

Venus Rules the Eighth House

The Eighth House is a house of loss. The loss is usually financial, and the most practical expressions of the Eighth House involve debt and other financial obligations. The money you make through the Eighth House comes from legacies and inheritances, so even these financial gains are the result of loss (i.e., death). The Eighth House is the house of your partner's money and resources. Where the Second House is "mine" and the Seventh House is "yours," the Eighth House is "ours."

The Eighth House is your debt.

If you're like most people, when you hear the word "debt" you immediately assume two things: it involves money and it's bad. Neither of those things is universally true, and adjusting your definition of debt and your judgments about it is an important step towards experiencing prosperity. Whatever the external expressions of debt may be, your actual debt is the planet that rules your Eighth House. The needs and expression of that planet are the Universal Puzzle Piece that connects to your personal experience of debt. You owe the expression of that planet to others. Meeting the needs of that planet carries an extra level of obligation for you. But remember that debt flows in two directions. Just as you owe the expression of the ruler of your Eighth House to others, other people also owe it to you. The most important lesson about debt is that it's an expression of the Law of Circulation. You both give and receive support.

And that's another important thing to remember about debt: it's evidence of support. When you owe someone, it means that they provided you with help and support when you needed it. Other people owe you because you provided them with help and support, and they will repay that support at some point in the future. The most appropriate attitude towards debt is gratitude.

That being said, the financial expression of debt is an important consideration. Debt is part of a bigger picture of your prosperity. It's important to be conscious of your financial obligations and the money you owe (as well as the money owed to you). It's an odd concept, but in the world of finance, debt can be viewed as an asset. Personal financial debt often feels like a burden, however, and it's important to manage it consciously. This becomes easier when you remember that even your credit card balances and your student loan debt are really about your relationship to the needs and expression of the planet that rules your Eighth House. When you manage the needs of that planet, you manage your debt.

The Eighth House is your shared resources.

You are responsible for your Eighth House, but you're not exclusively responsible for it. The Eighth House is like a joint bank account. You can make deposits and withdrawals from the account, but so can other people. You're still responsible for maintaining the minimum balance in the account, but you don't have full or complete control over it. The planet that rules your Eighth House is your shared resources, and the needs and expressions of that planet are joint bank accounts. On the plus side, other people can make deposits in those accounts, which means you often have more resources available to you than you expect, and meeting the needs of that planet is easy. But the down side is that other people can also make withdrawals from that account, which means there may be less available to you when you need it the most. The bottom line is that everything associated with the Eighth House—and the needs of the planet that rules the Eighth House—is a collaboration. To some degree, you will need to pool your resources and coordinate with other people to accomplish your Eighth House goals.

In the external world, managing shared resources, such as joint checking accounts, shared food and supplies, or communal living spaces, has its own set of challenges. It's easier and more harmonious when everyone agrees on the rules and boundaries up front, so everyone contributes equally and shares in both the responsibilities and the rewards. This is not quite as easy in your internal world because other people don't actually agree to pool their resources to help you meet the needs of the ruler of your Eighth House. You can't hold them accountable for doing their part because it's not really their business in the first place. You can, however, limit access to your joint bank accounts. If someone isn't making regular deposits in your account, you can block their access.

Venus Rules the Eighth House

Your validation needs are your debt; your debt is your validation needs.

Validation is your debt. It's what you owe, and it's what other people owe you. Remember that debt is evidence of support. When you owe someone, it means that they provided you with help and support when you needed it, and others owe you for the help and support you gave them. When you maintain the minimum required balance in your Validation Need Account, you inspire and support other people, and you actively engage with the Law of Circulation. You both give and receive support, and this creates prosperity for you. But when you fail to meet your own validation needs and expect other people to meet them for you, debt feels like a burden. You worry about your ability to repay your debts, and you are reluctant to accept support when you need it because that would mean taking on more debt, all of which limits your ability to experience love and appreciation. On a personal level, when you don't feel loved or appreciated, you become overly concerned about your financial obligations. You focus on lack, and on what you owe, and this disrupts the flow of circulation and limits your prosperity. You want to be free of all debt, because you believe this will make you independent and prosperous, and when that happens, you won't experience rejection or abandonment because you're unworthy of love.

You long to experience Unity and the truth that you are neither separate nor isolated from the Universe. You look for this through connections to other individuals where you can experience love and appreciation. Even though other people have access to your Validation Need Account and can make deposits and withdrawals, you are responsible for maintaining the minimum balance on your own. The more you look outside of yourself for validation, the harder it will be to manage your own validation needs. But when you learn to love and appreciate yourself and develop healthy self-esteem, the dynamic in all of your relationships transforms. You especially need to experience love and appreciation related to your debt. In fact, validation itself is debt for you. When someone makes a deposit in your Validation Need Account, you feel obligated to repay that debt; and when you make a deposit in someone else's Validation Need Account, you believe that they owe you love and appreciation in return. The fact that not everyone views love and appreciation in this way is a source of considerable frustration for you.

You can learn to monitor your Validation Need Account and maintain the minimum required balance on your own by engaging with your debt. Rather than considering your financial debts, look for an example of a debt you owe that relates to love and appreciation. First, consider how you created that debt. Remember the support that you received when someone made a deposit in your Validation Need Account, acknowledge how much it helped you at the time, and take a few moments to experience gratitude for that support. Next, become conscious of how you expect to repay that debt. You don't necessarily have to pay back the person who provided the support. When it comes to debts of validation, you can often pay them forward by embodying love and appreciation yourself and helping others with it when they are in need. Develop your gratitude muscles and look for things that you can love and appreciate everywhere you go. Not only will this make deposits in other people's Validation Need Accounts, it will also maintain the balance in yours. The more you meet your own validation needs and love and appreciate yourself, the more you will engage with the Law of Circulation and experience prosperity.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

---

What part of the description of your validation needs and your debt resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your validation needs and your debt resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

What are some examples of how you owe a debt of love and appreciation? To whom do you owe that debt? What support did you receive to create that debt?

What are some examples of how someone else owes you a debt of love and appreciation? What support did you give to create that debt? How and when do you expect to collect it?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

---

Where and how do you receive support with your validation needs when you need it?

What do you love and appreciate the most about your debt? What do you want other people to notice and appreciate about your debt?

How do you express love and appreciation through your debt?

How do you love and appreciate other people for their debt?

Your validation needs are your shared resources; your shared resources are your validation needs.

Because your validation needs are a shared resource, your Validation Need Account is a joint bank account. You are personally responsible for it, but you're not exclusively responsible for it. You look for support and collaboration when you express love and appreciation, because when you pool your resources, you can accomplish far more than you can on your own. When you maintain the minimum required balance in your Validation Need Account, these partnerships work out beautifully. Everyone contributes to your Validation Need Account, so it's always there when you need it, and it never runs out. Whenever you need help or support, someone is always there to pick up the slack, and you do the same for them. But when you fail to meet your own validation needs and expect other people to meet them for you, other people don't contribute equally, and your Validation Need Account is often overdrawn. You may do your part to make deposits and maintain your resources, but other people's withdrawals drain the account and leave you feeling unsupported and used. On a personal level, when you don't feel loved or appreciated, these inequalities will play out in your relationships and with your actual shared resources, such as joint bank accounts, communal food, office supplies, and shared spaces. It may feel like you're doing all the work and you're cleaning up other people's messes. As hard as it can be, you must find the line that marks the boundary of My Business, and stay on your side of it. You pool your resources with others because you want the support of a community. You believe that when you have a communal safety net, you won't experience rejection or abandonment because you're unworthy of love.

You long to experience Unity and the truth that you are neither separate nor isolated from the Universe. You look for this through connections to other individuals where you can experience love and appreciation. Even though other people have access to your Validation Need Account and can make deposits and withdrawals, you are responsible for maintaining the minimum balance on your own. The more you look outside of yourself for validation, the harder it will be to manage your own validation needs. But when you learn to love and appreciate yourself and develop healthy self-esteem, the dynamic in all of your relationships transforms. You especially need to experience love and appreciation related to your shared resources. On some level, you expect every member of the group to appreciate you for your contributions. You also expect that every member of the group will acknowledge your appreciation for their contributions. Whatever other benefits you may experience from pooling your resources, what you really care about is the shared validation that you expect from being a member of a larger community.

You can learn to monitor your Validation Need Account and maintain the minimum required balance on your own by engaging with your shared resources. Begin by identifying your shared resources. These include every situation where you collaborate with others or pool your resources so that you get a smaller slice of a larger pie. Consider that when you engage with those shared resources, what you're really sharing is love and appreciation. Evaluate whether you are pulling your own weight in this endeavor. If you don't feel supported and you don't see the advantages of the collaboration, it may be a sign that you aren't contributing enough; you need to express more love and appreciation for the others in the group to be able to experience love and appreciation from the group. It could also be a sign that you aren't claiming the support that's available to you, or that you're not accepting it because it doesn't look like you expect it to look. Explore your relationship to your shared resources and find the correct point of balance with how you give and receive love and appreciation, both for the resources and for the people who contribute to the good of the community. The more you meet your own validation needs and love and appreciate yourself, the more you will benefit from pooling your resources.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

---

What part of the description of your validation needs and your shared resources resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your validation needs and your shared resources resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

What are some examples of how you pool your resources of love and appreciation with other people? How do you contribute to that collective? What benefits do you receive in return?

Who has access to your Validation Need Account? Do they make more contributions to the balance or withdrawals? Does this arrangement work for you? Why or why not?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

---

What expectations do you have about everyone's role with love and appreciation? Do you meet those expectations? Do other people meet them?

Where are the limits of My Business with validation? What is the limit of how much you can make up for other people's shortfalls? What is the limit of how much you can expect other people to make up for your shortfalls?

What do you love and appreciate the most about your shared resources? What do you want other people to notice and appreciate about your shared resources?

How do you express love and appreciation through your shared resources?

How do you love and appreciate other people for their shared resources?

Your Core Values are your debt; your debt is your Core Values.

Your Core Values are your debt. They're what you owe, and they're what other people owe you. Remember that debt is evidence of support. When you owe someone, it means that they provided you with help and support when you needed it, and others owe you for the help and support you gave them. When you experience the presence of your Core Values and tune to the vibration of those qualities, you inspire and support other people, and you actively engage with the Law of Circulation. You both give and receive support, and this creates prosperity for you. But when you are not connected to your Core Values and believe the illusion that your Core Values are absent from your reality, debt feels like a burden. You worry about your ability to repay your debts, and you are reluctant to accept support when you need it because that would mean taking on more debt, all of which limits your ability to recognize the presence of your Core Values in all things. On a personal level, when you fail to notice your Core Values, you become overly concerned about your financial obligations. You focus on lack, and on what you owe, and this disrupts the flow of circulation and limits your prosperity. You want to be free of all debt, because you believe this will make you independent and prosperous, and when that happens, you won't feel so isolated and separate from the Divine.

The experience of your Core Values is really about experiencing Unity. When you tune to the vibration of Divine Love, Joy, Power, Peace, Wisdom, Balance, Beauty, or Order, you remember the truth that you are the embodiment of those qualities. Because these qualities exist in all things at all times, they also exist in you, and you can never be separated from them. Recognizing this truth can be challenging. Not only do you have a narrow and limited set of expectations of what these qualities look like (which is what makes it so easy for you to overlook them), but you also expect to see evidence of your Core Values in the outside world. You expect to recognize your Core Values in your debt, and you are frequently disappointed.

Consider which of the Core Values is the most absent from your experience of debt. That's the Core Value that is the most important to you right now. You need to discover what it really feels like so you can begin to recognize it in your life.

The easiest way for you to discover and experience the feeling of your Core Values is to engage with your debt. Rather than considering your financial debts, look for an example of a debt you owe that relates to your Core Values. Anything that feels like an obligation you have, or a promise that you have made about your Core Values will do. First, consider how you created that debt. Remember the support that you received, acknowledge how much it helped you to experience the presence of your Core Values at the time, and take a few moments to experience gratitude for that support. Next, become conscious of how you expect to repay that debt. You don't necessarily have to pay back the person who provided the support. When it comes to debts of your Core Values, you can often pay them forward by embodying your Core Values and helping others to recognize the presence of those Core Values in their own lives. The more you recognize the presence of your Core Values in your life, the more you will engage with the Law of Circulation and experience prosperity.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

---

What part of the description of your Core Values and your debt resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your Core Values and your debt resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

What are some examples of how you owe a debt of your Core Values? To whom do you owe that debt? What support did you receive to create that debt?

What are some examples of how someone else owes you a debt of your Core Values? What support did you give to create that debt? How and when do you expect to collect it?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

---

When considering your Core Values, choose from Divine Love, Joy, Power, Peace, Wisdom, Balance, Beauty, or Order.

Where and how do you receive support with your Core Values when you need it?

Which of the Core Values are the easiest to notice in your debt? How do you recognize them? What do they look like to you?

Which of the Core Values appear to be absent from your debt? How do you expect them to show up and why do you think they're missing?

Your Core Values are your shared resources; your shared resources are your Core Values.

Because your Core Values are a shared resource, they operate like a joint bank account. You are personally responsible for it, but you're not exclusively responsible for it. You look for support and collaboration when you tune to the vibration of your Core Values, because when you pool your resources, you can accomplish far more than you can on your own. When you experience the presence of your Core Values and tune to the vibration of those qualities, these partnerships work out beautifully. Everyone contributes to your Core Value account, so it's always there when you need it, and it never runs out. Whenever you need help or support, someone is always there to pick up the slack and recognize the presence of your Core Values, and you do the same for them. But when you are not connected to your Core Values and believe the illusion that your Core Values are absent from your reality, other people don't contribute equally, and your Core Values account is often overdrawn. You may do your part to make deposits and maintain your resources, but other people's withdrawals drain the account and leave you feeling unsupported and used. On a personal level, when you fail to notice your Core Values, these inequalities will play out in your relationships and with your actual shared resources, such as joint bank accounts, communal food, office supplies, and shared spaces. It may feel like you're doing all the work and you're cleaning up other people's messes. As hard as it can be, you must find the line that marks the boundary of My Business, and stay on your side of it. You pool your resources with others because you want the support of a community. You believe that when you have a communal safety net, you won't feel so isolated and separate from the Divine.

The experience of your Core Values is really about experiencing Unity. When you tune to the vibration of Divine Love, Joy, Power, Peace, Wisdom, Balance, Beauty, or Order, you remember the truth that you are the embodiment of those qualities. Because these qualities exist in all things at all times, they also exist in you, and you can never be separated from them. Recognizing this truth can be challenging. Not only do you have a narrow and limited set of expectations of what these qualities look like (which is what makes it so easy for you to overlook them), but you also expect to see evidence of your Core Values in the outside world. You expect to recognize your Core Values in your shared resources, and you are frequently disappointed. Consider which of the Core Values is the most absent from your experience of your shared resources. That's the Core Value that is the most important to you right now. You need to discover what it really feels like so you can begin to recognize it in your life.

The easiest way for you to discover and experience the feeling of your Core Values is to engage with your shared resources. Begin by identifying your shared resources. These include every situation where you collaborate with others or pool your resources so that you get a smaller slice of a larger pie. Consider that when you engage with those shared resources, what you're really sharing is your Core Values. And if you can't think of any external shared resources, just consider how you collaborate and share your Core Values directly. Evaluate whether you are pulling your own weight in this endeavor. If you don't feel supported and you don't see the advantages of the collaboration, it may be a sign that you aren't contributing enough and you're not sharing your experience and recognition of the presence of your Core Values. It could also be a sign that you aren't claiming the support that's available to you to help you recognize the presence of your Core Values. Explore your relationship to your shared resources and find the correct point of balance with how you give and receive the experience of your Core Values. The more you recognize the presence of your Core Values in your life, the more you will benefit from pooling your resources.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

---

What part of the description of your Core Values and your shared resources resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your Core Values and your shared resources resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

What are some examples of how you pool your resources of your Core Values with other people? How do you contribute to that collective? What benefits do you receive in return?

Who has access to the bank account of your Core Values? Do they make more contributions to the balance or withdrawals? Does this arrangement work for you? Why or why not?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

---

When considering your Core Values, choose from Divine Love, Joy, Power, Peace, Wisdom, Balance, Beauty, or Order.

What expectations do you have about everyone's role with your Core Values? Do you meet those expectations? Do other people meet them?

Where are the limits of My Business with your Core Values? What is the limit of how much you can make up for other people's shortfalls? What is the limit of how much you can expect other people to make up for your shortfalls?

Which of the Core Values are the easiest to notice in your shared resources? How do you recognize them? What do they look like to you?

Which of the Core Values appear to be absent from your shared resources? How do you expect them to show up and why do you think they're missing?

Venus, the Ruler of your Eighth House in Houses

The house occupied by the Ruler of the Eighth House shows where you are most susceptible to debt and financial loss. This is the area of life where your ambitions exceed your personal resources, so you seek the support of other individuals to finance your goals. This is where you seek partners and investors and are the most willing to collaborate and to pool your resources with others. The house that Venus occupies also tells you where and from whom you expect to receive validation.

JOURNAL QUESTIONS & INSTRUCTIONS

Begin by reviewing the chapter in the video lesson on Venus that explores the house that Venus, the Ruler of your Eighth House occupies. Then locate and read the description of the house occupied by Venus, the Ruler of your Eighth House. Now, go back and revisit each of the journal questions about how you experience Venus as the ruler of your Eighth House, and notice how the house Venus occupies influences your understanding.

Venus, the Ruler of the Eighth House in the First House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Eighth House in your First House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your debt, and your shared resources in your personality and outer appearance. The resources of the First House include your health, your happiness, your appearance, and your very identity. You will use your personal interests and happiness to experience love and appreciation, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. You will use your personal interests and happiness to recognize the presence of your Core Values, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. You will use your personal interests and happiness to repay your debts and obligations, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. And you will use your personal interests and happiness to merge your assets and manage your shared resources, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your First House, affecting your avatar, your outer appearance, your happiness, and how much you enjoy your hobbies and interests. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your First House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Eighth House in the in the Second House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Eighth House in your Second House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your debt, and your shared resources in your money and resources. The resources of the Second House include your money, your personal possessions, and the skills and talents you have that can be used to earn money. You will spend money and use your talents to experience love and appreciation. You will spend money and use your talents to recognize the presence of your Core Values. You will spend money and use your talents to repay your debts and obligations. And you will spend money and use your talents to merge your assets and manage your shared resources. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Second House, specifically because they encourage you to spend your money, but they don't necessarily help you to earn more money or connect to the truth of your prosperity. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Second House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Eighth House in the in the Third House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Eighth House in your Third House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your debt, and your shared resources in your comfort zone. The resources of your Third House are all local, close, and familiar. You can communicate to your network to ask for support, but you will only call people you already know and have worked with before. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to experience love and appreciation, and you rarely consider new options. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to recognize the presence of your Core Values, and you rarely consider new options. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to repay your debts and obligations, and you rarely consider new options. And rely on your familiar habits and local resources to merge your assets and manage your shared resources, and you rarely consider new options. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Third House, creating changes to your comfort zone that make it less familiar and less comfortable, and forcing you to pay attention to your habits and routines. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Third House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Eighth House in the in the Fourth House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Eighth House in your Fourth House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your debt, and your shared resources in your private life. The resources of the Fourth House include your private and personal life, your home, real estate, tradition, and family connections. You do not want to be noticed when you experience love and appreciation, because it's personal and private. You do not want to be noticed when you recognize the presence of your Core Values, because it's personal and private. You do not want to be noticed when you repay your debts and obligations, because it's personal and private. And you do not want to be noticed when you merge your assets and manage your shared resources, because it's personal and private. Your pursuit of privacy may disrupt your Fourth House, shaking the very foundation of your life. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Fourth House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Eighth House in the in the Fifth House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Eighth House in your Fifth House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your debt, and your shared resources in your creativity and fun. The resources of the Fifth House include games, gambling, entertainment, art, creativity, and all forms of amusement and recreation. You are willing to take creative risks to experience love and appreciation, and you expect to have fun in the process. You are willing to take creative risks to recognize the presence of your Core Values, and you expect to have fun in the process. You are willing to take creative risks to repay your debts and obligations, and you expect to have fun in the process. And you are willing to take creative risks to merge your assets and manage your shared resources, and you expect to have fun in the process. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Fifth House, especially if you don't feel that you have been creative enough or if you're not having fun. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Fifth House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Eighth House in the in the Sixth House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Eighth House in your Sixth House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your debt, and your shared resources in your job, your workplace environment, and your relationships with co-workers and employees. The resources of the Sixth House include hard work and selfless service. You expect to work hard to experience love and appreciation, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. You expect to work hard to recognize the presence of your Core Values, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. You expect to work hard to repay your debts and obligations, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. And you expect to work hard to merge your assets and manage your shared resources, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Sixth House, especially because you are always looking for ways to lighten the workload, so you may try to hire someone to do the work for you, or failing that, you may create illness so you can call in sick. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Sixth House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Eighth House in the in the Seventh House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Eighth House in your Seventh House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your debt, and your shared resources in your one-to-one relationships. The resources of the Seventh House appear to be other individuals because you project everything associated with planets in your Seventh House on other people and you don't recognize that those qualities live in you. You expect other individuals to experience love and appreciation for you and may blame them if they don't. You expect other individuals to recognize the presence of your Core Values for you and may blame them if they don't. You expect other individuals to repay your debts and obligations for you and may blame them if they don't. And you expect other individuals to merge your assets and manage your shared resources for you and may blame them if they don't. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Seventh House by creating difficulties in your one-to-one relationships. And while the problems will appear to be about other people, they're really your own issues. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Seventh House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Eighth House in the in the Eighth House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Eighth House in your Eighth House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your debt, and your shared resources in your debts and shared resources. The resources of the Eighth house are other people's money, values, and opinions. This money is available to you in the form of loans, investments, or simply credit card debt. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to experience love and appreciation. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to recognize the presence of your Core Values. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to repay your debts and obligations. And you will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to merge your assets and manage your shared resources. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Eighth House because they will increase your awareness of your debt, both personal (what you owe other people) and financial (the money you owe to others). This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Eighth House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Eighth House in the in the Ninth House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Eighth House in your Ninth House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your debt, and your shared resources in your danger zone. The resources of the Ninth House are all foreign, distant, new, unfamiliar, and unknown to you. They include experts and authorities that can offer wisdom and knowledge, such as teachers, religious leaders, lawyers, and doctors. You always require new information to experience love and appreciation because what you already know is not sufficient. You always require new information to recognize the presence of your Core Values because what you already know is not sufficient. You always require new information to repay your debts and obligations because what you already know is not sufficient. And you always require new information to merge your assets and manage your shared resources because what you already know is not sufficient. These behaviors may cause disruption to your Ninth House because the new information you acquire may challenge and alter your beliefs. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Ninth House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Eighth House in the Tenth House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Eighth House in your Tenth House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your debt, and your shared resources in your public and professional image. The resources of the Tenth House include your reputation, your public image, and the passwords to all of your social media accounts. You want to be famous for your ability to experience love and appreciation, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. You want to be famous for your ability to recognize the presence of your Core Values, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. You want to be famous for your ability to repay your debts and obligations, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. And you want to be famous for your ability to merge your assets and manage your shared resources, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Tenth House and affect both your personal and your professional reputation. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Tenth House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Eighth House in the Eleventh House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Eighth House in your Eleventh House, you encounter your validation needs, your Core Values, your debt, and your shared resources in your ambitions and aspirations. The resources of the Eleventh House are your benefactors: friends, colleagues, and teammates who are in a position to support you and help you to acquire the things you believe will make you happy. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to experience love and appreciation so you can acquire happiness. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to recognize the presence of your Core Values so you can acquire happiness. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to repay your debts and obligations so you can acquire happiness. And you depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to merge your assets and manage your shared resources so you can acquire happiness. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Eleventh House and affect not only your ambitions and aspirations, but also the level of support you receive from your friends and benefactors. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Eleventh House.

Venus, the Ruler of the Eighth House in the Twelfth House

With Venus, the Ruler of the Eighth House in your Twelfth House you are unconscious of your validation needs, your Core Values, your debt, and your shared resources. The Twelfth House is above the horizon, so everything about planets in the Twelfth House is visible to others, but it's all in your blind spot, so you're the last to know about it. The resources of the Twelfth House include your hidden motivations, your unconscious programming, your shadow self, and your personal demons. You are not conscious of what motivates you to experience love and appreciation, and it will have unexpected consequences. You are not conscious of what motivates you to recognize the presence of your Core Values, and it will have unexpected consequences. You are not conscious of what motivates you to repay your debts and obligations, and it will have unexpected consequences. And you are not conscious of what motivates you to merge your assets and manage your shared resources, and it will have unexpected consequences. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Twelfth House, causing resentment and creating hidden enemies. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Twelfth House.