Jupiter in Water Signs

With Jupiter in a Water sign, you grow and expand on the emotional and energetic plane. Growth is unconscious, personal, subjective, concrete, and based on your feelings and experiences as filtered through your own perceptions. Abstract, impersonal data and information is of no interest or use to you. Growth is only possible when you can embody and metabolize experiences, ideas, and concepts, making them a part of yourself.

Both your growth and your faith are based on the essential truth and not on the objective reality. Context is vital because context is how truth is measured and evaluated. Reality is merely perception, and appearances are unreliable and often deceptive. Your faith is guided by your intuition. You can't easily justify why you have faith, or provide any objective, rational examples that would convince other people, and yet you know that your inner guidance will never let you down. Faith is a feeling, not a thought.

is whole, complete and perfect. Jupiter in Pisces sees beyond appearances and knows the truth of God in everything. The challenge for Jupiter in Pisces is to release all attachments, including the attachment to the belief that there is a difference between Spirit and form. This misunderstanding can trap Jupiter in Pisces at the level of anger.

When you are in Right Relationship with Jupiter in Pisces, you have absolute faith in God, and you know that God is All That Is. This means that the power and the Presence of the Divine lives within you. You are always connected to this radical truth, and the power of this truth often makes your “little r” reality seem less real. It’s almost as if everything you experience in your life is a dream, and yet you are aware that you are dreaming. Your thoughts instantly manifest, and the narrative of the story automatically adjusts to accommodate these miraculous creations. You seem to have x-ray vision. You see how things appear, but you also see through the appearance to the Divine essence within. You do not discriminate between form and Spirit because you know there is no difference between them. You experience a profound connection to everyone who shares this dream with you. You are also aware that this dream seems to include a great deal of suffering. The cause of the suffering is that not everyone is yet aware that they are dreaming, and they believe that what they dream is real. Each time you encounter suffering, you respond with unconditional love and compassion. Your consciousness and your knowing of the truth of the Divine heals and transmutes the pain, reducing the amount of suffering that exists.

When you are out of alignment with Jupiter in Pisces, you have absolute faith in God; however, you believe that God exists somewhere outside of you. While you can occasionally experience the higher realms of truth, you are fundamentally limited by your identification with your “little s” self and the belief that there is a difference between matter and Spirit. This single, critical error keeps you trapped in the confines of Victim Consciousness. You choose the reality that you are your ego/body, instead of the truth that you are an individualized expression of the Divine. You are addicted to spirituality, and believe—consciously or unconsciously—that Spirit is infinitely more valuable than form. The intention of your spiritual pursuits is to escape from the prison of the physical world. You fail to appreciate that this reinforces your attachment to the reality of form and your belief that matter is different from Spirit. You give away your power to the non-physical realms, and fantasize about being rescued through Divine intervention, so that your suffering can finally end. While you await your rescue, however, you experience increased levels of anger, which intensifies your suffering. You may direct this anger at God and reject God for allowing you to suffer. However, you may also find it unacceptable to feel anger towards God, and so you may deny, repress, or rationalize away your anger. This, too, increases your suffering.
