have to show up for work and put up with the workplace dynamic because you need your paycheck, but there are any number of ways you would rather spend your time. But consider that even in your external job, your real job is still to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Sixth House. If you engage with your job from this perspective, it becomes easier for you to find a higher purpose to it, which can then make your work experience less stressful. At least it can give you something to think about to get you through to lunch.

The Sixth House is your sickness.

It's important to understand your sickness. Any physical or health-related problems you experience in your body are the effect of your sickness, but they're not your actual sickness. The physical problems are the result of imbalances in your life, and they can involve imbalance in any combination of your physical, emotional, mental, or spiritual dimensions. Your sickness is what causes the imbalances.

Everybody has a sickness. When you learn to manage and monitor it, you can limit the amount of actual physical sickness you experience. The planet that rules your Sixth House is your sickness. When you try to meet the needs of that planet, you have the most difficulty maintaining balance. You may put too much attention on those needs, which causes you to neglect or ignore other needs in your life. You may not pay enough attention to those needs. And it's also possible to swing from one extreme to the other. In any case, when you are out of alignment with the planet that rules your Sixth House, you create imbalance in your life, and if you don't address those imbalances, they will eventually show up in your physical body as acute or chronic health challenges. Treating the symptoms doesn't address the problem. Healing requires you to address your sickness.

Venus Rules the Sixth House

Your validation needs are your job; your job is your validation needs.

Whatever you may do for a living, your real job is meeting your validation needs. Love and appreciation is something you have to work at, every day, whether you feel like it or not. No one else is going to meet your validation needs for you, which means you never get a break, much less a vacation. And you can't expect anyone to notice or appreciate your hard work, either. Sometimes, feeling loved hardly seems worth the effort. When you maintain the minimum required balance in your Validation Need Account, you don't mind doing your job. The work itself is easy for you, and you even have a sense that by doing your job and meeting your own validation needs, you are performing a higher service. But when you fail to meet your own validation needs and expect other people to meet them for you, experiencing love and appreciation is a struggle. The more you accomplish, the more you are expected to do. On a personal level when you don't feel loved or appreciated, your actual job—the work you perform for others in exchange for a paycheck—crushes your very soul. By the end of the day, you have no life left in you. And you have to wake up the next morning and do it all over again. You want to find a higher purpose to your hard work, because when your job has purpose, the work gets easier, and you believe that when that happens, you won't experience rejection or abandonment because you're unworthy of love.

You long to experience Unity and the truth that you are neither separate nor isolated from the Universe. You look for this through connections to other individuals where you can experience love and appreciation. Even though other people have access to your Validation Need Account and can make deposits and withdrawals, you are responsible for maintaining the minimum balance on your own. The more you look outside of yourself for validation, the harder it will be to manage your own validation needs. But when you learn to love and appreciate yourself and develop healthy self-esteem, the dynamic in all of your relationships transforms. You especially need to experience love and appreciation related to your job. You want to be recognized and validated for the work that you do, and you need to experience validation and approval in your workplace and from your boss and co-workers. Unfortunately, these expectations are unreasonable. If you want love and appreciation for your work, you have to take care of that yourself.

You can learn to monitor your Validation Need Account and maintain the minimum required balance on your own by engaging with your job. Begin by considering the work that you do: your actual job (if applicable), as well as any other tasks you are obligated to perform on a regular basis. Find the connection between that work and your experience of love and appreciation. Consider that the higher purpose of the work you do is to experience and express love and appreciation. Notice how your attitude and experience of your job and your work shifts when you engage with it from this perspective. Once you have a reference for that connection, you can explore how changing your relationship to love and appreciation affects your experience of your work. Then you can apply those references to the rest of your life, becoming more skilled with maintaining the minimum balance in your Validation Need Account. The more you meet your own validation needs and love and appreciate yourself, the easier your work and your job becomes.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your validation needs and your job resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your validation needs and your job resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

What are some examples of how you work hard to experience love and appreciation? Does anyone ever recognize you or appreciate you for your efforts?

How do you experience or pursue love and appreciation in your actual job?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

What happens if you don't work at meeting your validation needs?

What do you love and appreciate the most about your job? What do you want other people to notice and appreciate about your job?

How do you express love and appreciation through your job?

How do you love and appreciate other people for their jobs?

Your validation needs are your sickness; your sickness is your validation needs.

Validation is your sickness. You often go to extremes to experience love and appreciation. Putting so much emphasis on your validation needs can create imbalances in your life because you ignore other important aspects. When you maintain the minimum required balance in your Validation Need Account, you have a balanced approach to love and appreciation. It receives the right amount of attention and energy, but it doesn't cause you to neglect other parts of your life. But when you fail to meet your own validation needs and expect other people to meet them for you, your approach to love and appreciation is imbalanced. You become increasingly obsessed with it. You neglect other parts of your life, and ignore the warning signs that something is wrong and requires your attention. If you keep this up long enough, it will create imbalances in your physical body. At first, it will only be minor physical inconveniences, but if you ignore these warnings and do not change your behavior, you could create chronic illness or serious disability. What you really want is to be able to make the symptoms disappear without having to change your behavior in any way. You believe that when your physical body stops demanding that you pay attention and restore balance in your life, you won't experience rejection or abandonment because you're unworthy of love.

You long to experience Unity and the truth that you are neither separate nor isolated from the Universe. You look for this through connections to other individuals where you can experience love and appreciation. Even though other people have access to your Validation Need Account and can make deposits and withdrawals, you are responsible for maintaining the minimum balance on your own. The more you look outside of yourself for validation, the harder it will be to manage your own validation needs. But when you learn to love and appreciate yourself and develop healthy self-esteem, the dynamic in all of your relationships transforms. You especially need to experience love and appreciation related to your sickness. One of the few benefits of being sick is that if you are sick or injured, other people have to be nice to you and pay special attention to you. The cost of these deposits to your Validation Need Account is high, but you may find that you're willing to keep paying it.

You can learn to monitor your Validation Need Account and maintain the minimum required balance on your own by engaging with your sickness. The first step on the path to healing is admitting that you have a problem. Take a long, objective look at your history of behavior involving how you seek out love and appreciation. Identify exactly what you have sacrificed, overlooked, or put off in pursuit of love and appreciation. Then consider what the incidental costs of those behaviors have been, specifically with regards to your health and vitality. Even relatively minor disruptions like a lack of sleep (perhaps because you can't stop thinking about how to get other people to approve of you or at least pay attention to you), are examples of your sickness and can contribute to more serious problems. Once you are conscious of your sickness, you can set limits and goals to help you to manage it and stay in balance. The key is to pursue external validation in moderation and instead focus on maintaining the minimum balance in your Validation Need Account on your own. You can do this by practicing gratitude and expressing love and appreciation on a regular basis. The more you meet your own validation needs and love and appreciate yourself, the more you avoid creating imbalances in your life.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your validation needs and your sickness resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your validation needs and your sickness resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

What are some things that you have had to give up in pursuit of love and appreciation? Is it worth the sacrifice? Why or why not?

How does your pursuit of love and appreciation affect your overall health? How much time do you spend worrying about love and appreciation? Do you think this is a problem for you? Why or why not?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

How do you go to extremes in pursuit of love and appreciation? Where does love and appreciation take on too much importance in your life?

What would a healthy relationship with love and appreciation look like for you? What behaviors would you have to change to create this relationship? Are you willing to make those changes? Why or why not?

What are some of the consequences you experience when you are out of balance with love and appreciation?

What do you love and appreciate the most about your sickness? What do you want other people to notice and appreciate about your sickness?

How do you express love and appreciation through your sickness?

How do you love and appreciate other people for their sickness?

Your Core Values are your job; your job is your Core Values.

Whatever you may do for a living, your real job is your Core Values. Recognizing your Core Values is something you have to work at, every day, whether you feel like it or not. No one else is going to connect with your Core Values for you, which means you never get a break, much less a vacation. And you can't expect anyone to notice or appreciate your hard work, either. Sometimes, your Core Values hardly seem worth the effort. When you experience the presence of your Core Values and tune to the vibration of those qualities, you don't mind doing your job. The work itself is easy for you, and you even have a sense that by doing your job and recognizing the presence of your Core Values in all things, you are performing a higher service. But when you are not connected to your Core Values and believe the illusion that your Core Values are absent from your reality, recognizing the presence of your Core Values is a struggle. The more you accomplish, the more you are expected to do. On a personal level, when you fail to notice the presence of your Core Values, your actual job—the work you perform for others in exchange for a paycheck—crushes your very soul. By the end of the day, you have no life left in you. And you have to wake up the next morning and do it all over again. You want to find a higher purpose to your hard work, because when your job has purpose, the work gets easier, and you believe that when that happens, you won't feel so isolated and separate from the Divine.

The experience of your Core Values is really about experiencing Unity. When you tune to the vibration of Divine Love, Joy, Power, Peace, Wisdom, Balance, Beauty, or Order, you remember the truth that you are the embodiment of those qualities. Because these qualities exist in all things at all times, they also exist in you, and you can never be separated from them. Recognizing this truth can be challenging. Not only do you have a narrow and limited set of expectations of what these qualities look like (which is what makes it so easy for you to overlook them), but you also expect to see evidence of your Core Values in the outside world. You especially expect to recognize your Core Values in your job, and you are frequently disappointed. Consider which of the Core Values is the most absent from your experience of your job. That's the Core Value that is the most important to you right now. You need to discover what it really feels like so you can begin to recognize it in your life.

The easiest way for you to discover and experience the feeling of your Core Values is to engage with your job. Begin by considering the work that you do: your actual job (if applicable), as well as any other tasks you are obligated to perform on a regular basis. Find the connection between that work and your experience of your Core Values. Consider that the higher purpose of the work you do is to embody and express your Core Values. Notice how your attitude and experience of your job and your work shifts when you engage with it from this perspective. Your first task may be to recognize your Core Values in your job and your workplace. Even though your Core Values may appear to be absent, the truth is that they are present in all things at all times. Once you have identified how your Core Values show up in your job, you can explore how changing your relationship to your Core Values affects your experience of your work. Then you can apply those references to the rest of your life, becoming more skilled with recognizing the presence of your Core Values everywhere. The more you recognize the presence of your Core Values in your life, the easier your work and your job becomes.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your Core Values and your job resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your Core Values and your job resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

What are some examples of how you work hard to experience your Core Values? Does anyone ever recognize you or appreciate you for your efforts?

How do you experience or pursue your Core Values in your actual job and workplace environment? How well do you experience your Core Values in your workplace?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

When considering your Core Values, choose from Divine Love, Joy, Power, Peace, Wisdom, Balance, Beauty, or Order.

What happens if you don't work at noticing your Core Values?

Which of the Core Values are the easiest to notice in your job? How do you recognize them? What do they look like to you?

Which of the Core Values appear to be absent from your job? How do you expect them to show up and why do you think they're missing?

Your Core Values are your sickness; your sickness is your Core Values.

Your Core Values are your sickness. You often go to extremes to recognize the presence of your Core Values. Putting so much emphasis on your Core Values can create imbalances in your life because you ignore other important aspects. When you experience the presence of your Core Values and tune to the vibration of those qualities, you have a balanced approach to your Core Values. They receive the right amount of attention and energy, but they don't cause you to neglect other parts of your life. But when you are not connected to your Core Values and believe the illusion that your Core Values are absent from your reality, your approach to your Core Values is imbalanced. You become increasingly obsessed with them. You neglect other parts of your life, and ignore the warning signs that something is wrong and requires your attention. If you keep this up long enough, it will create imbalances in your physical body. At first, it will only be minor physical inconveniences, but if you ignore these warnings and do not change your behavior, you could create chronic illness or serious disability. What you really want is to be able to make the symptoms disappear without having to change your behavior in any way. You believe that when your physical body stops demanding that you pay attention and restore balance in your life, you won't feel so isolated and separate from the Divine.

The experience of your Core Values is really about experiencing Unity. When you tune to the vibration of Divine Love, Joy, Power, Peace, Wisdom, Balance, Beauty, or Order, you remember the truth that you are the embodiment of those qualities. Because these qualities exist in all things at all times, they also exist in you, and you can never be separated from them. Recognizing this truth can be challenging. Not only do you have a narrow and limited set of expectations of what these qualities look like (which is what makes it so easy for you to overlook them), but you also expect to see evidence of your Core Values in the outside world. Your Core Values are the root of your sickness. Whichever Core Value is the most absent from your life is what creates the imbalance in your life. You believe you are searching for that Core Value, but in fact you gather evidence to support your perceptions that it is missing from your reality because it doesn't show up the way you expect it to show up.

The easiest way for you to discover and experience the feeling of your Core Values is to engage with your sickness. The first step on the path to healing is admitting that you have a problem. Take a long, objective look at your history of behavior involving how you expect to notice and experience your Core Values. Identify exactly what you have sacrificed, overlooked, or put off in pursuit of your Core Values. Then consider what the incidental costs of those behaviors have been, specifically with regards to your health and vitality. Even relatively minor disruptions like a lack of sleep (perhaps because you can't stop thinking about the absence of your Core Values), are examples of your sickness and can contribute to more serious problems. It's easy to become overwhelmed by the apparent lack of your Core Values. Even when you accept the truth that they are present in all things, recognizing the presence of your Core Values can be difficult at first. The key is to pursue your Core Values in moderation until you get the hang of it and noticing them becomes easier for you. The more you recognize the presence of your Core Values in your life, the more you avoid creating imbalances in your life.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your Core Values and your sickness resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your Core Values and your sickness resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

What are some things that you have had to give up in pursuit of your Core Values? Is it worth the sacrifice? Why or why not?

How does your pursuit of your Core Values affect your overall health? How much time do you spend worrying about your Core Values? Do you think this is a problem for you? Why or why not?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

When considering your Core Values, choose from Divine Love, Joy, Power, Peace, Wisdom, Balance, Beauty, or Order.

How do you go to extremes in pursuit of your Core Values? Where do your Core Values take on too much importance in your life?

What would a healthy relationship with your Core Values look like for you? What behaviors would you have to change to create this relationship? Are you willing to make those changes? Why or why not?

What are some of the consequences you experience when you are out of balance with your Core Values?

Which of the Core Values are the easiest to notice in your sickness? How do you recognize them? What do they look like to you?

Which of the Core Values appear to be absent from your sickness? How do you expect them to show up and why do you think they're missing?

Venus, the Ruler of your Sixth House in Houses

The house occupied by the Ruler of the Sixth House is where you expect to labor, work, and serve. The house may directly relate to your job, or it may merely contain the resources available to you in your job and service. You must be careful how you use the resources of this house: this is the house where you encounter your sickness. If you abuse the available resources, it will increase your susceptibility to illness. The house that Venus occupies also tells you where and from whom you expect to receive validation.

JOURNAL QUESTIONS & INSTRUCTIONS

Begin by reviewing the chapter in the video lesson on Venus that explores the house that Venus, the Ruler of your Sixth House occupies. Then locate and read the description of the house occupied by Venus, the Ruler of your Sixth House. Now, go back and revisit each of the journal questions about how you experience Venus as the ruler of your Sixth House, and notice how the house Venus occupies influences your understanding.

Venus, the Ruler of the Sixth House in the First House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Sixth House in your First House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your job, and your sickness in your personality and outer appearance. The resources of the First House include your health, your happiness, your appearance, and your very identity. You will use your personal interests and happiness to experience love and appreciation, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. You will use your personal interests and happiness to recognize the presence of your Core Values, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. You will use your personal interests and happiness to lighten your workload, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. And you will use your personal interests and happiness to ignore the signs of imbalance in your life, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your First House, affecting your avatar, your outer appearance, your happiness, and how much you enjoy your hobbies and interests. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your First House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Sixth House in the in the Second House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Sixth House in your Second House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your job, and your sickness in your money and resources. The resources of the Second House include your money, your personal possessions, and the skills and talents you have that can be used to earn money. You will spend money and use your talents to experience love and appreciation. You will spend money and use your talents to recognize the presence of your Core Values. You will spend money and use your talents to lighten your workload. And you will spend money and use your talents to ignore the signs of imbalance in your life. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Second House, specifically because they encourage you to spend your money, but they don't necessarily help you to earn more money or connect to the truth of your prosperity. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Second House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Sixth House in the in the Third House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Sixth House in your Third House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your job, and your sickness in your comfort zone. The resources of your Third House are all local, close, and familiar. You can communicate to your network to ask for support, but you will only call people you already know and have worked with before. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to experience love and appreciation, and you rarely consider new options. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to recognize the presence of your Core Values, and you rarely consider new options. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to lighten your workload, and you rarely consider new options. And rely on your familiar habits and local resources to ignore the signs of imbalance in your life, and you rarely consider new options. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Third House, creating changes to your comfort zone that make it less familiar and less comfortable, and forcing you to pay attention to your habits and routines. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Third House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Sixth House in the in the Fourth House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Sixth House in your Fourth House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your job, and your sickness in your private life. The resources of the Fourth House include your private and personal life, your home, real estate, tradition, and family connections. You do not want to be noticed when you experience love and appreciation, because it's personal and private. You do not want to be noticed when you recognize the presence of your Core Values, because it's personal and private. You do not want to be noticed when you lighten your workload, because it's personal and private. And you do not want to be noticed when you ignore the signs of imbalance in your life, because it's personal and private. Your pursuit of privacy may disrupt your Fourth House, shaking the very foundation of your life. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Fourth House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Sixth House in the in the Fifth House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Sixth House in your Fifth House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your job, and your sickness in your creativity and fun. The resources of the Fifth House include games, gambling, entertainment, art, creativity, and all forms of amusement and recreation. You are willing to take creative risks to experience love and appreciation, and you expect to have fun in the process. You are willing to take creative risks to recognize the presence of your Core Values, and you expect to have fun in the process. You are willing to take creative risks to lighten your workload, and you expect to have fun in the process. And you are willing to take creative risks to ignore the signs of imbalance in your life, and you expect to have fun in the process. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Fifth House, especially if you don't feel that you have been creative enough or if you're not having fun. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Fifth House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Sixth House in the in the Sixth House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Sixth House in your Sixth House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your job, and your sickness in your job, your workplace environment, and your relationships with co-workers and employees. The resources of the Sixth House include hard work and selfless service. You expect to work hard to experience love and appreciation, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. You expect to work hard to recognize the presence of your Core Values, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. You expect to work hard to lighten your workload, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. And you expect to work hard to ignore the signs of imbalance in your life, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Sixth House, especially because you are always looking for ways to lighten the workload, so you may try to hire someone to do the work for you, or failing that, you may create illness so you can call in sick. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Sixth House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Sixth House in the in the Seventh House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Sixth House in your Seventh House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your job, and your sickness in your one-to-one relationships. The resources of the Seventh House appear to be other individuals because you project everything associated with planets in your Seventh House on other people and you don't recognize that those qualities live in you. You expect other individuals to experience love and appreciation for you and may blame them if they don't. You expect other individuals to recognize the presence of your Core Values for you and may blame them if they don't. You expect other individuals to lighten your workload for you and may blame them if they don't. And you expect other individuals to ignore the signs of imbalance in your life for you and may blame them if they don't. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Seventh House by creating difficulties in your one-to-one relationships. And while the problems will appear to be about other people, they're really your own issues. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Seventh House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Sixth House in the in the Eighth House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Sixth House in your Eighth House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your job, and your sickness in your debts and shared resources. The resources of the Eighth house are other people's money, values, and opinions. This money is available to you in the form of loans, investments, or simply credit card debt. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to experience love and appreciation. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to recognize the presence of your Core Values. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to lighten your workload. And you will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to ignore the signs of imbalance in your life. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Eighth House because they will increase your awareness of your debt, both personal (what you owe other people) and financial (the money you owe to others). This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Eighth House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Sixth House in the in the Ninth House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Sixth House in your Ninth House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your job, and your sickness in your danger zone. The resources of the Ninth House are all foreign, distant, new, unfamiliar, and unknown to you. They include experts and authorities that can offer wisdom and knowledge, such as teachers, religious leaders, lawyers, and doctors. You always require new information to experience love and appreciation because what you already know is not sufficient. You always require new information to recognize the presence of your Core Values because what you already know is not sufficient. You always require new information to lighten your workload because what you already know is not sufficient. And you always require new information to ignore the signs of imbalance in your life because what you already know is not sufficient. These behaviors may cause disruption to your Ninth House because the new information you acquire may challenge and alter your beliefs. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Ninth House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Sixth House in the Tenth House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Sixth House in your Tenth House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your job, and your sickness in your public and professional image. The resources of the Tenth House include your reputation, your public image, and the passwords to all of your social media accounts. You want to be famous for your ability to experience love and appreciation, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. You want to be famous for your ability to recognize the presence of your Core Values, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. You want to be famous for your ability to lighten your workload, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. And you want to be famous for your ability to ignore the signs of imbalance in your life, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Tenth House and affect both your personal and your professional reputation. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Tenth House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Sixth House in the Eleventh House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Sixth House in your Eleventh House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your job, and your sickness in your ambitions and aspirations. The resources of the Eleventh House are your benefactors: friends, colleagues, and teammates who are in a position to support you and help you to acquire the things you believe will make you happy. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to experience love and appreciation so you can acquire happiness. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to recognize the presence of your Core Values so you can acquire happiness. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to lighten your workload so you can acquire happiness. And you depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to ignore the signs of imbalance in your life so you can acquire happiness. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Eleventh House and affect not only your ambitions and aspirations, but also the level of support you receive from your friends and benefactors. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Eleventh House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Sixth House in the Twelfth House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Sixth House in your Twelfth House you are unconscious of your validation needs, your Core Values, your job, and your sickness. The Twelfth House is above the horizon, so everything about planets in the Twelfth House is visible to others, but it's all in your blind spot, so you're the last to know about it. The resources of the Twelfth House include your hidden motivations, your unconscious programming, your shadow self, and your personal demons. You are not conscious of what motivates you to experience love and appreciation, and it will have unexpected consequences. You are not conscious of what motivates you to recognize the presence of your Core Values, and it will have unexpected consequences. You are not conscious of what motivates you to lighten your workload, and it will have unexpected consequences. And you are not conscious of what motivates you to ignore the signs of imbalance in your life, and it will have unexpected consequences. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Twelfth House, causing resentment and creating hidden enemies. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Twelfth House.