Jupiter in Fire Signs

With Jupiter in a Fire sign, you grow and expand through direct experience and living in the moment. Growth is conscious, personal, subjective, abstract, and inspired. The element of Fire represents the breath and the spark of life, and planets in Fire signs are inspired to express by expending energy. So long as you have energy and fuel available, you will push past boundaries and seek out new territory. You are powerfully motivated to seek out the highest expressions of truth.

You build faith through direct experience. And even though faith can be somewhat abstract and difficult to describe, your faith is something that lives within you. It doesn't matter if others share your faith or believe what you believe; your faith is a rock, and you use your faith to grow, expand, and seek out a broader connection to the truth. Your faith is subjective and personal, and based on external truth.

Jupiter in Leo

Jupiter in Leo has absolute faith in the creative power of the "Big S" Self. When you align with your Personal Standards of Integrity, the Law of Attraction supports your expansion and self-expression in every possible way. While Jupiter in Leo supports the expansion and expression of the “Big S” Self, it can also become trapped at the level of pride and inflate the “little s” self, creating an over-sized, over-blown persona that is too much in every possible way.

You support and encourage others to express themselves, and the power of your faith helps them to tap into their own greatness. You enjoy the attention and appreciation that you receive from others, but you never take it personally. You are simply a channel for the unconditional love of the Divine.

When you are out of alignment with Jupiter in Leo, you are warm, generous, creative and charismatic, and you make absolutely certain that everyone knows it. You have such a massive insecurity and fear that you are not worthy of being loved that you must always be the center of attention wherever you go. What you crave more than anything is celebrity and fame. You must always be the biggest fish in the pond. Unfortunately, this means that you are rarely given the chance to grow. Your pride and egotism keeps you from experiencing your true greatness. Your insecurity can lead you to exaggerate and inflate your accomplishments. You may brag, boast, and even lie to keep the spotlight focused on you. This, however, invites challenges and conflict because you must always defend your claims. The outcome is that you feel humiliated, not loved. You are addicted to drama in all things. You are so used to being larger than life that you do not know how to adjust your behavior to adapt to different social contexts. You are eager to please others, and willing to give freely of yourself, but you expect to be acknowledged and validated for your contributions.
