

Venus Rules the Seventh House

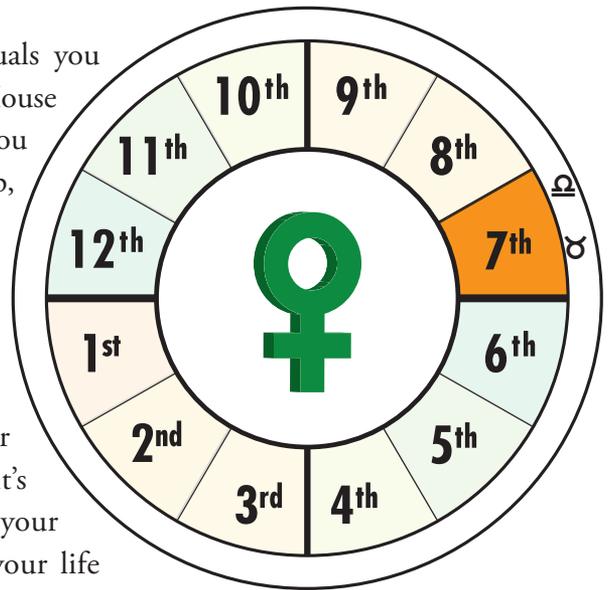

The Seventh House contains the individuals you relate to. It may appear that the Seventh House involves other people, but in fact, when you engage with the Seventh House through relationship, what you're looking at is a mirror. Your partners in relationship reflect your own issues back to you.

The Seventh House is your partner and your adversary.

The Seventh House is your partner, and also your adversary. But the first thing to remember is that it's the planet that rules the Seventh House that is your actual partner and adversary. The individuals in your life who take on the role of your partner or your adversary play those roles because you are projecting the ruler of your Seventh House on them, and they are reflecting that planet — and its needs and lessons — back to you. You engage with the planet that rules your Seventh House through your one-to-one relationships. But it's always about the planet and never about the person who appears to embody the planet for you.

Your partner is like the proverbial angel on your shoulder. It's always with you, whispering advice and encouragement in your ear. Your partner wants to support you so that you can be happy. Of course, you have two shoulders, and your adversary sits on the other one. Your adversary also supports you, but it supports you by creating challenges and obstacles for you to overcome. The quality of the advice and support you receive from your partner and your adversary depends on whether or not you are in right relationship with the planet that rules your Seventh House. The goal is not to heed your partner and ignore your adversary (which is a good thing, because often it's hard to tell them apart). The goal is to make sure that both your partner and your adversary support you effectively. If your adversary creates needless difficulties for you and your partner doesn't engage fully, you won't experience much happiness.

You can engage with your partner and your adversary through your one-to-one relationships. Remember that no matter what the issue appears to be in a relationship, if that person is playing the role of your partner or your adversary, it's really about the needs of the planet that rules your Seventh House. When you move into right relationship with that planet and begin to meet those needs, the quality of your one-to-one relationships will improve.

The Seventh House is other people.

Other people do not live inside you. However, other people do function as mirrors that reflect the ruler of your Seventh House back to you. Until you recognize that other people are mirrors, they will appear to embody the needs and qualities of the planet that rules your Seventh House. You project your unresolved issues, judgments, and expectations of the ruler of your Seventh House on other people, and for a while at least, you can pretend that those issues belong to other people and not to you. Eventually, you need to accept the truth that everything you see in other people, including all of the qualities you judge or disapprove of, lives inside you. This can be a lot more fun than it sounds.

When you walk past an actual mirror, you usually take a moment and check your reflection. You want to be certain that you look your best and that (both metaphorically and literally) you don't have spinach in your teeth. What if you did the same thing with other people? When you notice something about someone else's appearance, view it as if you just caught a glimpse of your own reflection. It's probably a distorted reflection, and what you see (and judge) in other people may not be nearly as pronounced in you, but it still exists in you somewhere, and if you notice it in other people, it means that you need to give it some conscious attention in yourself. And if you're wondering what to look for, just remember that it will always have to do with the needs or expression of the planet that rules your Seventh House.

Venus Rules the Seventh House

Your validation needs are your partner and your adversary; your partner and your adversary are your validation needs.

Your validation needs are your partner: they're like the proverbial angel on your shoulder. They're always with you, whispering advice and encouragement in your ear. At the same time, your validation needs are your adversary, sitting on your other shoulder. Your adversary also supports you, but it supports you by creating challenges and obstacles for you to overcome. The quality of the advice and support you receive from your partner and your adversary depends on how well you embody love and appreciation. When you maintain the minimum required balance in your Validation Need Account, both your partner and your adversary give you clear, appropriate guidance. On a personal level, you feel supported by the individuals in your life who play the roles of your partner and your adversary in your story. But when you fail to meet your own validation needs and expect other people to meet them for you, your adversary creates ongoing problems for you, and your partner doesn't do much to help. No matter whose advice you follow, it doesn't work out the way you expect it to. And on a personal level, when you don't feel loved or appreciated, this shows up as challenges with your one-to-one relationships. The individuals who play the role of your adversaries begin to feel more like your enemies, and the individuals who you expect to be in your corner don't support you. You want to improve the quality of your one-to-one relationships because you believe that when the individuals in your life really care about your happiness, you won't experience rejection or abandonment because you're unworthy of love.

You long to experience Unity and the truth that you are neither separate nor isolated from the Universe. You look for this through connections to other individuals where you can experience love and appreciation. Even though other people have access to your Validation Need Account and can make deposits and withdrawals, you are responsible for maintaining the minimum balance on your own. The more you look outside of yourself for validation, the harder it will be to manage your own validation needs. But when you learn to love and appreciate yourself and develop healthy self-esteem, the dynamic in all of your relationships transforms. You especially need to experience love and appreciation related to your partner and your adversary. You rely on other individuals to make regular deposits in your Validation Need Account, and this is particularly important to you with your special one-to-one relationships such as your romantic partner, close friends, and family members. But you must learn to feel loved and appreciated enough on your own.

You can learn to monitor your Validation Need Account and maintain the minimum required balance on your own by engaging with the individuals in your life who play the roles of your partner and your adversary. Start by identifying an individual who often plays the role of your partner, and consider how this person uses love and appreciation to support and encourage you. Next, choose someone who shows up in your life as your adversary, and notice how that person uses love and appreciation to challenge you. Use these relationships as a barometer to measure your own level of mastery with maintaining the minimum balance in your Validation Need Account. The level of love and appreciation you experience in these relationships is a reflection of the level of love and appreciation you feel towards yourself. When your partner or your adversary isn't making you feel loved or appreciated, you need to express love and appreciation towards them and make deposits in their Validation Need Accounts. This will restore the balance in your own Validation Need Account. The more you meet your own validation needs and love and appreciate yourself, the more your one-to-one relationships will improve.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your validation needs and your partner and your adversary resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your validation needs and your partner and your adversary resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

Think of a person who plays the role of your partner and generally supports and encourages you. How do you expect this person to meet your validation needs?

Think of a person who plays the role of your adversary and who often creates challenges and obstacles for you. How do you expect this person to meet your validation needs?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

What are some examples of how your validation needs are your partner and support you in your life?

What are some examples of how your validation needs are your adversary and create challenges for you?

What do you love and appreciate the most about your partner and your adversary?
What do you want other people to notice and appreciate about your partner and your adversary?

How do you express love and appreciation through your partner and your adversary?

How do you love and appreciate other people for their partners and their adversaries?

Your validation needs are other people; other people are your validation needs.

Other people seem to be the embodiment of love and appreciation to you, but in fact, you project your own issues, judgments, and expectations of love and appreciation on other people, and they reflect those projections back to you. Other people are mirrors that help you to become aware of your own relationship to love and appreciation and how well you are meeting your validation needs. This can be a difficult lesson to learn because you first need to accept that despite appearances, it's never about the other person; it's always your own issue. When you maintain the minimum required balance in your Validation Need Account, you have a favorable impression of other people. You notice their best qualities, and you are attracted to them. But when you fail to meet your own validation needs and expect other people to meet them for you, other people don't measure up. You notice their flaws and their shortcomings, and you don't have a good impression of them. You especially judge other people based on their appearance, and you reject any new information that doesn't reinforce your first impression. It never occurs to you that you're seeing your own reflection in other people. You want other people to pay more attention to their appearance and address their flaws because you want to like them. You believe that when you find other people attractive, you won't experience rejection or abandonment because you're unworthy of love.

You long to experience Unity and the truth that you are neither separate nor isolated from the Universe. You look for this through connections to other individuals where you can experience love and appreciation. Even though other people have access to your Validation Need Account and can make deposits and withdrawals, you are responsible for maintaining the minimum balance on your own. The more you look outside of yourself for validation, the harder it will be to manage your own validation needs. But when you learn to love and appreciate yourself and develop healthy self-esteem, the dynamic in all of your relationships transforms. You especially need to experience love and appreciation related to other people. You want to feel that other people like you. You want to be noticed when you are out in public and to believe that other people find you attractive. You don't want strangers approaching you and giving you personal attention because that would be creepy. But you want to believe that they have to restrain themselves from doing so.

You can learn to monitor your Validation Need Account and maintain the minimum required balance on your own by engaging with other people. Begin by noticing how you judge other people, and especially whether you find other people attractive or appreciate them in any way. The next step is the hard part: remembering the truth that other people are mirrors, and what you're seeing (and judging) is your own reflection. It may be a distorted reflection, but whatever issues you notice in other people live in you somewhere. Whatever you judge about other people you judge about yourself. And what this really means is that you've identified something in yourself that is feeling unloved and unappreciated. Every negative perception you have about other people is a request for love and appreciation. When you become conscious that you're judging someone, stop and choose a better-feeling thought. Find something that you can love and appreciate about that person and send those positive thoughts to them. When you express love and appreciation for other people, you also express love and appreciation for yourself. The more you meet your own validation needs and love and appreciate yourself, the more you will like other people.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your validation needs and other people resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your validation needs and other people resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

How well do you think other people express love and appreciation in their lives? Where and how are they not living up to your expectations?

Can you recognize how your judgments of other people apply to you? Are you able to drop those judgments and find something about other people that you can love and appreciate? Why or why not?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

What are some examples of how you notice love and appreciation in other people?

Generally, how well do other people make you feel loved and appreciated?

What are the biggest problems other people seem to have with love and appreciation?

Do you see where you have those problems with love and appreciation in your life?

What do you love and appreciate the most about other people? What do you want other people to notice and appreciate about you?

How do you express love and appreciation through other people?

Your Core Values are your partner and your adversary; your partner and your adversary are your Core Values.

Your Core Values are your partner: they're like the proverbial angel on your shoulder. They're always with you, whispering advice and encouragement in your ear. At the same time, your Core Values are your adversary, sitting on your other shoulder. Your adversary also supports you, but it supports you by creating challenges and obstacles for you to overcome. The quality of the advice and support you receive from your partner and your adversary depends on how well you embody your Core Values. When you experience the presence of your Core Values and tune to the vibration of those qualities, both your partner and your adversary give you clear, appropriate guidance. On a personal level, you feel supported by the individuals in your life who play the roles of your partner and your adversary in your story. But when you are not connected to your Core Values and believe the illusion that your Core Values are absent from your reality, your adversary creates ongoing problems for you, and your partner doesn't do much to help. No matter whose advice you follow, it doesn't work out the way you expect it to. And on a personal level, when you fail to notice your Core Values, this shows up as challenges with your one-to-one relationships. The individuals who play the role of your adversaries begin to feel more like your enemies, and the individuals who you expect to be in your corner don't support you. You want to improve the quality of your one-to-one relationships because you believe that when the individuals in your life really care about your happiness, you won't feel so isolated and separate from the Divine.

The experience of your Core Values is really about experiencing Unity. When you tune to the vibration of Divine Love, Joy, Power, Peace, Wisdom, Balance, Beauty, or Order, you remember the truth that you are the embodiment of those qualities. Because these qualities exist in all things at all times, they also exist in you, and you can never be separated from them. Recognizing this truth can be challenging. Not only do you have a narrow and limited set of expectations of what these qualities look like (which is what makes it so easy for you to overlook them), but you also expect to see evidence of your Core Values in the outside world. You expect to recognize your Core Values in your partner and your adversary, and you are frequently disappointed. Consider which of the Core Values is the most absent from your experience of your partner and your adversary. That's the Core Value that is the most important to you right now. You need to discover what it really feels like so you can begin to recognize it in your life.

The easiest way for you to discover and experience the feeling of your Core Values is to engage with the individuals in your life who play the roles of your partner and your adversary. Start by identifying an individual who often plays the role of your partner, and consider how this person uses your Core Values to support and encourage you. It's likely that you will notice and admire the presence of your Core Values in your relationship with this person. Next, choose someone who shows up in your life as your adversary, and notice how that person uses your Core Values to challenge you, often because your Core Values seem to be absent from your experience of that relationship. Remember the truth that your Core Values are present at all times and in all things, including in your relationships with your partners and your adversaries. The more you recognize your Core Values in these relationships, the easier it becomes to recognize your Core Values in the rest of your life. And the more you recognize the presence of your Core Values in your life, the more your one-to-one relationships will improve.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your Core Values and your partner and your adversary resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your Core Values and your partner and your adversary resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

Think of a person who plays the role of your partner and generally supports and encourages you. How does this person embody your Core Values to you?

Think of a person who plays the role of your adversary and who often creates challenges and obstacles for you. How does this person embody your Core Values to you?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

When considering your Core Values, choose from Divine Love, Joy, Power, Peace, Wisdom, Balance, Beauty, or Order.

What are some examples of how your Core Values are your partner and support you in your life?

What are some examples of how your Core Values are your adversary and create challenges for you?

Which of the Core Values are the easiest to notice in your partner and your adversary? How do you recognize them? What do they look like to you?

Which of the Core Values appear to be absent from your partner and your adversary? How do you expect them to show up and why do you think they're missing?

Your Core Values are other people; other people are your Core Values.

Other people seem to be the embodiment of your Core Values to you, but in fact, you project your own issues, judgments, and expectations of your Core Values on other people, and they reflect those projections back to you. Other people are mirrors that help you to become aware of your own relationship to your Core Values and how well you are recognizing the presence of your Core Values in all things. This can be a difficult lesson to learn because you first need to accept that despite appearances, it's never about the other person; it's always your own issue. When you experience the presence of your Core Values and tune to the vibration of those qualities, you have a favorable impression of other people. You notice their best qualities, and you are attracted to them. But when you are not connected to your Core Values and believe the illusion that your Core Values are absent from your reality, other people don't measure up. You notice their flaws and their shortcomings, and you don't have a good impression of them. You especially judge other people based on their appearance, and you reject any new information that doesn't reinforce your first impression. It never occurs to you that you're seeing your own reflection in other people. You want other people to pay more attention to their appearance and address their flaws because you want to like them. You believe that when you find other people attractive, you won't feel so isolated and separate from the Divine.

The experience of your Core Values is really about experiencing Unity. When you tune to the vibration of Divine Love, Joy, Power, Peace, Wisdom, Balance, Beauty, or Order, you remember the truth that you are the embodiment of those qualities. Because these qualities exist in all things at all times, they also exist in you, and you can never be separated from them. Recognizing this truth can be challenging. Not only do you have a narrow and limited set of expectations of what these qualities look like (which is what makes it so easy for you to overlook them), but you also expect to see evidence of your Core Values in the outside world. You expect to recognize your Core Values in other people, and you are frequently disappointed. Consider which of the Core Values is the most absent from your experience of other people. That's the Core Value that is the most important to you right now. You need to discover what it really feels like so you can begin to recognize it in your life.

The easiest way for you to discover and experience the feeling of your Core Values is to engage with other people. Begin by noticing how you judge other people, and especially the judgments you have that involve your Core Values. The next step is the hard part: remembering the truth that other people are mirrors, and what you're seeing (and judging) is your own reflection. It may be a distorted reflection, but whatever issues you notice in other people about your Core Values live in you somewhere. When you catch your reflection in other people, you can become conscious of these issues and address them before they cause too much trouble for you. You can use other people as mirrors to track your progress with recognizing your Core Values. Whatever Core Value appears to be missing from other people is the Core Value you seek right now. Question your expectations of what that Core Value looks like until you can recognize how it is present in other people. And when you recognize your Core Values in other people, you can find them in yourself. The more you recognize the presence of your Core Values in your life, the more you will like other people.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your Core Values and other people resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your Core Values and other people resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

How well do you think other people express your Core Values in their lives? Where and how are they not living up to your expectations?

How does your judgment of other people's experience of your Core Values reflect your own experience of your Core Values? Can you recognize how your judgments of other people apply to you? Why or why not?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

When considering your Core Values, choose from Divine Love, Joy, Power, Peace, Wisdom, Balance, Beauty, or Order.

What are some examples of how you notice your Core Values in other people?

What are the biggest problems that other people have expressing your Core Values? Do you see where you have those problems with your Core Values in your life?

Which of the Core Values are the easiest to notice in other people? How do you recognize them? What do they look like to you?

Which of the Core Values appear to be absent from other people? How do you expect them to show up and why do you think they're missing?

Venus, the Ruler of your Seventh House in Houses

The house occupied by the Ruler of the Seventh House shows where you most rely on other people in your life and where you are most likely to give away your power to other individuals. Your partners in relationship have more access to the resources of this house than they should. These resources are vital to healthy partnerships and relationships, but you must be fully responsible for them because they're your resources, not your partners'. The house that Venus occupies also tells you where and from whom you expect to receive validation.

JOURNAL QUESTIONS & INSTRUCTIONS

Begin by reviewing the chapter in the video lesson on Venus that explores the house that Venus, the Ruler of your Seventh House occupies. Then locate and read the description of the house occupied by Venus, the Ruler of your Seventh House. Now, go back and revisit each of the journal questions about how you experience Venus as the ruler of your Seventh House, and notice how the house Venus occupies influences your understanding.

Venus, the Ruler of the Seventh House in the First House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Seventh House in your First House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your partner and your adversary, and other people in your personality and outer appearance. The resources of the First House include your health, your happiness, your appearance, and your very identity. You will use your personal interests and happiness to experience love and appreciation, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. You will use your personal interests and happiness to recognize the presence of your Core Values, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. You will use your personal interests and happiness to improve the quality of your one-to-one relationships, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. And you will use your personal interests and happiness to fix the problems you see in other people, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your First House, affecting your avatar, your outer appearance, your happiness, and how much you enjoy your hobbies and interests. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your First House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Seventh House in the in the Second House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Seventh House in your Second House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your partner and your adversary, and other people in your money and resources. The resources of the Second House include your money, your personal possessions, and the skills and talents you have that can be used to earn money. You will spend money and use your talents to experience love and appreciation. You will spend money and use your talents to recognize the presence of your Core Values. You will spend money and use your talents to improve the quality of your one-to-one relationships. And you will spend money and use your talents to fix the problems you see in other people. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Second House, specifically because they encourage you to spend your money, but they don't necessarily help you to earn more money or connect to the truth of your prosperity. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Second House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Seventh House in the in the Third House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Seventh House in your Third House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your partner and your adversary, and other people in your comfort zone. The resources of your Third House are all local, close, and familiar. You can communicate to your network to ask for support, but you will only call people you already know and have worked with before. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to experience love and appreciation, and you rarely consider new options. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to recognize the presence of your Core Values, and you rarely consider new options. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to improve the quality of your one-to-one relationships, and you rarely consider new options. And rely on your familiar habits and local resources to fix the problems you see in other people, and you rarely consider new options. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Third House, creating changes to your comfort zone that make it less familiar and less comfortable, and forcing you to pay attention to your habits and routines. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Third House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Seventh House in the in the Fourth House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Seventh House in your Fourth House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your partner and your adversary, and other people in your private life. The resources of the Fourth House include your private and personal life, your home, real estate, tradition, and family connections. You do not want to be noticed when you experience love and appreciation, because it's personal and private. You do not want to be noticed when you recognize the presence of your Core Values, because it's personal and private. You do not want to be noticed when you improve the quality of your one-to-one relationships, because it's personal and private. And you do not want to be noticed when you fix the problems you see in other people, because it's personal and private. Your pursuit of privacy may disrupt your Fourth House, shaking the very foundation of your life. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Fourth House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Seventh House in the in the Fifth House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Seventh House in your Fifth House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your partner and your adversary, and other people in your creativity and fun. The resources of the Fifth House include games, gambling, entertainment, art, creativity, and all forms of amusement and recreation. You are willing to take creative risks to experience love and appreciation, and you expect to have fun in the process. You are willing to take creative risks to recognize the presence of your Core Values, and you expect to have fun in the process. You are willing to take creative risks to improve the quality of your one-to-one relationships, and you expect to have fun in the process. And you are willing to take creative risks to fix the problems you see in other people, and you expect to have fun in the process. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Fifth House, especially if you don't feel that you have been creative enough or if you're not having fun. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Fifth House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Seventh House in the in the Sixth House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Seventh House in your Sixth House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your partner and your adversary, and other people in your job, your workplace environment, and your relationships with co-workers and employees. The resources of the Sixth House include hard work and selfless service. You expect to work hard to experience love and appreciation, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. You expect to work hard to recognize the presence of your Core Values, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. You expect to work hard to improve the quality of your one-to-one relationships, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. And you expect to work hard to fix the problems you see in other people, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Sixth House, especially because you are always looking for ways to lighten the workload, so you may try to hire someone to do the work for you, or failing that, you may create illness so you can call in sick. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Sixth House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Seventh House in the in the Seventh House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Seventh House in your Seventh House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your partner and your adversary, and other people in your one-to-one relationships. The resources of the Seventh House appear to be other individuals because you project everything associated with planets in your Seventh House on other people and you don't recognize that those qualities live in you. You expect other individuals to experience love and appreciation for you and may blame them if they don't. You expect other individuals to recognize the presence of your Core Values for you and may blame them if they don't. You expect other individuals to improve the quality of your one-to-one relationships for you and may blame them if they don't. And you expect other individuals to fix the problems you see in other people for you and may blame them if they don't. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Seventh House by creating difficulties in your one-to-one relationships. And while the problems will appear to be about other people, they're really your own issues. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Seventh House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Seventh House in the in the Eighth House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Seventh House in your Eighth House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your partner and your adversary, and other people in your debts and shared resources. The resources of the Eighth house are other people's money, values, and opinions. This money is available to you in the form of loans, investments, or simply credit card debt. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to experience love and appreciation. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to recognize the presence of your Core Values. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to improve the quality of your one-to-one relationships. And you will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to fix the problems you see in other people. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Eighth House because they will increase your awareness of your debt, both personal (what you owe other people) and financial (the money you owe to others). This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Eighth House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Seventh House in the Ninth House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Seventh House in your Ninth House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your partner and your adversary, and other people in your danger zone. The resources of the Ninth House are all foreign, distant, new, unfamiliar, and unknown to you. They include experts and authorities that can offer wisdom and knowledge, such as teachers, religious leaders, lawyers, and doctors. You always require new information to experience love and appreciation because what you already know is not sufficient. You always require new information to recognize the presence of your Core Values because what you already know is not sufficient. You always require new information to improve the quality of your one-to-one relationships because what you already know is not sufficient. And you always require new information to fix the problems you see in other people because what you already know is not sufficient. These behaviors may cause disruption to your Ninth House because the new information you acquire may challenge and alter your beliefs. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Ninth House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Seventh House in the Tenth House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Seventh House in your Tenth House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your partner and your adversary, and other people in your public and professional image. The resources of the Tenth House include your reputation, your public image, and the passwords to all of your social media accounts. You want to be famous for your ability to experience love and appreciation, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. You want to be famous for your ability to recognize the presence of your Core Values, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. You want to be famous for your ability to improve the quality of your one-to-one relationships, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. And you want to be famous for your ability to fix the problems you see in other people, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Tenth House and affect both your personal and your professional reputation. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Tenth House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Seventh House in the Eleventh House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Seventh House in your Eleventh House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your partner and your adversary, and other people in your ambitions and aspirations. The resources of the Eleventh House are your benefactors: friends, colleagues, and teammates who are in a position to support you and help you to acquire the things you believe will make you happy. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to experience love and appreciation so you can acquire happiness. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to recognize the presence of your Core Values so you can acquire happiness. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to improve the quality of your one-to-one relationships so you can acquire happiness. And you depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to fix the problems you see in other people so you can acquire happiness. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Eleventh House and affect not only your ambitions and aspirations, but also the level of support you receive from your friends and benefactors. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Eleventh House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Seventh House in the Twelfth House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Seventh House in your Twelfth House you are unconscious of your validation needs, your Core Values, your partner and your adversary, and other people. The Twelfth House is above the horizon, so everything about planets in the Twelfth House is visible to others, but it's all in your blind spot, so you're the last to know about it. The resources of the Twelfth House include your hidden motivations, your unconscious programming, your shadow self, and your personal demons. You are not conscious of what motivates you to experience love and appreciation, and it will have unexpected consequences. You are not conscious of what motivates you to recognize the presence of your Core Values, and it will have unexpected consequences. You are not conscious of what motivates you to improve the quality of your one-to-one relationships, and it will have unexpected consequences. And you are not conscious of what motivates you to fix the problems you see in other people, and it will have unexpected consequences. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Twelfth House, causing resentment and creating hidden enemies. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Twelfth House.