Jupiter in Water Signs

With Jupiter in a Water sign, you grow and expand on the emotional and energetic plane. Growth is unconscious, personal, subjective, concrete, and based on your feelings and experiences as filtered through your own perceptions. Abstract, impersonal data and information is of no interest or use to you. Growth is only possible when you can embody and metabolize experiences, ideas, and concepts, making them a part of yourself.

Both your growth and your faith are based on the essential truth and not on the objective reality. Context is vital because context is how truth is measured and evaluated. Reality is merely perception, and appearances are unreliable and often deceptive. Your faith is guided by your intuition. You can't easily justify why you have faith, or provide any objective, rational examples that would convince other people, and yet you know that your inner guidance will never let you down. Faith is a feeling, not a thought.

Jupiter in Scorpio

Jupiter in Scorpio expects to be transformed by the power of each new experience. Every experience makes the veil more transparent, revealing more of the hidden truth. Jupiter in Scorpio approaches experiences in your "little r" reality from the context that essence is infinitely more important than appearance. You must delve beneath the surface to uncover the deeper mysteries and the ultimate wisdom. Jupiter in Scorpio has absolute faith that if you are willing to descend far enough into the darkness of the unknown, you will know the truth of unity. The biggest challenge for Jupiter in Scorpio is anger. In order to uncover the truth, you must move past progressively negative layers of appearance. These experiences are fundamentally threatening to the “little s” self, and the “little s” self will respond by resisting and defending itself.

When you are in Right Relationship with Jupiter in Scorpio, you embrace the awesome power of your “Big S” Self. You have the courage, the strength, and the single-minded focus that keeps you aligned with what is true, instead of what is real. You have faith that the Presence of the Divine is the Ultimate Reality, and this faith expands the context of your “little r” reality. You accept that the pain and negativity of the levels of consciousness in First Kingdom exist, but from your expanded context, you realize the truth that even there, the love of the Divine must be present. The narrative of your “Big S” Story requires you to take the light of truth into the darkness. You seek out the painful, negative experiences in your “little r” reality, armed only with the faith that no matter how real they seem, they are not true. The part of you that struggles and fears death is your “little s” self. Your “Big S” Self knows the truth that it is eternal. You approach each experience with ruthless compassion, knowing that whatever discomfort your “little s” self experiences is temporary, and that once you have completely surrendered to the experience and felt the feeling, you will be transformed. The reality of that particular story will no longer have any influence over you.

When you are out of alignment with Jupiter in Scorpio, you become addicted to power and control. You are an intensity junkie. You crave bigger, more extreme, more powerful emotional experiences because you believe these are the only way that you can grow. You need the drama; you need to explore the deepest, most hidden, most painful wounds. You like nothing more than bearing your soul and sharing your wounds with others so that they, in turn, will share their wounds with you. You feed off this intense, terrible intimacy, because you believe this is the most direct route to experiencing the source. However, because you lack a connection to your “Big S” Self, you are neither healed nor transformed by these experiences, and they do not expand the context of your “little r” reality. Your “little s” self only sees the reality that you are a victim, and that the world is filled with pain and suffering. Since you can see no alternative, you adopt the belief that what doesn’t kill you makes you stronger. The surge of anger that you experience when you are under extreme stress feels wonderful in contrast to the pain and suffering in the lower depths of Victim Consciousness, and you are unwilling to surrender that experience because you lack faith that anything better is possible.
