

Mercury Rules the Tenth House

The Tenth House relates to your success, recognition, and professional advancement. It's your fame and your reputation, and your public image. And in the modern world, that often translates to your social media profile.

The Tenth House is your reputation.

The Tenth House is your reputation: it's how you are seen by society. It's your fame and your public image. It's also your presence on social media, both personal and professional. The planet that rules your Tenth House is what you are famous for. It's responsible for your greatest accomplishments and also for the gaffes you can never seem to live down or put behind you. Whether the world thinks favorably of you or not depends on how well you meet the needs and learn the lessons of the planet that rules your Tenth House. Because of the advent of social media and the Internet, much of your life is public. If you have any presence online, whether it's Facebook, LinkedIn, or OkCupid, you have a brand that you present to the world. You have a certain degree of fame because people whom you have never met personally know about you, and they also have an opinion of you. How much you take advantage of this is up to you, but even if you keep a low profile in your life, it's important to keep control of your message. The planet that rules your Tenth House is both the message itself and also the carrier wave that broadcasts your message.

The world expects you to live up to the promise of the planet that rules your Tenth House. This is your brand, and if you don't meet those needs and handle that Universal Puzzle Piece with care, everyone will know about it. But the more skillful you are about meeting those needs, the more control you have over the volume of your message. When you are in right relationship with the planet that rules your Tenth House, you can determine how public you want to be, and therefore have more influence over your privacy. But if you choose to, you can use the platform of your reputation to promote other interests. When you meet the needs of the planet that rules your Tenth House, the world will listen to what you have to say. When you don't meet the needs of that planet, you lose control over your message and the world (and the Internet) gets to decide on your brand, usually in the comments section.

The Tenth House is your advancement.

The Tenth House is also how you advance in the world, both socially and professionally. This is closely related to your reputation, because a good reputation is often essential for advancement, but it's not entirely the same thing. This expression of the Tenth House (and of the planet that rules your Tenth House) has to do with awards, honors, and promotion. It encompasses many of the things that you may associate with success. Your reputation relates to your relative level of fame, but advancement relates to the tangible, material rewards that come from that fame.

The cusp of the Tenth House is the most public and visible point in the chart, and the planet that rules your Tenth House is the vehicle that helps you attain the highest peaks in your life. Often, the accomplishments related to the Tenth House are professional and related to your career, but it's important not to view your life only in terms of your job or the things that you do to make money. When you look back on your life, you are the most proud of the accomplishments of your Tenth House. Often you are noticed, recognized, and honored by other people for these achievements, but not always. These achievements always involve meeting the needs of the planet that rules your Tenth House and understanding how that Universal Puzzle Piece fits in your life. And even if you don't experience social or professional advancement, you definitely advanced as a person.

Mercury Rules the Tenth House

Your story is your reputation; your reputation is your story.

Your story is your reputation and your public image. Your personal brand is your story, and that's the message that you project to the world through social media. Whether the public has a favorable impression of you or not depends on how well you question the reality of your "little s" story and pursue the truth of your "Big S" Story. When you actively search for the deeper meaning of your story and pursue the truth within your reality, the world sees your best qualities and has a good impression of you. You have strong brand recognition and good word of mouth, and you easily deliver on the promises you make. But when you accept the appearance of the reality of your "little s" story and fail to look for a deeper meaning, you lose control of your message. If you're lucky, you fail to make an impression on the world and no one notices you. If you're not lucky, you get noticed, but for all of the wrong reasons. On a personal level, when you focus on your "little s" story, you may try to "live your best life" on social media, but you don't fool anyone. The irony is that if you invested the time and energy in your actual life that you invest in curating the public appearance of your life, you would have something worth sharing with the world. You care about your public image and reputation because you believe that when the world thinks well of you, then you won't be bored with the story of your life.

You long to answer the call to your greatness, escape the confines of your “little s” story and become the hero of the “Big S” Story of your life. Your “Big S” Story is engaging, exciting, compelling, and endlessly entertaining, while your “little s” story is tedious and uninspiring. The difference between the two is that your “little s” story is just real, but your “Big S” story is true. Nothing in your “little s” story is about what it appears to be about. Everything in your reality is a metaphor that contains hidden depths of meaning. When you question your story, you can discover the truth that will give your life meaning and purpose. You must begin by questioning the story of your reputation, because this is the area of your life where you take things at face value and focus on the objective reality rather than the subjective truth. You believe that you have a limited ability to influence your reputation, and you also allow your story about your reputation to limit your options of how you pursue your story. Your reputation can keep you trapped in your “little s” story. To connect with the truth of your “Big S” Story you may have to drop the story of your reputation.

You can question the reality of your “little s” story and elevate the truth quotient by engaging with your reputation. Take a close look at your presence on social media. Consider what it is that you share with the world, whether on a personal or professional platform. Include how you comment or respond to other people’s posts, and whose brands you follow and admire. Now step back and review some of your recent social media activity to see what messages you are broadcasting about your story and your reality. If someone else had shared your posts, what would you think about their story? Would you find their story interesting and engaging? Once you have a clear, objective reference for your brand and how the world may view it, you can begin to refine your message. It’s okay to share your best self and set high expectations for how you tell the truth of the “Big S” Story of your life, so long as you can deliver on those promises. You can do that by paying attention to the truth of your “Big S” Story in every area of your life. The more you are willing to drop every part of your story that isn’t absolutely true or isn’t your business, the more the world will notice your best qualities.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your story and your reputation resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your story and your reputation resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn’t seem to apply to you and why?

How would you like the world to see your story? What could you share on social media that would draw attention to your story and make it interesting and engaging?

Take an objective look at what you have been sharing on social media, both in your posts and in your comments. Does the message of your story show up the way that you would like it to? Why or why not?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

Where do you notice and admire other people's stories? How do their stories show up in their public image? How does that influence your own choices of what to share in public?

How well do you embody your story in your public image? What kind of feedback about it do you get on social media?

What is your story about your reputation? What does it mean to you? What role does it play in your life? How is it a recurring theme or challenge for you?

How does your story about your reputation limit you and keep you small?

How much of your story about your reputation is true? What happens to that story when you drop every part of the story that is not part of My Business because it's not your responsibility or you can't actually do anything to change or control it?

Your story is your advancement; your advancement is your story.

Your story is your advancement: it's the key to your success, both socially and professionally. Your story is what you bring to everything you do that sets it apart and adds unique value to it. It may not be obvious, but it makes all the difference. The more you question the reality of your "little s" story and pursue the truth of your "Big S" Story, the more you will stand out from the crowd. When you actively search for the deeper meaning of your story and pursue the truth within your reality, success comes easily to you. You are recognized, honored, and promoted for your work. While you enjoy the approbation, it's never your main objective. For you, success is about the satisfaction you experience from the work itself. But when you accept the appearance of the reality of your "little s" story and fail to look for a deeper meaning, you struggle to advance in your professional and social life. Time and again, you are passed over for promotion. The next rung on the ladder is always just out of your reach. On a personal level, when you focus on your "little s" story, you care far too much about your social and professional status. You focus on getting awards and recognition rather than on the quality of the work you do. The quality of your work suffers, and you never feel like you get the recognition that you deserve. You care about recognition and advancement because you believe that when you are successful enough, then you won't be bored with the story of your life.

You long to answer the call to your greatness, escape the confines of your "little s" story and become the hero of the "Big S" Story of your life. Your "Big S" Story is engaging, exciting, compelling, and endlessly entertaining, while your "little s" story is tedious and uninspiring. The difference between the two is that your "little s" story is just real, but your "Big S" story is true. Nothing in your "little s" story is about what it appears to be about. Everything in your reality is a metaphor that contains hidden depths of meaning. When you question your story, you can discover the truth that will give your life meaning and purpose. You must begin by questioning the story of your advancement, because this is the area of your life where you take things at face value and focus on the objective reality rather than the subjective truth. The content of your story focuses on your achievements and your successes. But if you pursue advancement for its own sake, you miss the point. You must look for the truth of your “Big S” Story and find the meaning and purpose in your life. Success, awards, recognition, and promotion will follow.

You can question the reality of your “little s” story and elevate the truth quotient by engaging with your advancement. Look back on your life and identify an example of a time when you were recognized, promoted, awarded, or honored. Review your story of what it was that you did to deserve that recognition, and what it took for you to succeed. Now consider that story from the perspective of your story, and identify where and how the truth of your “Big S” Story showed up for you. The actual source of your success and the reason you were recognized and honored was how you embodied and expressed your “Big S” Story and pursued the deeper meaning of your life. Figure out what you did differently with how you engaged with your story in the situations where you were promoted and awarded, because that’s the secret of your success. Once you have identified it, you can access it whenever you choose, in any part of your life. The more you are willing to drop every part of your story that isn’t absolutely true or isn’t your business, the more success you will enjoy.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your story and your advancement resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your story and your advancement resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn’t seem to apply to you and why?

How have you been recognized, honored, or promoted because of your story?

What accomplishments in your life are you the most proud of? What role did your story play in those achievements?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

How does your story contribute to your professional success? Where do you embody it in your professional life?

What is your story about your advancement? What does it mean to you? What role does it play in your life? How is it a recurring theme or challenge for you?

How does your story about your advancement limit you and keep you small?

How much of your story about your advancement is true? What happens to that story when you drop every part of the story that is not part of My Business because it's not your responsibility or you can't actually do anything to change or control it?

Your understanding and communication are your reputation; your reputation is your understanding and communication.

Understanding and communication is your reputation and your public image. Your personal brand is understanding and communication, and that's the message that you project to the world through social media. Whether the public has a favorable impression of you or not depends on how well you understand and communicate truth. When you have a personal understanding of truth, the world sees your best qualities and has a good impression of you. You have strong brand recognition and good word of mouth, and you easily deliver on the promises you make. But when you do not understand truth and look to other people to validate your perceptions of reality, you lose control of your message. If you're lucky, you fail to make an impression on the world and no one notices you. If you're not lucky, you get noticed, but for all of the wrong reasons. On a personal level, when you lack understanding, you may try to "live your best life" on social media, but you don't fool anyone. The irony is that if you invested the time and energy in your actual life that you invest in curating the public appearance of your life, you would have something worth sharing with the world. You care about your public image and reputation because you believe that when the world thinks well of you, then you will understand everything.

You long for a personal understanding of truth. When you communicate, you look outside of yourself to validate your subjective experience of reality to verify its level of truth. The problem with communication is that so much gets lost in translation. You have to create a context for the words for them to have any meaning. You rely on the context of your reputation to understand the world. When you communicate, you translate your perceptions into the language of your reputation. When you receive new information from any source, you filter that information through the lens of your reputation so that you can understand how it fits in your subjective reality. But you can't assume that other people use the same filters. And consider that you may not have done much to deserve your reputation of being able to understand and communicate so effectively. You broadcast your language and perceptions to the world, so by the time you engage with someone, they are already prepared to speak your language. They're doing most of the work for you.

You can deepen your understanding and improve the quality of your communication by engaging with your reputation. Take a close look at your presence on social media. Consider what it is that you share with the world, whether on a personal or professional platform. Include how you comment or respond to other people's posts, and whose brands you follow and admire. Now step back and review some of your recent social media activity to see what messages you are broadcasting about how you understand and communicate truth. If someone else had shared your posts, what would you think about how well they understand and communicate truth? Once you have a clear, objective reference for your brand and how the world may view it, you can begin to refine your message. It's okay to share your best self and set high expectations for how you understand truth, so long as you can deliver on those promises. You can do that by paying attention to how you understand and communicate in every area of your life. Make a special effort to view the world from other people's perspectives and to learn how to speak other people's languages as well as your own. The more conscious you are of the filters that govern how you understand and communicate, the more the world will notice your best qualities.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your understanding and communication and your reputation resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your understanding and communication and your reputation resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

How would you like the world to see your understanding of truth? What could you share on social media that would draw attention to your understanding?

Take an objective look at what you have been sharing on social media, both in your posts and in your comments. Does the message of your understanding of truth show up the way that you would like it to? Why or why not?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

Where do you notice and admire understanding and communication in other people? How does it show up in their public image? How does that influence your own choices of what to share in public?

How well do you embody understanding and communication in your public image? What kind of feedback about it do you get on social media?

What are some of the ways that you communicate with your reputation? How well do other people usually understand your message?

How do you use your reputation to understand other people? What do you learn about other people by observing how they engage with their reputation?

Your understanding and communication are your advancement; your advancement is your understanding and communication.

Understanding and communication is your advancement: it's the key to your success, both socially and professionally. Understanding and communication is what you bring to everything you do that sets it apart and adds unique value to it. It may not be obvious, but it makes all the difference. The more you understand and communicate truth, the more you will stand out from the crowd. When you have a personal understanding of truth, success comes easily to you. You are recognized, honored, and promoted for your work. While you enjoy the approbation, it's never your main objective. For you, success is about the satisfaction you experience from the work itself. But when you do not understand truth and look to other people to validate your perceptions of reality, you struggle to advance in your professional and social life. Time and again, you are passed over for promotion. The next rung on the ladder is always just out of your reach. On a personal level, when you lack understanding, you care far too much about your social and professional status. You focus on getting awards and recognition rather than on the quality of the work you do. The quality of your work suffers, and you never feel like you get the recognition that you deserve. You care about recognition and advancement because you believe that when you are successful enough, then you will understand everything.

You long for a personal understanding of truth. When you communicate, you look outside of yourself to validate your subjective experience of reality to verify its level of truth. The problem with communication is that so much gets lost in translation. You have to create a context for the words for them to have any meaning. You rely on the context of your advancement to understand the world. When you communicate, you translate your perceptions into the language of your advancement. When you receive new information from any source, you filter that information through the lens of your advancement so that you can understand how it fits in your subjective reality. You explore each new nugget of information to see how you can use it to advance in your personal, social, or professional life. But you can't assume that other people use the same filters.

You can deepen your understanding and improve the quality of your communication by engaging with your advancement. Look back on your life and identify an example of a time when you were recognized, promoted, awarded, or honored. Review your story of what it was that you did to deserve that recognition, and what it took for you to succeed. Now consider that story from the perspective of understanding and communication, and identify where and how understanding and communication showed up for you. The actual source of your success and the reason you were recognized and honored was how you embodied and expressed your understanding of truth. Figure out what you did differently with how you understood truth and communicated it in the situations where you were promoted and awarded, because that's the secret of your success. Once you have identified it, you can access it whenever you choose, in any part of your life. The more conscious you are of the filters that govern how you understand and communicate, the more success you will enjoy.

LIGHT BULB QUESTIONS

What part of the description of your understanding and communication and your advancement resonated the most with you? Where do you see this in your life? How does it show up for you?

What part of the description of your understanding and communication and your advancement resonated the least with you? What about that description doesn't seem to apply to you and why?

How have you been recognized, honored, or promoted because of understanding and communication?

What accomplishments in your life are you the most proud of? What role did understanding and communication play in those achievements?

PUZZLE QUESTIONS

How does understanding and communication contribute to your professional success? Where do you embody it in your professional life?

What are some of the ways that you communicate with your advancement? How well do other people usually understand your message?

How do you use your advancement to understand other people? What do you learn about other people by observing how they engage with their advancement?

Mercury, the Ruler of your Tenth House in Houses

The house occupied by the Ruler of the Tenth House shows where you seek advancement, recognition, and professional success. You make use of the resources available in this house to advance your career and fulfill your potential. Your fame and reputation are based on your activities in this house. Your actual career may or may not be described by or directly related to this house, but skillful use of the resources of this house will get you recognized.

JOURNAL QUESTIONS & INSTRUCTIONS

Begin by reviewing the chapter in the video lesson on Mercury that explores the house that Mercury, the Ruler of your Tenth House occupies. Then locate and read the description of the house occupied by Mercury, the Ruler of your Tenth House. Now, go back and revisit each of the journal questions about how you experience Mercury as the ruler of your Tenth House, and notice how the house Mercury occupies influences your understanding.

Mercury, the Ruler of the Tenth House in the First House

With Mercury, the Ruler of the Tenth House in your First House, you encounter your story, your understanding and communication, your reputation, and your advancement in your personality and outer appearance. The resources of the First House include your health, your happiness, your appearance, and your very identity. You will use your personal interests and happiness to make your story more interesting, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. You will use your personal interests and happiness to understand and communicate, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. You will use your personal interests and happiness to raise your public profile and enhance your reputation, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. And you will use your personal interests and happiness to advance in your social or professional life, and other people will notice this in your appearance and your personality. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your First House, affecting your avatar, your outer appearance, your happiness, and how much you enjoy your hobbies and interests. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your First House.

Mercury, the Ruler of the Tenth House in the in the Second House

With Mercury, the Ruler of the Tenth House in your Second House, you encounter your story, your understanding and communication, your reputation, and your advancement in your money and resources. The resources of the Second House include your money, your personal possessions, and the skills and talents you have that can be used to earn money. You will spend money and use your talents to make your story more interesting. You will spend money and use your talents to understand and communicate. You will spend money and use your talents to raise your public profile and enhance your reputation. And you will spend money and use your talents to advance in your social or professional life. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Second House, specifically because they encourage you to spend your money, but they don't necessarily help you to earn more money or connect to the truth of your prosperity. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Second House.

Mercury, the Ruler of the Tenth House in the in the Third House

With Mercury, the Ruler of the Tenth House in your Third House, you encounter your story, your understanding and communication, your reputation, and your advancement in your comfort zone. The resources of your Third House are all local, close, and familiar. You can communicate to your network to ask for support, but you will only call people you already know and have worked with before. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to make your story more interesting, and you rarely consider new options. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to understand and communicate, and you rarely consider new options. You rely on your familiar habits and local resources to raise your public profile and enhance your reputation, and you rarely consider new options. And rely on your familiar habits and local resources to advance in your social or professional life, and you rarely consider new options. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Third House, creating changes to your comfort zone that make it less familiar and less comfortable, and forcing you to pay attention to your habits and routines. In turn, this may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Third House.

Mercury, the Ruler of the Tenth House in the in the Fourth House

With Mercury, the Ruler of the Tenth House in your Fourth House, you encounter your story, your understanding and communication, your reputation, and your advancement in your private life. The resources of the Fourth House include your private and personal life, your home, real estate, tradition, and family connections. You do not want to be noticed when you make your story more interesting, because it's personal and private. You do not want to be noticed when you understand and communicate, because it's personal and private. You do not want to be noticed when you raise your public profile and enhance your reputation, because it's personal and private. And you do not want to be noticed when you advance in your social or professional life, because it's personal and private. Your pursuit of privacy may disrupt your Fourth House, shaking the very foundation of your life. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Fourth House.

Mercury, the Ruler of the Tenth House in the in the Fifth House

With Mercury, the Ruler of the Tenth House in your Fifth House, you encounter your story, your understanding and communication, your reputation, and your advancement in your creativity and fun. The resources of the Fifth House include games, gambling, entertainment, art, creativity, and all forms of amusement and recreation. You are willing to take creative risks to make your story more interesting, and you expect to have fun in the process. You are willing to take creative risks to understand and communicate, and you expect to have fun in the process. You are willing to take creative risks to raise your public profile and enhance your reputation, and you expect to have fun in the process. And you are willing to take creative risks to advance in your social or professional life, and you expect to have fun in the process. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Fifth House, especially if you don't feel that you have been creative enough or if you're not having fun. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Fifth House.

Mercury, the Ruler of the Tenth House in the in the Sixth House

With Mercury, the Ruler of the Tenth House in your Sixth House, you encounter your story, your understanding and communication, your reputation, and your advancement in your job, your workplace environment, and your relationships with co-workers and employees. The resources of the Sixth House include hard work and selfless service. You expect to work hard to make your story more interesting, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. You expect to work hard to understand and communicate, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. You expect to work hard to raise your public profile and enhance your reputation, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. And you expect to work hard to advance in your social or professional life, and you rarely get recognized or rewarded for it. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Sixth House, especially because you are always looking for ways to lighten the workload, so you may try to hire someone to do the work for you, or failing that, you may create illness so you can call in sick. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Sixth House.

Mercury, the Ruler of the Tenth House in the in the Seventh House

With Mercury, the Ruler of the Tenth House in your Seventh House, you encounter your story, your understanding and communication, your reputation, and your advancement in your one-to-one relationships. The resources of the Seventh House appear to be other individuals because you project everything associated with planets in your Seventh House on other people and you don't recognize that those qualities live in you. You expect other individuals to make your story more interesting for you and may blame them if they don't. You expect other individuals to understand and communicate for you and may blame them if they don't. You expect other individuals to raise your public profile and enhance your reputation for you and may blame them if they don't. And you expect other individuals to advance in your social or professional life for you and may blame them if they don't. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Seventh House by creating difficulties in your one-to-one relationships. And while the problems will appear to be about other people, they're really your own issues. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Seventh House.

Mercury, the Ruler of the Tenth House in the in the Eighth House

With Mercury, the Ruler of the Tenth House in your Eighth House, you encounter your story, your understanding and communication, your reputation, and your advancement in your debts and shared resources. The resources of the Eighth house are other people's money, values, and opinions. This money is available to you in the form of loans, investments, or simply credit card debt. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to make your story more interesting. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to understand and communicate. You will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to raise your public profile and enhance your reputation. And you will collaborate, use shared resources, ask for favors, or use other people's money to advance in your social or professional life. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Eighth House because they will increase your awareness of your debt, both personal (what you owe other people) and financial (the money you owe to others). This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Eighth House.

Mercury, the Ruler of the Tenth House in the in the Ninth House

With Mercury, the Ruler of the Tenth House in your Ninth House, you encounter your story, your understanding and communication, your reputation, and your advancement in your danger zone. The resources of the Ninth House are all foreign, distant, new, unfamiliar, and unknown to you. They include experts and authorities that can offer wisdom and knowledge, such as teachers, religious leaders, lawyers, and doctors. You always require new information to make your story more interesting because what you already know is not sufficient. You always require new information to understand and communicate because what you already know is not sufficient. You always require new information to raise your public profile and enhance your reputation because what you already know is not sufficient. And you always require new information to advance in your social or professional life because what you already know is not sufficient. These behaviors may cause disruption to your Ninth House because the new information you acquire may challenge and alter your beliefs. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Ninth House.

Mercury, the Ruler of the Tenth House in the Tenth House

With Mercury, the Ruler of the Tenth House in your Tenth House, you encounter your story, your understanding and communication, your reputation, and your advancement in your public and professional image. The resources of the Tenth House include your reputation, your public image, and the passwords to all of your social media accounts. You want to be famous for your ability to make your story more interesting, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. You want to be famous for your ability to understand and communicate, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. You want to be famous for your ability to raise your public profile and enhance your reputation, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. And you want to be famous for your ability to advance in your social or professional life, so you broadcast it to the world and share it on social media. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Tenth House and affect both your personal and your professional reputation. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Tenth House.

Mercury, the Ruler of the Tenth House in the Eleventh House

With Mercury, the Ruler of the Tenth House in your Eleventh House, you encounter your story, your understanding and communication, your reputation, and your advancement in your ambitions and aspirations. The resources of the Eleventh House are your benefactors: friends, colleagues, and teammates who are in a position to support you and help you to acquire the things you believe will make you happy. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to make your story more interesting so you can acquire happiness. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to understand and communicate so you can acquire happiness. You depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to raise your public profile and enhance your reputation so you can acquire happiness. And you depend on the support and encouragement of your friends and benefactors to advance in your social or professional life so you can acquire happiness. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Eleventh House and affect not only your ambitions and aspirations, but also the level of support you receive from your friends and benefactors. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Eleventh House.

Mercury, the Ruler of the Tenth House in the Twelfth House

With Mercury, the Ruler of the Tenth House in your Twelfth House you are unconscious of your story, your understanding and communication, your reputation, and your advancement. The Twelfth House is above the horizon, so everything about planets in the Twelfth House is visible to others, but it's all in your blind spot, so you're the last to know about it. The resources of the Twelfth House include your hidden motivations, your unconscious programming, your shadow self, and your personal demons. You are not conscious of what motivates you to make your story more interesting, and it will have unexpected consequences. You are not conscious of what motivates you to understand and communicate, and it will have unexpected consequences. You are not conscious of what motivates you to raise your public profile and enhance your reputation, and it will have unexpected consequences. And you are not conscious of what motivates you to advance in your social or professional life, and it will have unexpected consequences. These behaviors may cause disruptions to your Twelfth House, causing resentment and creating hidden enemies. This may affect your ability to meet the needs of the planet that rules your Twelfth House.